MAYS FACES BATTLE OF HIS CAREER WHEN HE MEETS QUINTERO TONIGHT

TONIGHT'S CARD
Star Bout—10 rounds—136 lbs.
Manuel Quintero vs. Bobby Mays
Star Bout—10 rounds—122 lbs.
Hughie Devlin vs. Al Beauregard
Semi-Final—8 rounds—122 lbs.
Vernon Cormier vs. Al Gillette
Preliminaries—6 rounds
Joe Russo vs. Ollie Koskie
Tommy McCarthy vs. Johnny Andrews

Good weather tonight is all that is necessary to guarantee the fans of Connecticut one of the best, if not the best, boxing shows that has ever been seen in eastern Connecticut. The above card, which will be out on at the Hamilton street arena in New London tonight, is one that would do credit to the famed Madison Square Garden, the mecca of world boxing.

With Manuel Quintero, the Spanish boxer-toreador, and Bobby Mays, state lightweight champion, topping the card it is bound to draw fans of fistiana from far and near. This is a real southpaw battle, Mays and Quintero both using the port-side stance, and it is one of the few times that either has been up against a real left-handed scrapper. Quintero rules as favorite in tonight's bout through his record against some of the best boys in the class and his two verdicts over Louis (Kid) Kaplan. Mays on the other hand is favored by virtue of his clever boxing ability although he is not expected to put Quintero away. The Spanish fighter predicts with great confidence that he has no fear of Mays and will put him in a horizontal position before the bout is over.

Norwich interest will run to the heights in the other ten round star bout between Al Beauregard of Norwich and Irish Hughie Devlin of New London. Beauregard, through his brilliant showing against Johnny Vacca recently, has the united support of Norwich fans while New London is equally united in support of the little Irish battler. Both these youngsters are in fine shape and have been anxious to get together in the squared circle for a long time. There has been no love lost between them since a certain night when both appeared on the same card and one made a disparaging remark about the other.

The semi-final brings together Vernon Cormier of Worcester, a hard hitting little battler who holds a couple of decisions over Devlin, and Al Gillette of New London. This bout is scheduled for eight rounds but the chances are that it will terminate when about four rounds old.

The only welterweight bout on the card finds Joe Russo of Westerly matching punches with Ollie Koskie of Worcester in what should be a real slugging match as both are noted for their hitting power.

Opening the card will be Tommy McCarthy, local Irish favorite, who has been piling up a knockout record in his last few fights, and Johnny Andrews of New Haven. Andrews is a product of the amateurs and when in the simon pures was a whirlwind and rose to the heights by virtue of a real wallop. The indications are that the show will get away to a slam-bang start and plenty of real action is anticipated from the first bell.

The show is slated for 8:30 o'clock and the advance sale of tickets indicates that the arena will be packed to overflowing.

Quintero Arrives.

Manuel Quintero and his manager arrived in New London last night shortly after 7 o'clock from Tampa, Fla. Quintero went directly to a hotel to rest and this morning will go through a short limbering-up workout and a jog on the road. The fighters will weigh-in this afternoon at 1:30 o'clock at Finnell's gym on Bank street.

Tickets At Wilson's.

Promoter Fakourey said late last night that owing to the big demand for tickets by Norwich fans that he would have a block of 25 seats at Jack's Sport shop this morning.

ST. LOUIS, June 19.—(AP)— Outhit by 7 to 12, the St. Louis Browns turned in a 5 to 2 triumph over the Chicago White Sox in the first game of the series here today.

ELKS WIN THIRD STRAIGHT IN JUNIOR LEAGUE

The Elks won their third straight game in the Junior Twilight league Wednesday evening, defeating the Y. M. C. A. 8 to 3. Last night's victory puts the Elks at the top of the league although Taftville has won both of their games to date also.

The Elks had a somewhat strengthened lineup, using a new battery, with Bernal doing the pitching and Pizzo in back of the plate. Bernal, after a rather shaky start in the first two innings, pitched air-tight ball thereafter, shutting out the "Y" for the remainder of the game. Four hits were made in all off the Elks' pitcher while seven were retired by strike-outs. Russillo started in the box for the Y. M. C. A. but pitched only the first frame, when Senetski relieved him. The Elks gathered only four bingles off the deliveries of both twirlers but errors at critical times enabled them to score on several occasions.

The "Y" started off with a run in the first on singles by Hastings and Butkiewicz. In their half of the same stanza, the Elks counted four times on but one safe hit. Whitmarsh, leading off, went all the way to second when Stefano threw his roller over first base. Buckley and Fitzgerald walked filling the bases. Russillo committed a wild pitch at this stage, allowing Whitmarsh to score and advancing the other runners along a base. Butkiewicz messed up Matthews' grounder and Buckley tallied, Fitzgerald taking third. Bamber grounded to short, Fitzgerald counting on the play. Slonsky fanned but Pizzo singled through short scoring Matthews. Bernal closed the inning with a grounder to Butkiewicz.

The "Y" scored two more counters in the second, but the Elks came back in their half with one run and added another in the fourth. Up to this point the Elks had scored six runs on one lone single, the other runs being the result of errors.

After the second, the "Y" did no more scoring. The Elks, however, added two tallies in the fifth and one in the sixth bringing their total to nine.

Fitzgerald at third for the Elks and Butkiewicz the Y. M. C. A. shortstop, played stellar games in the field. A peculiarity of the game was the fact that fourteen of the eighteen putouts made by the "Y" were made by Johnson at first base.

TIGERS TAKE SHORT GAME FROM INDIANS

CLEVELAND, June 19.—(AP) — A bombardment of hits by the Detroit Tigers gave them the first game of their series with the Indians here today, 8 to 3. The game was called with the seventh inning incomplete, on account of darkness and rain.

Two Cleveland pitchers proved ineffective against the Tigers, while Yde, although generous with passes, only allowed three hits.

MASSIE MILLER ENTERED IN NEW YORK STATE OPEN

Massie B. Miller, professional at the Norwich Golf club, leaves today for the Westchester-Biltmore Golf club where the New York state open golf tournament will be held on Friday and Saturday. The play in the tournament will be at 72 holes, medal play. A very select field of golfers is entered in this tournament which precedes the national open at Mamaroneck, N. Y. next week. Many of the qualifiers for the national event will be at Westchester as a sort of warm-up for the big event the following week.

Miller has been playing brilliant golf over Connecticut courses during the past few weeks, having set a new course record of 67 at the local course. He played par golf at the Shuttle Meadow club in a pro-amateur tournament last Sunday.

BOBBY MAYS

Do you folks ever read the market reports on certain commodities?

I did the other night and I got to thinking how a report on the finer things of life would read.

I started out to compile this report but it didn't look so appealing to me but I'll take it on. Here it is:

HONOR—Dear and scarce. The old stock nearly exhausted and the new crop rather unpromising.

HONESTY—Very little in the market.

PATRIOTISM—No demand since the World War.

PRUDENCE—All in the hands of the conservatives.

PRIDE—Market glutted. A good deal of it will be found to be false upon close scrutiny.

POLITENESS—Very cheap. Owners seem very indifferent about the disposal of it.

RELIGION—Slow moving, and no ready sales. When brought into the market sellers dilute it to suit tastes of purchasers.

LOVE—None offered except on a cash basis.

MORALITY—Imperfections light. That of native growth degenerating.

That's as far as I went in the report but believe me it looks as though the market was very heavy and had a very depressing note to it.

Today's most unpopular song—"Button Up Your Overcoat."

Y. M. C. A. SLAUGHTERS RICHMOND IN INDUSTRIAL LEAGUE OPENER

A weird exhibition of baseball, won by the Y. M. C. A. from the Richmond Radiator company, 18 to 9, ushered in the third season of the Norwich Industrial league at the Academy campus last night. The season's opener proved a disappointment both teams making a number of miscplays, the Y offsetting theirs with some heavy sticking. Kotch, who was sent to the firing line by the Radiators, when Lloyd Jarvis failed to put in his appearance, was touched for 18 hits, 6 of them for extra bases. Three Y hurlers, Leffingwell, Middy Dugas and Couture fared much better, yielding 6 safeties among them.

Prior to the official opening of the season at 6.30, the members of both clubs were called to the center of the field and were addressed by William J. Fitzgerald, chairman of the recreation commission and Mayor Lee Roy Robbins. Mr. Fitzgerald, the first to speak, advised the players as to the purpose of the league, mentioning the fact that the recreation commission was behind the project so that the youths from the various shops and stores, as well as the fans, might enjoy good clean recreation. He stated that he hoped that the players would cooperate in every way to help the commission attain its purpose by presenting a clean brand of ball.

In turn, Mr. Fitzgerald introduced the mayor, and the latter after congratulating Mr. Fitzgerald for the work that his commission has done in Norwich advised the players to play the game hard, but clean. He emphasized the fact that the success of the circuit a year ago was due largely to the manner in which the players as well as the fans took hold of the proposition and the splendid judgment shown by the umpires in the handling of the games. After wishing both clubs a successful season he threw out the first ball and the Richmonds, the home team, took the field.

Burns, the first man to bat struck out and Leffingwell popped to Burke, Eccleston made first when Cimikowski judged his grounder and scored the first run of the season on Lefty Dugas' two base smash to center. Lefty scored a moment later when his namesake, Middy Dugas, smacked the building in right center for another two bagger and Brown ended the inning with a long fly to Fagan in center.

In their half of the inning the Ironmen went out in order and the Y followed suit in the first session of the second. On four hits, one a freak homer Cimikowski, a hit bateman, two bases on balls and three errors, the Richmonds scored 8 runs in their half of the second and Leffingwell, the Y starter on the mound, was relieved by Middy Dugas. Lefty Dugas moved to first in the shift and Leffingwell to the center garden.

The Y boosted its total to five in the third and after the Richmonds made the count 9-8 in the early half of the fourth, drew up to within one run of them in the latter half of the frame.

At this point the 1,000 or more fans that warmed the bleachers, settled back expecting a close game. The Y, however aided by a flock of Richmond misplays, went on a rampage in the early fifth and before the balloon came down had scored 7 runs and were leading 15 to 9. They wound up the scoring in the sixth with another trio of runs.

The Dugases alone displayed enough hitting power to beat the Ironmen, collecting 8 hits, six of them extra base smashes, between them. Lefty hit a triple and two doubles and Middy got 3 two-ply blows and a single. Eccleston hit for the circuit, two bases and a single.

Fagan, in centerfield and Cimikowski were the shining lights of the Ironmen. Fagan pulled down several nice catches while the latter collected two of his team's six hits. The score:

SMOKE SHOP CLASHES WITH POLISH CLUB TONIGHT

The junior club of the circuit, the Smoke Shop, makes its debut in the Dusty league tonight, playing the Polish Citizens at the Academy campus in the second of the scheduled games. The Smokers, representing the West Side section of the city, are filling the place left vacant through the withdrawal of the United States Finishing Co., champs of a year ago. Judging from its personnel at this time, it appears as if the place of the Finishers is well filled. The management of the West End outfit has corraled a flock of present and former Academy stars in addition to several of the outstanding players of independent clubs about town.

Included in the list of eligible players on the Smoke Shop roster are the Tombari brothers, Pheno, Pete and Anso. Pheno, an ex-Academy star, has just returned from the Connecticut Agricultural college where he turned in a big year. Anso played with the Red and White during the past season while Pete, the oldest of the three, has campaigned here for several seasons under the banner of independent teams. Other stars on the Smoke Shop roster are Chet Berghinzo, Buck LaCroix and Red Fagan, members of the Academy team, Lefty Lucier, Hymie Sadinsky, Ellie Segal, F. Orcutt and G. Jones.

The opponents of the Smokers tonight, the Polish Citizens, are not so bad themselves. In five games played todate they have yet to be defeated, holding verdicts over Riverview, Fitchville and other top notch clubs in the vicinity. Mgr. Panek has in his fold Alex Arico, first baseman of the Academy team, Johnny Green, who together with Lloyd Jarvis, did the hurling for the Red and White during the two years that it won the state high school championship, Jab Burns, Leo Hamil, Ed Busch, Boots Green, Shorty Hamil, Kenneth Shurtleff, Stanley Stankiwicz and Joe Chmielewski.

Although neither manager has announced his starting lineup for tonight's game, in all probability Johnny Green will do the hurling for the Cits while Lefty Lucier toes the rubber for the Smokers. Jab Burns will catch for the former and Pete Tombari for the west siders.

Y Juniors Practice

The Y Juniors will practice at Hollyhock island this afternoon at 4 o'clock.

GIANTS BEAT PHILLIES TWICE IN HECTIC CONFLICTS

PHILADELPHIA, June 19—(AP)—The Giants smashed through the Phillies for two victories here this afternoon, winning the first game by 15 to 14 in eleven innings and taking the second by the more comfortable margin of 13 to 6 over the regulation distance. It took more than six hours to play the two games.

Melvin Ott hit his sixteenth and seventeenth home runs in the first game while Chuck Klein, Philly slugger, got his eighteenth. Score:

BOXMAKERS SLAUGHTER MARTINS AT MONTVILLE

The Robertson Paper Box company slaughtered the J. B. Martin team in a Montville Industrial league game played on the Shelton field last night, 21 to 3.

The Paperbox boys knocked the offering of Rioux to all corners of the field, collecting 23 hits off the combined pitching of Wylie and Rioux. Gardner, Tephly and Allen collected four hits in five trips to the plate and McKinney contributed a home run in the slugfest.

The only feature for Martin was a nice catch by Hyduma who robbed Rice of a hit in the second after a long run. The score:

WESTERLY

DRUNKEN DRIVER DRAWS FINE OF $200 AND COSTS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., June 19.—Frank L. LeHenaff of 101 Beers street, New Haven, was before Judge Oliver H. Williams Wednesday morning in a special session of Third District court charged with operating an automobile while under the influence of liquor. Due to the presence of the Rhode Island state board of public roads representatives in the regular court rooms where many are examined weekly on Wednesdays for licenses, court session was held in the judge's office in the court house. The accused plead guilty and stated that he was on his way to Boston to visit his wife.

The defendant's arrest was caused by an automobile accident which occurred in Ashaway about 9:30 p. m. Tuesday night on the Noose Neck Hill road when it was in a head-on collision with a Studebaker sedan owned by Clarence Anderson and driven by Wheeler Anderson of 274 Linwood avenue, Bridgeport, and he was alone. The new Ford car of LeHenaff had been driven less than 500 miles and was badly damaged, both autos having to be towed away. No one was injured in the accident.

Sergeant Ernest F. Stenhouse of the Rhode Island state police barracks in Hope Valley was called to the scene on Tuesday night and found LeHenaff was accompanied by Joseph Byron of 101 Beers street, New Haven. After making investigation the police sergeant brought the man to the office of Dr. M. H. Scanlon, who pronounced him under the influence of liquor and he was locked up at the Westerly police station.

In court the accused stated that he had but two water glasses of liquor before leaving New Haven and when informed that he was four feet over the center line of the highway declared that he had been bothered by lights. In imposing a fine of $200 and costs of $10 Judge Williams said he could impose a fine of $500 and a year's jail sentence or both.

BADLY HURT IN FALL AT WESTERLY STATION

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I. June 19.—George Connell, 65, retired blacksmith, formerly residing at 845 Bank street, New London, but who since last January has resided with the family of William Greig, 47 Mechanic street, Pawcatuck, sustained painful injuries at 10:20 a. m. Wednesday morning in a fall down the inside basement stairs at the Westerly station of the New Haven railroad.

His predicament was discovered by Miss Ella Brophy, in charge of the station stand of the Union News Co., who saw the aged man at the foot of the cellar stairs and made a report to Reuben W. Austin, ticket clerk. Station Agent Earl S. Bavier was notified and Dr. M. H. Scanlon was called to attend the injured man. He was taken to the Westerly hospital where he was treated for abrasions and contusions to the left side of his face and ear. Injuries to his left arm and shoulder where there was a possibility of a broken bone caused x-rays to be taken to determine their extent.

To the station agent, Connel related that he had sought the men's toilet and had seen a meter reader come from the cellar door and supposed that it was the door he sought. He said that due to his impaired vision he was unable to read the painted signs and had stepped through the door without first looking to see where it led. His appearance after the fall indicated more extensive injuries than later proved to be the case.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk appear the following transfers:

June 18.—Lillian Novogrod of Worcester, Mass., to George Davison of Westerly, lot of land at Misquamicut with buildings and improvements, near "Babcock's Pond."

Judge Edward M. Burke on Tuesday afternoon in the probate court chambers of the Westerly town hall held the second regular June bimonthly session of Westerly probate court. Probate matters were disposed of as follows:

Estate of Mary Stillman.—Petition received for the appointment of an administrator to the estate. Washington Trust company was appointed administrator by the court. Bond was made $5,000 without surety. Charles D. Maxson was named appraiser.

Estate of Courtland M. Chase—Petition received for the appointment of an administrator. Rouse B. Chase was present and under oath testified to account with estate in the matter continued from the previous regular court session. Ida M. Randall of 198 Alabama avenue, Providence, was named administrator. Bond was made $500. Edward H. Chase was named as appraiser.

Estate of Anna E. Hakes.—Petition received for appointment of administrator D. B. N., c. t. a. Jessie F. Hakes was appointed administrator. Bond was made $20,000. Lewis Stanton was named appraiser.

Estate of Harlan P. Hakes.—Petition received and granted to sell certain listed properties for not less than $600 for both.

EYE WITNESS TESTIFIED AT CORONER'S INQUEST

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I. June 19.—At the coroner's inquest held late Tuesday afternoon in the Stonington town court room by Coroner Edward McKay of Norwich, Dr. Sherman S. Atwood of Westerly and Stonington was the only eye witness to testify. His wife, Mrs. Clara Pendleton Atwood, stated that she was looking to the right side of the highway at the time 8-year-old Constance Irene Main was struck by the Chevrolet car driven by Clifton Whittaker of 81 Bergen street, New Bedford, Mass. Adeline Baxter of 258 North Oxford street, Hartford, who has been staying with her sister at 41 Greenman avenue, Myrtle, a passenger in the Atwood automobile which was proceeding to Stonington, declared that she closed her eyes when she thought the child's life was in danger and did not see the accident.

The fourth witness was Mrs. Flora Gavitt, R. F. D. No. 1, Westerly road and it was from her automobile that the little girl had alighted on her way home from school, but she could not see her as she stood back of her car. James Marsden, Acushnet avenue, New Bedford, Mass., the fifth witness, stated that he was driving the Chevrolet car just ahead of the auto involved and only stopped his auto when he saw the car pull to the side of the road. George A. Emin, of 29 Cedar street, Fairhaven, Mass., was the New Bedford, Mass., dealer who owned the fleet of five cars being driven through and an important statement made by him was that he had checked the brakes on the car involved, but generally the trouble found was that the brakes were too tight and had to be loosened to prevent heating and added that he had disconnected the speedometer.

Clifton Howard Whittaker, driver of the last car in the string, which struck the girl, was examined at the greatest length. At the time the girl was hit, he said, his foot brake only was used as he "thought someone had thrown a bundle into the road as the parked car by the roadside was passed by him."

PRIZE SPEAKING CONTEST AT WESTERLY HIGH SCHOOL

Armons, "The Banquet Scene from MacBeth"; second, Frank Accolina, "Tell-tale Heart." The judges were Erroll K. Wilcox, superintendent of schools of South Kingstown, Caroline E. Wilson, Ashland, Mass., Arthur H. Illing of Stonington high school. The music was furnished by the high school orchestra.

GRANTED PERMIT TO BUILD WOODEN BUILDING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., June 19—A special meeting of the Westerly town council was held last night. Building Inspector Thomas Wills was present. After a long discussion a special building permit was voted to Charles D. Havens to construct a wooden building on his property at the rear of the Atlantic View inn. The special permit is for a wooden frame building 24 feet by 46 feet with fire-resisting sides. The council voted approval of the bond issue requested by town Treasurer Pendleton.

WEDDING

Abbott-Smith

A Pawcatuck wedding occurred on Tuesday morning at 9 o'clock when Miss Cecelia Smith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George A. Smith of 42 Mechanic street, was united in marriage with Arthur Abbott of Haverham, R. I., at St. Michael's church by Rev. J. F. X. Quinn who also celebrated the nuptial mass, which followed. Music during the mass was sung by the church choir of which the bride is a member. Two solos, "Until" and the "Ave Maria," were also sung by Miss Mary LaFere.

Miss Grace Smith, sister of the bride, was maid of honor, and the bride's brother, Rudolf Smith, was best man.

Antonio Longo, 14 Robinson street, Pawcatuck, driver of the half-ton Ford truck on the Westerly-Watch Hill road on Monday afternoon when three-year-old Stephen McIntire Beebe was struck and killed near the junction of Wells and Beach streets, was visited Tuesday by a representative of the Rhode Island state board of public roads and notified that his license to drive had been suspended in Rhode Island. The boy was the son of Clarence V. and Susie Belle Saunders Beebe and resided at the Hakes farm on the old Potter hill road.

Following an investigation by Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown and Police Officer Robert M. Kessel, Longo, who is represented by Judge Herbert W. Rathbun, was summoned to appear in the regular session of third district court next Friday.

A number of witnesses to the fatality have been examined by Chief Brown and Investigator William A. Riddle of the Rhode Island state board of public roads.

Westerly Lions club held its annual meeting on Wednesday noon at Harry Peckham's Inn. D. Harold Rogers was elected president to succeed President William C. Clarke, former general manager of the South County Public Service Co., who is to take a European trip.

Other officers for the coming year were chosen as follows: Frank G. Ahearn, first vice president; David K. Hoxie, second vice president; Ralph Segar, third vice president; William Clarke, secretary; Richard Mitchell, treasurer; Robert Barr, lion timer; Wilfred B. Utter, tail twister; Thomas F. PRICES DROPPED SHARPLY IN CLOSING HOURS OF STOCK MARKET YESTERDAY

NEW YORK, June 19—(AP)—The stock market showed increasing indications of becoming top-heavy today, and prices came down rather sharply in the late trading after several partially successful attempts to extend the recent gains. Meanwhile, wheat advanced about 3 1-2 cents a bushel and cotton prices floundered around without getting anywhere. Total stock sales just crossed the 3,000,000 share mark, the excessive heat of the past few days driving several of Wall street's large operators to the cooling waters of Long Island sound or to New Jersey beach resorts.

Call money held steady at 7 per cent all day. There was no actual change in time money rates, which continued on an 8 per cent basis, but borrowers were reported to be lowering their bids to 7 3-4 for the short and 7 1-2 per cent for the long maturities. Further gold withdrawals from Great Britain and the Argentine were announced during the day, bringing the total in the last two days to $16,000,000. Bankers do not believe that the mid-year stiffening of call money rates will be delayed beyond tomorrow.

Except for the publication of the weekly steel trade reviews, emphasizing the continued high rate of output and demand, an increase from $3 to $4 in the annual dividend on William Wrigley common and the usual crop of merger and dividend rumors, the day's news provided few developments of market interest. Chief stress in commission house circles was laid on the easing of credit conditions and the influence of gold imports.

Public utilities, as a group, gave the best demonstration of strength, although a few of the recent favorites fell back on profit-taking. The Associated Press indices of 50 leading industrials and 20 leading rails declined about 2 points each.

Brooklyn Union Gas was one of the spectacular features of today's trading, soaring 15 points to a new high record at 203 3-4 and retaining all but a few points of its gain. The rise was associated with reports of the issuance of valuable stock purchase "rights" or a merger with Consolidated Gas, the common stock of which also touched a new peak. Other public utilities to better their previous 1929 high prices were American Power & Light, Public Service of New Jersey, Louisville Gas & Electric, Federal Light & Traction and Standard Gas & Electric. Southern California Edison advanced more than 4 points but North American and International Telephone turned heavy.

Steels turned sluggish despite the favorable trade reports, and fresh selling also developed in the copper shares. Some of the liquidation in the oils was influenced by predictions that an effective National Oil curtailing agreement was unlikely before 1931.

New highs for the year were established by Air Reduction, Allis Chalmers, Continental Baking A, International business machines, Newport Co., Timken Roller earing and Underwood Elliott Fisher. A few obscure issues, such as City Ice & Fuel, Fifth Avenue Bus, Minneapolis Moline Plow preferred, Penn-Dixie Cement and Elkhorn Coal preferred, sank to new low levels. Case Threshing Machine Certificates broke 17 points on a couple of sales.

General Electric converted an early gain of 3 points into a loss of 3 points, and Allied Chemical, Curtiss Aeroplane, Goodyear Tire, Hayes Body, Otis Elevator and Commercial Solvents closed with net declines of 3 to nearly 8 points.

The rise in wheat was attributed to a better export demand and unfavorable weather forecasts for Oklahoma and Kansas. Corn advanced about half a cent a bushel on predictions of rain. The sugar market displayed an easier undertone, and considerable less activity than yesterday. Cotton trading was extremely quiet with price changes unimportant.

Sterling and Argentine exchanges stiffened slightly in reflection of gold exports. Except for a drop of 20 points in Spanish pesetas, the exchanges were quiet.

THE CURB MARKET

NEW YORK, June 19—(AP)—The curb market today ruled strong up until the final hour when considerable selling was encountered, cutting down many of the gains. The Morgan-upper New York state group of public utilities surrendered the market lead to Electric Bond & Share and Middle Western Power stocks, many of which broke through to record high prices. Advances were spurred by talks of further mergers.

Trading was active in the morning hours, but as the thermometer began to show record temperatures sales fell off until the market resolved into a dull affair in the late afternoon. The advance was encouraged by 7 per cent call money, although a higher rate is predicted for the remainder of the month, and by further shipments of gold from England and Argentina.

Electric Bond & Share jumped 5 1-2 points to 112, a record price, and closed within a fraction of its top, while Electric Investors advanced 4 5-8 to 130 1-4, a record, and closed at that figure. Allied Power & Light rose more than 3 points to a new peak at 82 1-2 but lost nearly a point of its gain at the close. American Gas & Electric shot up to 199 7-8, a record, and closed at 184 for a net fractional loss. American Light & Traction with a 7 1-2 point rise came within a point of its record price. Consolidated Gas of Baltimore closed at 139 1-8 for a net advance of 5 1-4 after setting up to 142.

Mohawk Hudson Power, Buffalo Niagara & Astern and Northeastern Power eased off as speculators waited for the announcement of terms in the merger of these three companies by Morgan & Company into one upper New York state system. Commonwealth & Southern on a turnover of 169,600 gained a small fraction. Buffalo Edison stocks advanced on announcement of increased earnings, but Southeastern Power & Light dropped a point.

Standard Power & Light, Central States Electric issues, Middle West Utilities and Columbus Electric sold at record high levels.

Packard Motor new stock was traded in as stockholders approved the five-for-one split up creating the new shares. Hickard Electric, Automotive Accessory Firm, sold down to a new low. Chester Cab was well supported in the face of the threatened New York taxi war.

Bristol-Myers in the specialty group again moved into new high ground. Libby Owens Sheet Glass pressed 200 in its climb from record low ground. Today's net advance was 18 1-4. It has sold as low as 48 this year.

The hot weather with prospects of increased business brought support to Lily Tulip Cup, carrying it up more than a point to a new high at 76 1-4. The company manufactures a diversified line of cups and containers for practically all purposes.

The oils were dull. Humble dropped 1 1-2 on a small turn over. The gas stocks were under pressure most of the day.

NEW YORK, June 19—(AP)—Negotiations are reported under way for the merging of several New England fine cotton goods manufacturers, aggregating many thousands of looms.

Based on reports for the first 21 weeks of the year, sales of the Jewel Tea company for the entire year are estimated at more than $17,000,000, compared with $15,270,892 in 1928.

The 6 per cent bonds of the Goodyear Cotton Company of Canada, Ltd., have been called for redemption as of October 1 at par and interest. Holders of the bonds may exchange them for others of a new $2,000,000 issue, soon to be announced.

James H. Rand, Jr., chairman of Remington Rand, Inc., states that earnings for the quarter ending March 31 were 100 per cent ahead of the 1928 period. He expects this improvement to be maintained throughout the current fiscal year.

May sales of the Consolidated Retail Stores, operators of women's apparel stores in the middle west and south, amounted to $2,052,425, compared with $1,585,132 in May, 1928.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, June 19—(AP)—The convertibles did their bit toward making today's bond market interesting, but other issues failed to contribute materially the activity and the session as a whole was rather dull, although prices held steady and sales volume was higher.

The best performer in the list was the Brooklyn Union Gas convertible 5 1-2s which mounted 46 points to 400 on a small turnover in sympathy with the buoyancy in the shares. Public Service of New Jersey 4 1-2s also had a good rise, climbing to 223 in the early afternoon and then reacting to close at 221, a new 1929 high and a net advance of 3 1-2 points.

American Telephone 4 1-2s and International Telephone 4 1-2s again attracted the largest trading. The former moved within a narrow price range for a net loss of 1-8 on the day, while the International Company bond, after selling at 132 5-8, a new high, shortly before the close dropped to 123 3-4 on the last few transactions. At that price it showed a net decline of 3 3-4.

Rails moved uncertainly, varying mostly within less than a point of Tuesday's final quotations. Canadian, Rock Island, Missouri Pacific and Pennsylvania issues ran into some insignificant selling, while the New Havens, St. Pauls and Northern Pacifics improved nominally.

Steel bonds, which have been advancing this week, lost part of their gains. Industrials, as a group, were a little easier.

Utility bonds, like the stocks, gained with something like consistency. Kansas Gas & Electric 6s, Columbia Gas & Electric 5s, Louisville Gas & Electric 5s and North American Edison 5 1-2s traded in moderate volume at generally higher prices, but New York Telephone 6s were unable to hold yesterday's gain and declined.

Foreign and United States obligations worked irregularly higher. French Republic 7s, Ohio Electric Light 6s, Poland 7s and British United Kingdom 4s had fair markets, whereas trading in the liberty and treasury issues was thin.

CHICAGO GRAIN MARKET

CHICAGO, June 19—(AP)—Indications of severe crop damage in Oklahoma and Kansas brought about lively buying of wheat future delivery contracts late today, and prices jumped quick. Half of Oklahoma's wheat acreage will not return even a yield equal to harvest expenses, according to dispatches received today by one of the principal grain companies here. Some reports along the same line came also from southern Kansas.

Closing quotations on wheat were strong at the day's topmost figures, 2 1-8 to 2 1-

These 55 made an average progress of ten months in seven school months. Stella H. Surowiak gained two grades and six months in silent reading and two grades in vocabulary, which gave her the D. A. R. prize.

POETRY

A Peculiar Memory.

My memory's peculiar. It is good enough
In spots,
For when it comes to names, why I remember lots and lots
Of such familiar ones as Jones and Johnson, Smith and Brown,
In fact I know too many to attempt to jot them down.
But, as I said, my memory's peculiar,
for, you see,
Though I remember scores of names, the thing that puzzles me
Is just to try to recollect to whom those names belong.
And nine times out of every ten I'm sure to get them wrong.

Some people can't remember dates, I can, you must allow;
For every year from A. D. One to that we're living now
I can recall at any time—the month and week and day!
Yes, every date we're ever had is in my mind to stay.
But when it comes to telling what it was that came to pass
On any one of all those dates—then
I'm no good, alas!
'Bout all I'm really certain of is that,
with his brave crew,
Columbus crossed the Delaware in fourteen-ninety-two.

—By Nixon Waterman.

Those Wise Advices

Soon will the weather be steadily hot;
Heed ye my hints on the theme of What's What:

Freely I give you this solemn advice,
Steer clear of drinks that are laden with ice;
Out on the street in the blistering sun,
Walk very slowly, refusing to run;
Don't, if you're wise, be you woman or man,
Sit when perspiring in front of a fan;
Coffee is bad for you, ice water too;
Beer is a heating and treacherous brew,
All things with alcohol in them are sinful,
And people get sunstroke who tipple a skinful.

These are the maxims on How to Keep
Cool
Written by some most pestiferous fool.
Do I observe them myself? I do not—
I do as you do on days that are hot.
Yet, every season the newspapers print
Many a Sensible Hot Weather Hint; Why shouldn't I trail along with the rest
And get all this Hygienic weight off my chest?

—Ted Robinson, in Cleveland Plain Dealer.

HUMOR OF THE DAY

Many a man in love with a dimple makes the mistake of marrying the whole girl.—Life.

"My word, that's a marvelous butler you have there. Has he been in the family long?"

"Oh, yes, indeed. Several hours."—Exchange.

Wife—Darling, I have something I want to talk with you about.

Husband—Glad to hear it. Usually it's something you haven't got you want to talk about.—Detroit News.

We noticed a recipe on a woman's page for carrot and sauerkraut salad. Doesn't that make even baked beans seem like food for the gods?—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Wife (at bedside of sick husband)—Is there no hope, doctor?

Medic (absently)—I don't know. What are you hoping for?—Pathfinder.

He—If I had known that tunnel was so long I would have kissed you.

She—Good heavens! Didn't you?—Arcanum Magazine.

The small boy came into the haberdasher's and after looking around for a time went up to the clerk.

"I want a collar for my father."

"One like mine?" the clerk asked.

"Naw. A clean one!"—Exchange.

The candidate was interrupted in his speech by a heckler who asked if he was in favor of prohibition.

"I am" (prolonged cheers from the drys) "not" (prolonged cheers from the wets) "going to tell you."—London Answers.

Visitors who go to the Harry Payne Whitney farm near Lexington, Ky., to see thoroughbred horses meet a surprise when they encounter two hybrid animals that are a cross of a zebra sire with Percheron dams. The hybrids are seven years old and the two of them weigh 3,850 pounds. Each stands about 16 hands high. The animals are excellent work horses if teamed together. Otherwise they will not work.

OBITUARY.

Mrs. Rachel Lansdale.

Mrs. Rachel Lansdale, colored, a resident of New London for many years, died at Lawrence-Memorial Associated hospital this noon. She had been a patient there but a short time. Mrs. Lansdale was long employed by Mrs. H. C. Bunner, Church street.

Boleslaw Habarek, 148 Winthrop street, persists in driving his automobile while under the influence of liquor. He has been arrested for this offense several times and the latest time was this forenoon when he was arrested on Main street by Patrolman Patrick Sheehan and Clarence Wells. He will be presented in the police court tomorrow. Habarek has been arrested in New London and Norwich for drunken driving and also by state police. He has also been arrested for driving while his license was under suspension.

The fish market conducted by Cesare Vescovi, at 123 Bentley avenue, Ocean beach, was entered by thieves last night and from the nature of the robbery it is apparent that the thieves are persons familiar with Vescovi's habits. His stock of lobsters was the only loot taken. Twenty-five pounds of this specie of shell fish were stolen. Entrance to the market was obtained by cutting a wire screen from one of the open windows. Vescovi discovered the robbery this morning when he opened the store for business and reported it at police headquarters.

The officials of the Children's commission, Waterbury, last night informed the police that two girls, Irene White, 14, and Susie Mazzi, 17, had escaped and requested that if the girls appeared in New London to arrest them. The White girl formerly resided with a family named Sullivan on Tenth street.

The blaze was discovered by Mrs. Joseph Van Hook of Pearl street, who in looking out of a rear window in her residence noticed a glow. She hastened to the Allen Hook and Ladder company at Bank and Tilley street and turned in an alarm. Upon arrival of the firemen it was found that a hole four feet square had burned in the ground floor of the building and was rapidly spreading up into the partitions. By the use of chemicals the flames were quickly extinguished. The building shortly will be occupied by the Montgomery Ward company. Damage from the fire was approximately $300.

FOR FRESH AIR FUND OF FAMILY WELFARE DEPT.

The family welfare department of the United Workers invite all friends of children to contribute to their annual fresh air fund which will provide summer outings at the shore and vacations at nearby health camps for under-privileged boys and girls. There are a number of children in our city who need the change such a fund gives them and as nothing is appropriated for this purpose from the relief fund of the United Workers, it is necessary to remind our friends of our vacation needs. Play suits and keds will have to be provided for the campers, as well as other incidentals, which we are obliged to purchase for their comfort. We will be pleased to receive contributions at No. 9 Washington street from all who are interested in fresh air work for children.

OWNERS ARE ORDERED TO REMOVE PROPERTY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 18.—The city of New London is to proceed to have removed buildings that are considered to be dangerous and unsafe within the city limits and which are adjudged to have deteriorated through decay and otherwise to the extent of more than half their value. The property is that of the Avery estate on Church street; a barn belonging to the Connecticut Motor Transportation company at Brainard and Amity streets, the property of George Marquart on Potter street, and the property of Nellie Kiely on Vauxhall street.

The latter property is a shed and has collapsed from decay. The owners of the properties mentioned are given till the 19th of August to remove the same.

Property owned by James F. O'Leary on Bren street in the rear is to be repaired as the owner claims it can be so treated and then used for storage purposes. The property of Morris Manowich on North Bank street, also stipulated to be torn down, is to be repaired, but specific instructions as to what repairs will satisfy the city are to be given to the owners. These will become effective on the 19th of August also.

POLICE ARREST THREE MEN FOR FIGHTING

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 19.—Raymond Bailey, restaurant worker and John and Edward Watts, Long Island City, N. Y., were arrested tonight by Patrolmen Frank Philopena, Braxton Hill and Henry Hick as a result of a fight on State street. Bailey is charged with intoxication, breach of the peace and resisting an officer and the Watts brothers are charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. All three will be presented in the police court tomorrow.

The Watts brothers and Bailey met near the Union station. Bailey was badly beaten and when arrested was bleeding profusely from the nostrils and from lacerations of the face. He attacked Patrolman Philopena, but with the assistance of the other two officers the trio of fighters were quickly landed in cells.

The police late today raided the drinking place of Edward Bell, 97 Green street, a small store and the home of Mrs. Cora Smith, colored, of 115 Green street and the man and woman will be presented in the police court tomorrow charged on two counts of violation of the liquor law. Both furnished bonds of $1000. The arrests were the result of a complaint by a neighbor and a search warrant was issued by Judge Victor Prince.

Mrs. E. D. Steele, Ocean Beach, will depart this week for a several weeks' European cruise.

The Thames river highway bridge was a handicap to boat masters for several hours tonight for the mechanism became so disabled that it could not be opened until near midnight. Because of the intense heat, the Yale crews abandoned practice and went for a sail on Long Island sound. Upon the return of the yacht it could not pass through the bridge and launches were sent from the Eli quarters and conveyed the crews back to their quarters.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Changing Oil in the Crank Case.

The importance of crankcase changes should be maintained—even when good oils are used—Many oils, like Gulf Supreme Motor Oil would go many miles beyond the danger point if there were no foreign substances accumulated in the crank case.

Excessive carbon, road dust, particles of metal and unburnt gas deteriorates oil in the crank case more than the actual wear of even the highest speed motors.

Gulf chemists did a good job when they succeeded in blending paraffine and naphthene base crudes into a serviceable lubricant—possessing the good qualities to be found in these crudes.

Don't neglect the change—your motor will give double service if this is done periodically—or after long trips extending farther than five hundred miles.

Frigidaire.

Its one millionth electrical refrigeration unit already sent out to join predecessors all over the world, Frigidaire corporation is proceeding with a tremendous production schedule, backed by the experience gained in the manufacture and installation of more units than all other makes combined, according to Carl W. Brown, Inc., local dealer.

"Customer usage over a period of many years—the most severe of tests—has brought many distinctive features," he said. "Our product today incorporates all the refinements that have resulted from years of research and actual use in the field." Chief among these features is the Frigidaire cold control, which speeds up the freezing of ice cubes and the preparation of frozen desserts. This improvement largely is responsible for the record breaking business being done by the company.

"At the factories an engineering department of more than 200 persons constantly is bringing out new improvements. By carrying on this development work Frigidaire corporation maintains its leadership in the refrigeration field. Many improvements, before announced are taken into selected homes and put to work under real kitchen conditions to prove their ability to withstand actual use. To check accurately the endurance of its product the company has many models in constant operation. One of them has been running the equivalent of more than 28 years of normal service.

"Long experience in the industry and its program of rigorous testing for the betterment of its product have enabled Frigidaire to manufacture one million units. Customers are assured that the product not only has met the requirements of engineers, but has been pronounced worthy by a million users."

Broadway Theatre.

A year ago Barry Macollum sent the shivers chasing along Broadway's spinal column with the unearthly cry he developed for his leading role in the stage play, "The Banshee."

The play eventually went the way of many another on the street of change and diversion, but thanks to the talking movies, the banshee cry will go marching on all over the land.

Macollum and his weird cry have an important part in the drama of super-crooks and their fake spiritualistic methods, "The Hole in the Wall," which comes to the Broadway theatre on Thursday for a three-day run.

In all the seance sequences, during the production of this Paramount all-talking thriller, there were frequent signal waves of the hand from Director Robert Florey and then Macollum would release his dismal and uncanny wail. It promises to be one of the most haunting memories of the picture. Without the new sound reproducing devices this effect would not be possible for screen audiences.

"Keening" comes naturally to Macollum, for he was born and raised in Ireland, where banshees and other weird "little people" are part and parcel of the lives of all natives. Two years ago Macollum was in that fine Irish play "Juno and the Paycock." He also took part in the hobo play, "Outside Looking In," based on the same Jim Tully book as the motion picture, "Beggars of Life."

He has had considerable other stage experience, as have the others who were chosen to support Claudette Colbert and Edward G. Robinson in "The Hole in the Wall."

Palace Theatre

From reports that have been received locally, "Hearts in Dixie," Fox Movietone all-talking production which closes tonight at the Palace theatre, seems destined to be rated one of the best pictures of 1929.

There are several reasons for this estimate, and the most significant is that it has been perfectly synchronized—which, with the picture's generous number of songs and other musical features, means more than it ordinarily does.

A story of Dixieland, just after the Civil War, the entertainment value of "Hearts in Dixie" is enhanced by the fact that, in an unusual way, the development of the story is to be not alone seen, but heard. A chorus of sixty voices singing spirituals and folk songs has aroused the greatest enthusiasm wherever the picture has been shown. In addition there is an orchestra, many dancers and other performers.

He came home at midnight—and found a strange woman in his bed!

That's the predicament in which Edward Everett Horton finds himself in his latest all-talking comedy, "The Right Bed," a short and extremely gratifying playlet on the program at the Palace theatre.

Horton is considered one of the cleverest stars in talking pictures today. He is possessed of a perfect recording voice, and his long stage and screen experience has fitted him admirably for stellar roles in these dialogue pictures.

Other sound features on the same program include the famous Grantland Rice's "Spotlight," the pep and prep of our youth today, a pathe sound news, the oldest and greatest news in scene and sound.

The dramatic ingredients in the Fox Movietone all-talking production of New York night life, "Speakeasy" are greatly enhanced by the most extraordinary sound background made possible by the filming of numerous locations in and around New York city.

The "sport of kings" comes to life with every bit of zest in this production. Benjamin Stolloff, with Paul Page, Lola Lane, Warren Hymer and other members of the large cast spent several weeks in the metropolis making scenes at the Belmont race track, Madison Square Garden, the Times Square section of Broadway and the subway stations. The picture comes to the Palace theatre tomorrow.

FORMER NATCHAUG SCHOOL BOY RECEIVES DEGREE FROM AMHERST

Dr. George Royal of Des Moines, Iowa, who was a Connecticut boy and passed his early days in Coventry, was honored this week by Amherst college, at the annual commencement, by having the degree of master of science conferred upon him. Dr. Royal is an outstanding figure in the Homeopathic school of medicine in America. Born in Connecticut, he began his practice of medicine in Rockville in 1882, then removed to Des Moines, where he has continued in active practice, meanwhile steadily advancing to state and national prominence in the Hahnemann associations.

Dr. Royal passed his boyhood days in Coventry, Conn. was graduated from Natchaug high school in Willimantic in 1874, where his classmates were the late Mrs. Minnie Pomeroy Cooley of New Haven, the late State's Attorney Hadlai A. Hull of New London county, and George A. Conant of Hartford, for many years clerk of the Hartford county superior court and now retired. Among his schoolmates at "old Natchaug" were the late Edwin B. Gager of the supreme court, John J. Jennings of Bristol, father of Hon. Judge Newell Jennings, Hon. Gilbert D. Lamb of New York and Franklin, Conn. and Allen B. Lincoln now of Ashford.

Conant, Hull and Royal went to Amherst: Gager, Jennings, Lamb and Lincoln to Yale. In Dr. Royal's class of '78 at Amherst were Hon. William A. King of Willimantic, also Conant and Hull; the late Professor Gardner of Smith college; and among his college friends with whom he has retained life-long association were Dr. E. N. Kingsbury of New Haven, William M. Ladd of Portland, Oregon, George W. Whipple of Boston, and Frank W. Stearns, best friend of President Coolidge.

Dr. Royal is listed in "Who's Who in America," also in "American Authors." He is recorded in politics as "Prohibitionist and Progressive"; in religion as Congregationalist—trustee of Plymouth church in Des Moines for 33 years, deacon there for 36 years and now deacon emeritus.

He was married in 1879 to Ella J. Kingsbury of Coventry, and they have three sons and one daughter, all college graduates and the sons holding special degrees. Mrs. Kingsbury is accompanying her husband on their present trip east.

Dr. Royal cherishes especially the memory of his school days at "old Natchaug" in Willimantic. He came from his home on North Coventry and worked for his tuition and board. Scotland and "Had" Hull from Lebanon, like Royal, were successively "janitors" at Natchaug, coming early in the morning to sweep out the big schoolhouse, and care for the fires in winter. These three young students who afterwards became distinguished, worked their way through college, and they were all willing to work and work hard to get ahead. For several years Dr. Royal worked on the farm summers and taught school winters. He taught in Coventry, To and, Vernon and East Hampton.

Dr. and Mrs. Royal have been occasional visitors in the east as the years have passed, Dr. Royal coming to attend conferences and conventions in his profession, in New York or Atlantic City, and his wife to visit among old-home relatives and friends. A very wide circle of friends are gratified by the high honor conferred on Dr. Royal by Amherst college. He will attend commencement exercises at Middlebury college, Vt., and then sail from Montreal for a six-week trip to Europe, to attend Homeopathic conferences in England, Germany and France, returning to Des Moines about August 10.

Pea Crop Is Threatened
(Special to The Bulletin)

STORRS, June 19.—Albert E. Wilkinson, vegetable specialist in the extension service of the Connecticut Agricultural college, has issued a special warning to county agents and farmers in Connecticut to take vigorous action to combat the pea aphis (a form of lice) which is causing great damage to all garden crops, but more particularly to the pea crop, in the southern part of the state, which is at present about ready for market.

This unusually bad infestation, the vegetable specialist stated, is occasioned by the cool wet weather of a month ago, and will be partially controlled by the present hot spell.

ARMY CHAPLAIN SPEAKER AT SIX CHURCH CONFERENCE

The seventieth conference of six churches was held at Newent church on Wednesday, and in spite of the intense heat one hundred and sixty six was the total of the roll call. Rev. W. J. Reynolds, pastor of the church, presided, and the platform was beautified with corn flowers, sweetwilliam and roses from the Pilgrim gardens, begonias and field daisies also being used. Frank E. Hyde the church organist for forty-seven years, played the opening prelude. Rev. D. L. Stone, of Hanover, led the responsive reading. Rev. W. C. Preutiss of Plainfield read the scripture from Ephesians 6 and offered prayer. Prayer was offered by Rev. Charles Peck of Broad Brook. The offering was received by Walter Hyde and Albert Bradlaw.

The address of the morning was delivered by Rev. M. W. Reynolds, a chaplain in the U. S. army stationed at Fort Slocum, New Rochelle, N. Y. He is the son of Rev. W. J. Reynolds, pastor of the church which entertained the conference.

From the theme "Soldiers, but Sons," the speaker gave an address, fairly bristling with outstanding feature of interest. Not hearsay, but first hand actual contact, with 15,000 young men every year, averaging 40, every day. "Many of these lads," he said, "are facing a new phase in life's great plan, some are feeling the reaction of war experiences, while many are splendid exemplifications of the fact that it is possible to be a soldier and a Christian."

The peculiar position of an army chaplain was set forth in the speaker's several narratives of actual experiences with young men, who perhaps never before were placed in a position where they couldn't go home if they wanted to.

Mr. Reynolds said that no preacher in a regular pastorate could ever have the varied opportunities and experiences of an army chaplain. To him they come without reserve. New faces every day, looking to their troop chaplain for council, advise and assistance. He is their moral adviser. When miles from home and friends, they look to him and sometimes overrun his office, rightly expecting and sure of receiving, that bit of timely solace and advice, inadequately supplied from any other source.

A delicious dinner was served by the women of the parish in the community hall, the grace being asked by Rev. Mr. Smith of Preston City. A very pleasant feature was the music played by the Lisbon orchestra during the dinner hour.

The afternoon session was opened with a devotional service led by Mr. Reynolds. The minutes of the Hanover conference were read by the scribe, Mrs. E. H. Hiscox, of Jewett City. She called the roll, 18 responding from Hanover, 14 from Pachaug, 26 Preston, 18 Plainfield, 3 Jewett City, 40 Lisbon and 42 visitors. A vote of thanks was given the women for the dinner, the speakers, organist, orchestra, for the flowers, and all who had helped make the conference so pleasureable. On the motion of Rev. Mr. Peck, it was voted to place in the minutes a testimonial of appreciation of the interest in the conference, and of the gracious, refined spirit of the late Rev. Henry T. Arnold, who for twenty years attended the conferences, and for a long time was its very efficient scribe.

It was suggested by Deac. Nathan Hall that the roll-call be taken at the dinner hour.

The address was given by Rev. Harding W. Gaylord, pastor of the Westfield Congregational church of Danielson.

From the subject, "The Struggle of the Spiritual," the speaker proceeded with a detailed explanation of the various interests and concerns of life, and their appeal as touched by the requirements of his very profitable subject.

Speaking in turn of, your job, the interest in pleasure's demands, the social call and the benefit of the church's financial advantages, he had much of profit to tell to the average man, as he faces the different phases of every day existence. In closing, two outstanding Christian keynotes were definitely inculcated. Before meeting men, meet God, and in church, worship programs, see to it that the opening devotional exercises are always sacred. Always remembering that the spiritual nature in man, is an element that will not be silent. The benediction was pronounced by Rev. W. J. Reynolds.

DEBENTURE PLAN CROPS UP AT TARIFF BILL HEARING

Controversy Was Revived by the National Grange as the Only Method by Which the Grower of Surplus Crops Could Obtain Tariff Benefits—L. J. Taber, Master of the Grange, Placed the Proposal Before the Senate Finance Sub-Committee Holding Hearings on the Agricultural Schedule of the Bill.

WASHINGTON, June 20.— (AP) — Less than 24 hours after congress quit work to await a report on the house tariff bill, the controversial export debenture plan was revived today by its original sponsor—the national grange—as the only method by which the grower of surplus crops could obtain tariff benefits.

L. J. Taber, master of the grange, placed the proposal before the senate finance subcommittee holding hearings on the agriculture schedule of the bill and said unless it were approved by the senate, "there would be a different story to tell."

He added he was optimistic over its prospects as a rider to the tariff measure, despite its overwhelming rejection by the house as a part of the farm bill.

The debenture twice was approved by the senate by a margin of 3 votes in the face of opposition by President Hoover.

One of its principal backers, Senator Norris, republican, Nebraska, already has proposed it in slightly different form as an amendment to the tariff measure.

Taber, told the subcommittee headed by Senator Watson of Indiana, the republican leader, that the struggle on the part of agriculture for tariff equality with other industries had been continuous but success never had been achieved. He submitted a list of approximately 150 farm commodities on which he asked rates higher than those provided in the measure.

Texas and Florida growers clashed with importers and representatives of American producers of tomatoes in Cuba and Mexico over the house increase to 3 cents a pound of the present one-half cent duty.

Importers of China clay told another subcommittee that existing rates were too high, while New England coated paper manufacturers urged a return to the last democratic tariff rates on this product.

Importers protested against the proposed 8 cents a hundred pounds rate on hydraulic cement, declaring there was no general demand for the duty. The few petitioning for help, they said, were overcapitalized.

A tariff on jute, now free listed, and elimination of the proposed increase in rates on flax straw and yarns and linen were advocated before the third subcommittee.

TWO SLEEPING CHILDREN VICTIMS OF POISON GAS

EL PASO, Texas, June 20—(AP)—Poison gas that swept over a residence district near two oil refineries and a natural gas plant here last night taking the lives of two sleeping children and overcoming more than a score of other persons was identified today as hydrogen sulphide.

While the nature of the death dealing gas was determined, its origin remained a mystery.

Dr. T. J. McCamant, Capital county health officer, reported to a joint meeting of the city council and county commissioners that an autopsy performed on the children showed that death was caused by hydrogen sulphide, a gas containing sulphur and having the odor of bad eggs.

The health officer said the gas was heavier than air because the two children who died, Ignacio Cenicerox, 3, and Carlolo Cenicerox, 8, were asleep on a cot while those who were overcome were either standing or on higher ground at the time.

Sixteen persons, most of them Mexicans, were taken to hospitals, but all but two had been released late today.

The impromptu court of inquiry convened by city and county officials summoned chemists and refinery and natural gas company officials in an effort to determine the origin of the gas and to attempt to prevent a recurrence.

SENTENCED FOR DISTURBING AUDIENCE IN A THEATRE

PAWTUCKET, R. I., June 20—(AP)—Frank P. McMurray, 27, and Mrs. Anna Lavigne, alias, Anna Kelly, 19, both of Providence, today were sentenced to six months each in jail when arraigned in district court on charges of having disturbed an audience in a theatre here, June 7. It was alleged that they released tear gas in the theatre.

The couple also was charged with simple assault on Louis E. Devoe, a patron of the theatre. On this charge, they were fined $100 and costs each. They appealed all of the charges and were held in $1300 bail each for the superior court.

On fugitive from justice warrants issued to the police of New Bedford, who charged the couple with a tear gas offense in that city, they were held in $2,000 bail each for hearing July 11.

According to police allegations the gas was released in the theatres for the purpose of injuring the business.

HOWARD AND BORAH TALKED OF NAVAL DISARMAMENT

WASHINGTON, June 20—(AP)—The subject of naval disarmament was discussed today at a call by Sir Esme Howard, the British ambassador, upon Chairman Borah of the senate foreign relations committee.

The British ambassador spent only about ten minutes with Senator Borah and neither had any announcement to make concerning their discussion.

Earlier further impetus had been given to the accelerating interest in the naval question by word from Premier Tanaka of Japan, that his country was prepared to support measures looking toward reduction of armaments. This reached the American government through the embassy in Tokyo.

NEW YORK, June 20—(AP)—Arrangements for a $50,000,000 one year credit to the German government were completed today by a group of American bankers acting in cooperation with a German syndicate.

Negotiations looking toward the extension of credit were begun two weeks ago immediately following the conclusion of the reparations conference in Paris.

The loan which amounts to approximately 300,000,000 marks, is understood to have been sought by Germany following its inability to market a 300,000,000 mark loan internally last month. The German public took up less than 178,000,000 marks of the issue.

The American bankers connected with the extension of credit are Dillon, Read and Co., Harris Forbes and Co., and Chase Securities Co. The German syndicate is composed of Mendelssohn and Co., the Deutsche Bank and the Reichskredit Gesellschaft. The rate which Germany will be required to pay was not disclosed.

Tom Mix's Missing $75,000 Located

Was Found Hidden in a Power Box Under One of the Circus Cars—Had Been Stolen.

CONCORD, N. H., June 20—(AP)—The bag containing cash and securities reported valued at $75,000, which Tom Mix, motion picture actor, told police at Portsmouth had been stolen from a private car in which he was traveling with the Sells-Floto circus, was found later today hidden in a power box under one of the circus cars.

The discovery was made by Deputy Chief Victor L. Moore, after, he said, Russell Everett, 22, negro porter on the circus train, had confessed to the theft. The sum of $4,000 was missing from the bag.

The theft was discovered earlier in the day shortly before the circus left Portsmouth for this city. Cal Freydanhl, valet to Mix, was taken into custody on suspicion but was released tonight after Everett's confession.

Portsmouth officers learned that a man attached to the circus had mailed a package to Peru, Ind., yesterday. They identified him as Everett and asked the Concord police to hold him. At first incriminated Frydendahl but later said he committed the theft himself, police said.

BLUE ARMY CONCENTRATING ON DEFENSE OF TRENTON

CAMP DIX, N. J., June 20—(AP)—The Blue army at Bordentown today concentrated on the defense of Trenton from the invading Red army which has landed a substantial force at Atlantic City and is marching northward to Philadelphia and New York.

Regulars of the first division of the United States army supplemented by several participating companies are taking part in the war maneuvers, which are held each year. The maneuvers started Monday. The engagements are staged on a minor scale and smaller forces are used than would be necessary under actual war conditions.

The first division comprises the Sixteenth, Eighteenth, Twenty-sixth and Twenty-eighth Infantries, the Sixth and Seventh Field Artillery and the First Engineers all under the command of Brig. Gen. Hugh A. Drum.

Opposing cavalry engaged in a short battle today and the observers of the Blue army succeeded in shooting down one of the enemy airplanes which had been moving overhead in an effort to shatter the squads of the blues. The ten airplanes which have been put to use at the field are in charge of Commander Lieutenant B. A. Bates.

The fighting today was concentrated on the north and south bank of the Rancocas creek. The Blues are endeavoring to prevent the Reds from executing a left flank, which would allow the Red army to get into two cities without molestation.

Staff officers are under the command of Colonel Morrow, chief of staff, of the First Division and Major Mayo is in charge of the division engineers.

The measurements this week are preparatory to the army maneuvers which will take place next month.

14 Of 43 Escaped Convicts Recaptured

Mass Break From Prison Farm Near Brazoria, Tex. Two of the Men Were Shot.

BRAZORIA, Tex., June 20.—(AP) — Armed posses ranging the Brazoria river bottoms behind packs of bloodhounds tonight were gradually rounding up the 43 convicts who escaped early today from the Clemons State prison farm near here.

Fourteen of the fugitives had been recaptured and officials expressed the belief that all eventually would be caught.

Two of the men were shot and slightly wounded before being taken prisoner.

The break was one of a long series of similar deliveries from Texas prison farms, which officials admit are poorly equipped against wholesale escapes.

Those participating in the break were regarded as hardened criminals. About 150 other convicts not classed as desperate refused to join in the break, although the way to freedom was opened for them.

Three guards taken captive by the escaping convicts were released unharmed about ten miles from the farm. Their weapons were stolen by the fugitives.

The break occurred about 2:15 a. m., led by Joe Williams, serving a five-year term for robbery. Williams approached a guard on duty in a frame barracks quartering 42 men.

"I want to get a little paper," Williams said. When the guard turned Williams covered him with a pistol, ordering the officer to hand over his gun.

When the guard started to argue, Robert Massey, serving three years for theft, came up behind and forced the guard to surrender.

Two other guards then were overpowered and the convicts fled from the farm, after opening the doors to another barracks and inviting the inmates to escape.

The break was not discovered for about an hour.

STABBED, BEAT AND ATTEMPTED TO SHOOT WIFE

WATERBURY, June 20—(AP)—A warrant charging assault with intent to kill was issued by Middlebury authorities, tonight, for Arthur Freeman, 46, of Middlebury, who stabbed, beat and attempted to shoot his wife, Mrs. Arthur Freeman, 38, Middlebury, and his mother-in-law, Mrs. Ella Brew, 56, in their home this morning. Freeman, who after the alleged attack, is believed to have taken some sort of poison, is a patient at the Waterbury hospital where his two victims were also taken.

Freeman pulled the trigger of his revolver five times but was using rim fire cartridges in his gun, which was a center fire type. None of the cartridges exploded.

Freeman then seized a sharpener and inflicted several stab wounds on the two women, whom he also struck with his fists. Mrs. Brew, who suffered from loss of blood is in the more serious condition, but hospital authorities believe neither woman is in a serious condition.

Doctors were unable to announce Freeman's chances for recovery because they were unable to learn what kind of poison the man had taken. His mouth was badly burned but at the hospital it was said that unless he had taken some strong acid, he would probably recover.

Freeman's act is believed to have been committed during a period of mental lapse caused by worry about domestic affairs. He has been separated from his wife for some time.

CONSIDERING NAMES FOR THE FEDERAL FARM BOARD

WASHINGTON, June 20—(AP)—President Hoover spent the first day of the congressional recess putting in full time at his office considering a variety of subjects brought to him by more than a dozen callers and by administration officials.

Additional names for consideration as members of the federal farm board were presented, chief among them that of U. B. Blalock, of Raleigh, N. C., manager of the North Carolina Cotton Growers' association. Mr. Blalock was presented by Representative Hammer, democrat, North Carolina.

Information at the white house was that the total number of names suggested for the eight places on the farm board exceeded 400. The first process will be to select the most outstanding and then begin the elimination from among these.

The president already has consulted several of his advisers as to the character of men needed for the task of administering the new farm law and the $500,000,000 revolving fund to be used in assisting cooperatives in orderly marketing.

During the week end he will consult Secretary Hyde, who is to be his guest on a fishing trip to the Rapidan river near Madison, Va., no appointments to the board will be made before next week but Mr. Hoover plans to move with all consistent rapidity as he desires to get the farm relief plan operating in time to affect this year's crops.

JUSTICE DEPT. COMPILING DRY LAW CASUALTY LIST

Agents Are at Work in Every State Obtaining Statistics of Officers Killed in Enforcing the Volstead Act—Also of the Violators or Suspected Violators Who Have Been Killed—Purpose is Defined as Merely to Gather Law Enforcement Information.

WASHINGTON, June 20.— (AP) — The casualty list of prohibition is being compiled by the department of justice.

In every state agents are listing both local and national officers killed in enforcing the Volstead act and also the violators or suspected violators of that law who have been killed.

This announcement today was preceded by word that the state department was to study the latest incident in the federal campaign against liquor smuggling along the Canadian border—the firing on an American customs patrol boat in the Detroit river.

The justice department said no special significance was attached to compilation of the fatalities. The purpose of the survey was defined as merely to gather law enforcement information. Much similar data already has been made available to the investigating commission appointed by President Hoover. The commission today continued its secret sessions formulating a program.

Secretary Stimson asked the treasury department for a report of the Detroit river shooting affray. While he did not indicate his purpose, government officials asserted if the nationality and identity of the rum boat and its crew were established there was a possibility that the American government might make representations to Canada asking their apprehension and delivery to the American authorities. Information reaching the government indicated the attacking craft had escaped into the Canadian waters of the river.

After the request of the secretary of state, Assistant Secretary Lowman of the treasury ordered the customs authorities at Detroit to report on the shooting. Lowman said he expected to receive and dispatch the report to Secretary Stimson tomorrow.

"The firing upon customs boats by bootleggers is nothing unusual," he declared.

State department officials said there had been no correspondence between the United States and Canada in connection with the recent concentrated drive of the American prohibition authorities in the Detroit river area against liquor smuggling.

It was indicated, in government circles, however, that in the event of shots fired by American prohibition craft landing on Canadian territory, that government undoubtedly would make inquiry of the state department concerning the situation. The Detroit river is about a mile wide and the international boundary runs through its center, the officials said, in pointing out that the situation was fraught with such possibilities.

At the state department it also was said the American government had anticipated the possibility of such a drive against rum smuggling as now is being made when its representatives requested Canada at the Ottawa conference last January to make the export of liquor to the United States illegal. Canada refused to grant this request.

Meanwhile announcement was made at the department that negotiations were progressing in the proposed arbitration between the United States and Canada of the sinking of the Canadian schooner I'm Alone last winter by a cost guard cutter in the gulf of Mexico. It was said that the American arbitrator would be selected soon by Secretary Stimson.

DR. SNOOK CONFESSED KILLING OF THEORA HIX

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 20—(AP)—The Ohio State Journal, tomorrow will say that Dr. James H. Snook has confessed that he killed Theora Hix, Ohio State university co-ed, on a rifle range here last Thursday night, it was revealed in a confession in the hands of John J. Chester, Jr., county prosecutor.

The deposed Ohio State university professor of veterinary medicine, the State Journal will say, signed a written confession that he struck Miss Hix over the head with a hammer, then severed her jugular vein with a pocket knife and left her body on the range grounds following a violent quarrel in his home.

According to the confession, Snook said that Miss Hix climaxed a period of trying to dictate his movements by threatening his wife and child with death if he dared to leave the city with his family for the week end. She then reached in her pocketbook where she sometimes carried a Derringer revolver Snook had previously given her and in the struggle "she was hit" over the head with a hammer "with intent to stun her" the confession as related in the Journal said.

Snook then severed here jugular vein, put the body on the ground, hurriedly gathered up his things and left the spot, the statement reveals. On his way home he threw the purse into the Scioto river.

The doctor expressed to Chester a desire to "get it over with quickly" and told Chester that he would plead guilty to a first degree indictment which Chester will seek before the grand jury tomorrow morning.

Chester says he believes that Snook may change his mind and fight in court for a penalty less than electrocution, which is the sentence in Ohio for murder without a recommendation of mercy by a jury.

SEVEN ANSONIA STUDENTS INJURED BY AN EXPLOSION

ANSONIA, June 20—(AP)—An explosion, believed to have been caused by mixing nitric and sulphuric acids together by mistake, today, caused injuries to seven students at the Ansonia high school. Two were badly burned about the face and were taken to this hospital, while five others were treated by Dr. John J. Thomas.

Those taken to the hospital were: Samuel Di Giogi and Lawrence Fair, both of Ansonia. The five who were treated at Dr. Thomas' office, did not reveal their names.

Di Giogi was emptying a flask of nitric acid into another bottle, that he thought contained the same liquid. As he poured there was a violent explosion, that shook the school, but caused no panic among the students at classes. It is believed that one of the flasks contained sulphuric acid, combining with nitric, formed an explosive agent. Two of the pupils who were treated by Dr. Thomas were girls. They suffered burns and cuts from flying glass.

STATE NORMAL SCHOOL GRADUATES 78 IN CLASS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 20—A class of 78, including 37 candidates for kindergarten-primary diplomas and 41 intermediate upper grade diploma candidates, was graduated from the Willimantic State Normal school at the closing exercises held in the Model Training school auditorium before a capacity audience at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon.

education. One of the more common of these developments is that referred to as the teachers college movement in which normal schools throughout the country have been changing their designation to teachers colleges and granting degrees. This has not always worked out for good results, Dr. Myers, stated, and he added that New England, which gave birth to the normal school in the United States, was probably fortunate in not being among the first to join this movement.

Dr. Myers said that the time is not far distant when Connecticut will take steps toward the realization of the fact that the adequate preparation of an

OVER THE COUNTER

"Get Your Summer Comforts at H. C. Murray's Boston Store."

Dear Dot:

I suppose you are quite in the same position as I am. No doubt you are planning a trip, or possibly a stay at some water resort this summer, but in the meantime—what about the home comforts?

I have been doing some shopping at Murray's Boston store and you can't imagine all the fine things I found to make home-life comfortable during the hot months.

A splendid assortment of Verandah and Lawn Furnishings is carried in the Boston Store Floor-Covering Department. There is a large variety of Hammocks and Gliders, ranging in price from $11.50 to $39.00. They are made up in well-upholstered cushions of pretty bright patterns—and they will wear for years.

I bought one of their Coolmor Porch Shades and what a delight it is. These shades are made so as to envelop the porch in a cool shadow, shutting out the torrid glare of the sun, yet letting in the refreshing air and breeze. Believe me there is genuine rest and comfort in the shade and seclusion of a Coolmor Porch Shade. They come in oil stain green, and for sizes from 3 to 10 feet they range in price from $3.00 to $11.00.

And what a smart appearance I have given my lawn with the simple addition of a set of Rustic Cedar Furniture. Rustic Cedar combines the delight of the forest home and brings the essence of cedar woods to the city and suburban home. All of the pieces are of rugged construction. The settees sell for $4.50, armchairs $2.69, table $4.50 and flower stands for $2.69.

Of course there are also other styles of verandah furniture in natural finishes priced from $3.50 to $6.50.

The last word in home-comfort is provided in the new Green and White Window Awnings which can now be purchased at the Boston Store for as low as $1.98.

I hardly feel it necessary to extol the virtues of these summer home-accessories. I think you already appreciate them but I want to tell you where you can get a real fine assortment at very reasonable prices—that is at Murray's Boston Store.

Devotedly, JANE.

JEWETT CITY

JUBILEE ENTERTAINMENT FOR REV. J. J. M'CABE

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, June 20—A jubilee entertainment by the children of St. Mary's school was given in honor of Rev. J. J. McCabe in Finn opera house on Thursday evening. The children were splendidly drilled in all the various drills, dances, music and play. There were over 100 lovely costumes of crepe paper made by the sisters, the bouquets being especially lovely. Each child represented a flower which was easily distinguished, so true to nature were the dresses. Although the pastor knew an entertainment was to be given, he knew nothing about the nature of it, all arrangements being made by Rev. Nicholas Caron and the sisters. The numbers were especially dedicated to him, and he was very appreciative of the honor extended by all of the large number who were concerned in this public tribute. The following program was presented:

Overture, orchestra; Spirit of the Angelus in Acadia; violin and piano, Gerard Masse, Howard Stebbins, Helen Casper, Roland Guillotte; Polish jubilee greetings; spiritual bouquet, primary grade; piano solo, Mrs. Smallwood; Last Days of Our Lady, act 1; Rag Doll dance; piano trio, Victoria Missaszek, Olga Zegzer, Beatrice Mathieu; Last Days of Our Lady, act 2; Qui et Non; recitation; violin solo, Emeiga Vincent; Scarf Fantastic, (drill), orchestra; piano duet, Margaret Mort, Rena Mailhotte; Jubilee Chorus, choir; piano solo, Stanley Koglol; address; Last Days of Our Lady, act 3; march, orchestra. The cast of characters follows: The Blessed Virgin, Aldea Chretien; St. Gabriel, Marguerite Shea; St. Ariel the Angel of Death, Mildred Vegiard; St. Martha, Lillian Lachapelle; St. Magdalen, Mary Pietrowski; Claudia Procula, Beatrice Derusha; Dymne (a lady in reduced circumstances), Eileen McKenna; Lydia, (her daughter), Viola McKenna; Miriam, the Blessed Virgin's handmaid, Helen Shea; Kleona, Daughter of Caiphas, Verna Ritchie; angels, Margaret Mort, Frances Morancy, Rena Casavant, Marie A. Lachapelle.

Rev. J. J. McCabe celebrates the 25th anniversary of his ordination to the priesthood with a solemn mass on Sunday. He has been in Jewett City 18 years, three years as curate and 15 years as pastor of the parish.

Those who were in Boston, Tuesday, when Leslie Doyle Carroll was graduated from Boston university with the degree of Bachelor of Business Administration were Mary Carroll and son Eugene, Miss Annie Driscoll, Mrs. M. E. Shea, and James Q. Dolan of Jewett City.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred B. Owen of Fort Wayne, Indiana, called on friends in town, Wednesday, enroute for Providence to visit Mr. Owen's father.

The local H. N. S. baseball team has a special attraction for Friday evening at Ashland park, when they meet the Norwich Elks, members of the Twilight league. The Jewett City boys were in the Norwich circuit last year, and although they did not enter the league this season, they firmly believe that they are as good as any team in the league. The Elks, being one of the outstanding contenders, will afford a good comparison with the local boys, giving local fans an opportunity to see just how the H. N. S. would stand in this year's race at Norwich.

The T. R. N. again swamped the Malek All Stars Wednesday at Ashland park. The lineup for the winners was Eddie Rys, c; Dicky Slonski and Frank Wotjim, p; Eugene Fontaine, 1b; Walter B., 2b; Joe Luty, 3b; Mike Mykietyn, ss; Stanley Luty, lf; Johnny Z., cf; Homer Fontaine, rf. The score was, T. R. N., 15, Malek's All Stars, 2. In the sixth Stanley Luty smashed out a homer into left field.

At 1 p. m., Wednesday, the mercury here stood at 92. Thursday at the same hour, the drop had been to 76. Intermittent light rain Thursday did little but wet the surface of the ground. Men hoeing during the afternoon in fields of corn, reported that the dust underneath the sprinkle was dry and hot.

A delegation from the local K. of C. will attend third degree work in Putnam, Sunday afternoon, at Cargill council, No. 64.

THROWING FIREBRANDS.

Without actually knowing who or what started it, the belief prevails that the fire which burned over the ten acres in West Greenwich this week was caused by a smoker throwing away a cigarette or some firebrand which kindled the underbrush.

It is an old story, one often repeated during the course of a year, and yet there are few who are ever caught and punished for their act. The Providence Journal believes that it is time to make an example of some of them, and that is an opinion not difficult to approve, but it is not always easy of accomplishment.

Those who use cigarettes or other smoking material have a direct responsibility to guard property against fire whenever they go into the fields or woods. It is equally incumbent upon those who are in the habit of throwing partly burned cigarettes from automobiles. The driver of an auto became conscience-stricken recently. He had carelessly thrown a cigarette butt to the side of the road and as he drove along he realized that he ought not to have done it. It bothered him so much that he turned the car around and retraced the three or four miles he had gone and felt greatly repaid for his return since he found that his cigarette had started a fire and he was in time to put it out without much difficulty. Had he given no thought to his act there would have been a loss piled up for someone, the possible calling out of fire fighters and no one would ever have known who was the cause of it.

It is because of the failure to think of the consequences of such simple acts as throwing a cigarette or a match away that many serious and costly fires are caused every year. The great majority of woodland fires could be prevented and they ought to be. Perhaps there would be an inclination to assume the responsibility for the fire prevention if more of those who heedlessly kindle such fires could be located and prosecuted. They give little thought to the land owners who must bear the loss, but it would be a decidedly different story if they were forced to stand any such loss or were made to foot the bill for the damage caused by their gross carelessness.

CONGRESS RECESSES.

Congress is now having a vacation. The house has so cared for its business that it will not be necessary for it to get back until way along in September, but the senate which has been delving into all sorts of things and encouraging delay must return soon after the middle of August, when there will be plenty of heat both in and out of the upper house.

The extra session has accomplished the farm relief legislation, the farm board authorized and the appropriation made with which it can do business when named. The house has revised the tariff but it remains for the senate to determine what its attitude is going to be in this respect. It had been hoped that by a close application to business that the work of the special session would be finished by this time. But hopes and accomplishments are often far apart.

While the session put a stop to the desire for changing the date when the national origins immigration legislation would become effective, it overcame the opposition which had existed for too long for reapportionment and enlarged it along with the taking of the next census. It took a long time for congress to respond to the constitutional requirement but it is to be hoped that there will never develop again a situation where a similar disregard for duty will prevail.

That congress is desirous of getting away from Washington during the summer is not surprising. Perhaps it considers that it also needs a rest, but it cannot fail to be realized that if different tactics had been employed the session might have been ended at this time and no return would be required until next December.

The accomplishments of the session thus far reveal the carrying out of the president's programme for the session. This concerns the farm relief measure without the debenture plan and after the recess there will come the tussle over the tariff for which a limited revision is asked.

MASSACHUSETT'S NEW LAW.

If you are going to do any driving in Massachusetts it will be well to bear in mind that a new law has gone into effect in that state in regard to the right of way at intersections. It isn't a law that is especially popular in Massachusetts but it has been adopted and it remains to be seen how it is going to work out.

Without doubt most of the drivers in that state know of the law either through the discussion at the time it was being advocated or through subsequent comments upon its provisions but there promises to be some interesting revelations for those who go into Massachusetts from other states and encounter driving in conformity with the new law.

Under the new law the machine that gets to an intersection first has the right of way. The intersection is defined at the line drawn from curb to curb and the car crossing that imaginary line first must not be molested. This does away with the requirement that cars coming from the right must be respected and bids fair to cause much confusion for the driver who is not acquainted with the change.

That there will be plenty of confusion on the part of drivers in coming to the decision as to which car entered the intersection first seems probable. It may mean more accidents or it may mean more Alphonse-Gaston acts. It will be surprising if it doesn't cause much uncertainty instead of relieving the difficulties at intersections.

The change means a departure from the uniform practice which prevails in so many states. It is considered that because of the confusion that may result that there will be a greater display of caution on the part of the automobile drivers. There is such a possibility, but on the other hand it would appear that there is the opportunity offered for less caution. This is made possible by the opportunity which any one of several drivers has for claiming that his car was the first in the intersection and therefore he had the right of way and took it. Just how such a matter is going to be decided in case of trouble is not indicated.

Massachusetts is trying out its new law. It will know better what it thinks of it in a few weeks, but in the meantime those entering the state should be on their guard at intersections.

KEEPING IT SANE.

It is less than two weeks to the Fourth of July. Already there are scattered evidences of the approach of the day which is generally celebrated by noise-making methods. In connection with the movement for the safe and sane Fourth there has also been an increasing effort for the restriction of the celebrating to the day itself. In some states legislation has been enacted prohibiting the sale of explosives and in others there have been restrictions placed upon the time and place for selling them. All of them are for the purpose of ending the dangerous conditions which prevailed in years past, for the protection of life, limb and property and for the curtailment of the practice of beginning the celebration a couple of weeks ahead of time and stringing it out until the supply is exhausted.

It is more and more being recognized that independence day can be adequately celebrated without resort to dangerous methods, that patriotism can be displayed without trying to see who can make the most noise. The benefits of the safe and sane movement stand forth prominently in the marked reduction in the number of persons killed, the fewer seriously injured and the reduction in the fire loss resulting from the celebration. All one has to do is to compare the difference between the effects of the present day celebrations and those of 25 to 40 years ago and it will have to be admitted that the change has been for the best.

From the manner in which the safe and sane movement has spread throughout the country it becomes evident that it has proved its worth. When first advanced it failed to receive a very enthusiastic reception, but as time has gone on it has been impossible to deny its merits and those who were first disposed to scoff are now found offering only words of praise.

RESTS WITH THE PUBLIC.

When Secretary Lamont of the commerce department spoke to the committee for protection of railway grade crossing and major highway intersections, which committee is acting for the national conference of street and highway safety, he pointed out that for last year the records show 2,563 persons were killed at grade crossings and 6,666 persons injured in accidents there. This was a gain of 197 in fatalities or 8.3 per cent. over 1927. Instead of paying more attention to the danger of these places the record shows there was less.

Secretary Lamont doesn't declare that the crossings must be removed. He knows that elimination must be limited for financial reasons, but he also knows that with care on the part of the highway users there can be a big reduction in both deaths and injuries. In this respect he says: "The problem of providing protection at grade crossings and major highway intersections is receiving attention by many of the city administrations, state highway departments, and railroad or utility commissions as well as by the carriers, but there is need for wider cooperation, especially on the part of the motoring public, to make these efforts effective."

If the motoring public will but give heed to the warnings that exist, to the danger which those signs indicate, and govern themselves as if they were seeking safety instead of taking chances, there would be a different record at the end of the year. When autos are sent over crossings as if the railroad had been abandoned there can be little wonder that there are accidents. It is the disregard for danger, the unwillingness to heed warnings or to obey flagmen that is the cause of too many of the accidents.

Let the spirit of "be careful" replace that of "don't care" among the motoring public and the results at crossings will be different.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: Which flag are you going to wave after the race?

Perhaps the panda which Kermit Roosevelt is bringing back from Tibet is the front part of pandemonium.

How long will it be before they are able to transfer some of the polar coolness to the heat sufferers in this vicinity by radio?

The fact that Americans left $190,000,000 in France last year doesn't mean that the sum will not be increased this year.

Let the house stick to its attitude on debenture and it will get no more chance tacked onto the tariff than in connection with the farm bill.

Those who were clamoring for warm dry weather last month are already complaining that it is too hot and we ought to have more rain.

JOY CHASERS

"It's nice to have it so cool," said Mrs. Simmons to her niece as she came in. "It is so hard doing anything worth while in the dog days."

"Well," sighed her niece as she poured herself some tea, "maybe you were through with those days some time ago, but I have just this minute finished with them. I have heard about dog days all my life, but I never suffered from them until this week. Did I ever say anything to you about Mrs. St. John?"

"Not that I know of," replied Mrs. Simmons. "What has she been doing?"

"You see, our suburb is just a wee town," her niece began. "And there are just small houses there for the most part. It was only last spring that they put up an apartment hotel and we looked at it with some disfavor.

"One apartment, however, was rented to Mrs. St. John, a woman I had heard people talk about in the very highest terms, so, of course, I wanted to meet her. I would have given anything to be able to bow to her when I met her on Maple street, but she isn't at all the kind of person you can scrape an acquaintance with by admiring her dog.

"You know how it is, lots of people begin a conversation with me by speaking about how cute Junior is, and I don't care a bit; I really like it. I have tried awfully hard, but I can't seem to acquire the stand-off look that keeps people from speaking to me about things that happen. Not that Mrs. St. John is disagreeable, not a bit of it, but she just knows how to keep everybody at arms' length, you know."

"Which is probably just the reason you wanted so much to know her," Mrs. Simmons laughed. "You don't often get so worked up."

"I had heard such lovely things about her," her niece explained. "You just don't know. Well, anyhow, luck was always against me, and I never was able to get even so much as a nod from the lady, try as I might. I even made believe I didn't care a rap about her, thinking she was the kind that might be intrigued by indifference, but it didn't work.

"So when I found her ugly but valuable dog wandering about that old fruit store on the other side of the tracks I grabbed at his leash and led him back home with me. Of course, he pulled back and made me all the trouble he could, but I knew he wanted to chase those cats over there and I wouldn't let go. I was all tired out when I got back to the house, but I was just jubilant, because I knew that Mrs. St. John would be so glad that she would be my friend for evermore.

"For some reason people are more pleased when you do things for their dogs than when you admire their children, and, anyhow, Mrs. St. John hasn't any children, so it had to be the dog I was good to."

"For goodness' sake!" exclaimed Mrs. Simmons. "How did you know so certainly that it was her dog?"

"Hadn't I watched the two of them taking walks day after day?" asked her niece triumphantly. "If you had smiled at that dog as often as I have, nobody could feel you. Besides, he had on his collar with her name on it, so that's that. When I got him back home, I telephoned over to the apartment house and was told that Mrs. St. John was away. That explained why the dog was lost. Of course, then, there was nothing for me to do but look after him, and, believe me, I've done nothing else for three days!"

"No wonder you look tired."

"He chewed up Junior's new shoes, ripped up the davenport, smashed six plates, ate enough for five people and howled all of every night. I had to keep reminding myself how glad Mrs. St. John ought to be, or I could not have stood for it.

"I was thankful George was out of town, for he would have thrown the dog out the window. Even if I had wanted to, I couldn't give up once I began, though I did get sleepy sitting up with him to keep him from howling. It made the neighbors awfully mad, and I did not blame them. I thought it was they who sent the police patrol after me."

"They didn't!"

"No, they didn't," echoed her niece ruefully. "But they all came out to see who was being arrested and there was an interesting mob on our front lawn all the morning."

"Do tell me what had happened," Mrs. Simmons urged. "Were there many police?"

"All of our force, and that means three," said her niece. "And with them was the fruit man after his dog. It seems that Mrs. St. John had moved to New York and given the dog to him."—Chicago News.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The First Burial Place of Norwich, Connecticut.

Mr. Editor: In connection with the first burial place of the town of Norwich, Connecticut, it is little wonder that each successive owner of the Post home lot on which the larger part of the burial place was located, knew so well about this burial ground.

The home lot of Thomas Post was one of the original home lots of the town and was laid out in November, 1659.

Mary Andrews, the first wife of Thomas Post, died in March, 1661, her death being the first recorded on the town records; there being no town burial place, so early in the settlement of the town, she was interred on her husband's home lot.

On December 16, 1661, it is recorded, "Memorandum. The Towne hath purchased a burying place of Thomas Post, vide a parcell of land eight rod one way and five and a half rod the other way in the home lott of the said Thomas Post towards the reare of his lott adjoining to the west side of goodman Gadgers lott, the said Thomas Post allowing a highway of six foot broad to the burying place."

In 1663, Thomas Post married a second wife, Rebecca Bruen of New London, by whom he had several children; he died in 1701, and the widow Rebecca was administratrix of his estate. In 1711, she had recorded on Norwich records, to her two daughters, Mary and Hannah Post, as part of their portion of their father's estate, one half of the home lot to each of them, stating that "the burying place is excepted and a way to it."

This Rebecca (Bruen) Post had lived on the home lot since 1663; her husband at least two of her children were buried there and she had seen the townspeople buried there through all these years.

When Mary and Hannah Post sold this home lot in 1715 to their brother Joseph Post, they knew all about the burial place, and in their deed they also excepted the burying ground and the way to it.

This brother died in 1749, and this part of the estate fell to his only son, Joseph Post, grandson of the original proprietor; he had been brought up here on the spot. He removed to Lebanon, Conn., and in 1775, sold the rear of the home lot to Ezekiel Barrett. It had been in the Post family for 116 years, and he deeds it out of the family, Joseph Post, distinctly makes the reservation: "Excluding about 32 rods of land within the bounds belonging to the town of Norwich being the old burying place with liberty of a pentway cross my other land from the Town street."

Ezekiel Barrett erected the house still standing; his first wife was Sarah Lathrop, whose ancestors were interred in the old burial place, and was therefore familiar with its history. And Ezekiel's mother was Mary Lathrop.

On the Gager part of the old burial place, Samuel Gager's stone, at least, was still standing.

For 63 years the Barretts lived here, four children being brought up on the place. Ezekiel Barrett died in February 1833, and in June 1838, these four children sold this part of their father's estate to Daniel L. Huntington, the deed stating that it "is the same and none but the same owned by Ezekiel Barrett in his lifetime and at the time of his death, subject to a passeway as existed at the time of the death of said Ezekiel Barrett reference being had to said passway and the usage thereof".

Here again was the restriction made by the Barrett heirs who well knew the burial place and many who were interred therein. The Gager stone was still standing on the Gager part.

Daniel L. Huntington who purchased the lot in 1838, was born in 1804, son of Daniel and Mary (Edgerton) Huntington, and a descendant of several of the early settlers.

The original Edgerton home lot adjoined the Post lot on the west; several of Mr. Huntington's ancestors were buried in the old plot, so he too knew its history when he bought the property in which the burial place was included.

Nothing so far appears to show that Mr. Huntington lived here himself, but rather, that he rented it, for in January 1853 when he sells the land and house to his niece, Mrs. Lyman W. Lee, he says, "the same being subject to a passway and passing and repassing from said road to a burying ground as mentioned in said Barrett's deed to me said Daniel L. Huntington."

It was the year after the purchase by the Lees, that the map of New London county was published, showing the old burial ground.

In 1872 when the Mason Monument association purchased the little plot on which the monument stands, the deed mentions the old burying ground and the right of way to it.

So through all the years each successive owner has had a personal interest in this first burial place of the town and has strictly observed that "Memorandum" on the town records. Here too, it must be remembered, rests Captain John Mason, one of the outstanding figures in the history of Connecticut, before the town of Norwich was settled.

Plans are being made for the celebration of the tercentenary of Connecticut, and surely the people of Norwich will want to do their part in preserving the last resting place of this military hero of earliest Connecticut history, and of the early settlers of Norwich who assisted him in achieving success.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 20—The senate has been called many things at times.

It used to be known jocularly, and as an element of the campaign to change it to a popularly elected body, as the "millionaires' club," for instance.

How its membership now totals up among the nation's plutocrats the Bystander does not know. It certainly includes several right wealthy folks, Jim Cousens of Michigan being a shining example.

Yet there is another name that might be applied to the senate after survey of the political origins of a good sized handful of its members. It justly could be styled the ex-governors' club. There are a score or so of former state chief executives now on the senate rolls.

Governors' Brigade

Look down the list: Johnson of California, Trammell of Florida, Townsend of Delaware, Robinson of Arkansas, Capper and Allen of Kansas, Goldsborough of Maryland, Walsh of Massachusetts, Oddie of Nevada, Keyes of New Hampshire, Edge of New Jersey, Frazier of North Dakota, Blease of South Carolina, Norbeck and McMaster of South Dakota, Swanson of Virginia, Warren and Kendrick of Wyoming, Blaine of Wisconsin.

By contrast, the house has little attraction for men who have once been governors. It contains a few, like Yates of Illinois, Morehead of Nebraska and Montague of Virginia.

For the most part, however, politicians who have reached the top of the heap at home and are looking about for larger worlds to conquer seem to look first at senate opportunities. That is, of course, unless they have had such outstanding state careers as to make them presidential nomination timber.

Two of the senate's ex-governor members had very brief service in that office before they joined up with the legislators in the north wing of the capitol in Washington.

Joe Robinson of Arkansas, democratic leader in the senate, took office as governor Jan. 16, 1913, and on the 28th of the same month was elected to the senate. He entered on his senate duties the following March.

Bingham of Connecticut was elected governor Nov. 4, 1924, and to the senate Dec. 16 of the same year, following the death of Senator Brandegee.

Dean of Everything

Warren of Wyoming is the dean of the senate ex-governor group, as he is of most other things in that body.

And he has the added distinction of having been a territorial governor twice in Wyoming by presidential appointments under Presidents Arthur and Harrison, followed by election as the first governor when the territory became a state.

Clearly, the nation seems to have found a use to make of former governors aside from putting up their names as favorite sons for presidential honors.

And their post-governorship employment in the senate should increase the intimate knowledge in that body of conditions in the several states.

Stories That Recall Others

A Contingency

As the collection plate in church approached, Howard found himself with a $1 bill, which had been thrust into his hand by his mother. The nearby worshippers heard his apprehensive whisper:

"But what if they haven't got change for $1, mother?"

Newspaper Stuff

At a country store a man known to all came in one day, picked up the newspaper and was looking intently at it as though reading. The paper was upside down. Everyone knew that he could not read a word but just for fun someone asked:

"What's the news, Jake?"

"Been a big wreck everything's upside down!"

YOUR HEALTH

Golf Rules For The Middle-Aged Business Man

By Elmer Hess, M. D., Erie, Pa.

Usually the middle-aged business man, in the spring of the year, turns his attention to the golf links or to some other form of physical exercise. Even if he has played golf the previous summer, usually he has led a sedentary life during the winter. Very often he knows nothing of whether his heart and lungs can stand the stress of the exercise. Almost every day in the summer time the newspapers give an account of some elderly chap dropping dead on the golf links from sun stroke or heart failure, to say nothing of the other men who, after thirty-six holes of golf, go home exhausted, eat a hearty meal and either die of acute dilatation of the stomach or are sick in bed for a long time with the so-called popular "breakdown." No man can hibernate for four or five months during the winter season and then expect to go out and play golf with men much younger and more active than himself.

One feature of the game against which the middle-aged man should be warned is the nineteenth hole. Too many men will play the nineteenth hole at the end of every nine holes. This peps them up, of course, for the next nine holes, but the stimulation is always followed by a long period of depression and is undoubtedly false.

Now, what should a man of forty-five or over do before he goes out on the links to play golf? In the first place, he should have a physical inventory made by going to a competent medical adviser and having his heart and lungs gone over carefully; his urine examined and his blood pressure taken. Modern business and the worries and strains incident thereto wears out more hearts and kidneys than we have any idea of.

If a man over forty-five is physically fit, he should start out in the spring and play with men his own age and in about the same physical condition as himself. He should take it easy, play slowly, not hurry up the grades, nor indulge in more than nine holes for the first week or so. Gradually, as his muscles improve in tone and his heart and vascular system becomes accustomed to the added strain, he may increase the number of holes that he plays. He should not attempt to become highly proficient at a game that can be mastered only by youth, with constant practice, nor should he indulge in explosions of temper. These things only decrease very materially the benefits that he will derive from the exercise.

When he comes in after the game, a warm shower followed by a cool one will refresh him and tone up and stimulate his whole body. If he sits in the clubhouse and imbibes bootleg alcohol or home-made gin, he will undo all of the good that he may have derived from the afternoon in the sun and walking in the open air. From these come all of the physical benefits that golf gives. If he comes in from his game tired, is unable to eat his evening meal and rises from his bed the following morning peptless, his golf is doing him harm, and he should again consult his physician for a check-up, in an endeavor to ascertain the why of these feelings.

CHILD TRAINING

Danger in Making Threats

Edith Lochridge Reid

Billy did not come in until dark one evening.

"Billy, the next time you stay out after dark, you shall spend the following evening in bed," threatened his mother.

It was not long before Billy did stay out after dark. He had become so interested in a ball game on the vacant lot a few blocks away from home that he forgot the time.

"Tomorrow night," his mother said, "you will go to bed as soon as you have finished your supper. Now remember."

So the next evening when Billy was being served his dessert his mother reminded him that as soon as he had finished he was to go to bed. He objected and coaxed but Mother was holding out firmly when some friends from another town drove up. There was a boy just Billy's age. These friends had often entertained Billy in their home and it would never do to put him to bed and leave his visiting chum to pass the evening alone.

Consequently Billy was allowed to stay up, and not only that, but he went over to the ball ground again and stayed even later than the previous evening. And was anything done about it? Not a thing. The parents were having a good time and the children were forgotten until they reappeared.

It is apparent, then, that the next time Billy is threatened he will be quite unmoved, for he will hope that something will turn up to rescue him from the penalty.

Gertrude was noted for her carelessness in losing her handkerchiefs, mittens, pencils and other belongings that are easily misplaced by an active child. The truth was that her mother fussed about these losses without doing anything to help Gertrude correct the habit. The child had no pockets in her dresses, and her coat pocket was too shallow for mittens, so these should have been fastened together in some way by snappers or tape in order that she could care for them at school. Her pencil could have been tied to her notebook.

However, no such helpful devices were prepared for her, and Gertrude continued to be most unfortunate in losing things, so her mother finally said that the next time she lost anything she couldn't play with her dolly for a whole month.

Now it can readily be seen that this punishment, aside from being out of proportion and unsuited to the offense, was a threat that showed the mother's lack of understanding. In her impatience to cure her of carelessness she unwisely threatened her little daughter with what she felt was a real penalty that ought to bring quick results.

Within a few days Gertrude lost her new pencil. In her anxiety not to let Mother know and not to have Teacher's disapproval when class time came, Gertrude took a pencil from another girl's desk. To add to the difficulty, she denied that the pencil was stolen.

It was a pitiable situation. Controlled by fear, the child had been driven from mere carelessness to stealing and lying. Her mother might easily have said: "Now let's see if you can't go a whole day without losing your things." Then this time could have been extended to three days or a week, always with the sympathy of Mother displayed at each report. Gertrude would then have felt safe in confessing when she did make a mistake or experience a loss. But as it was Mother's effort—a threat—was the rock upon which she was wrecked.

To Billy the threat had proved unreliable, to Gertrude it had proved tragic. In neither case was any constructive result obtained, nor will a threat ever solve a problem of discipline satisfactorily. Threats nearly always result in complications rather than in character-building.

Asia Joins the Beauty Parade

"Thou shalt find thy happiness on earth through prayer, love and perfume."

Thus commands the Koran to all true believers.

Cosmetic concerns of Christian countries, including the United States, are devoutly eager to have Moslems fulfill the exhortation as it relates to perfumes and, of course, use their products. Super-salesmen, samples, advertising, pretty packages—all the tricks of Western trade line up back of the Mohammedan Bible, the Koran.

"Discrimination in favor of Moslems, however, is not countenanced. All the women of all the races and religions of Asia are welcomed to join the beauty parade," says a bulletin from the Washington D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"The United States gets its share of the business. American exports of perfumes and toilet preparations have risen in value to $8,820,000 per year. This represents an increase of 1,900 per cent over 1910 exports. After Europe, Asia is our next best customer.

"Although dental creams, face powder, and rouge bulk large in American cosmetic exports to the Far East, beautification in the Orient is by no means limited to a save-the-face-and-you-save-all campaign. The Philippine Islands, for example, are the United States' second best customer for toilet soap, third best for perfume, and second best as buyers of talcum and other powders.

"The secrets of make-up are mostly familiar facts of history to Chinese women. The famous beauties of Cathay employed many of the modern Ye Beauty Shop's arts. They used the rose pencil rouge, face cream and hair ointment with such skill that their charms 'caused the moon to hide its face and the very flowers to feel shame.' That was in the days when a British woman's idea of cosmetics was a peach-and-cream coal of white clay paint.

"Chinese women now follow better beauty tools. They have given up the charcoal willow twig of long maidens for the modern eye brow pencil, rejected the silk rouge pad for the modern compact, banished stark tallow creams for improved cold and vanishing creams, and turned from musk and sandalwood to more delicate perfumes (although the oriental countries prefer much stronger perfumes than please the occidental nations). Unlike many other oriental states China now supplies its cosmetic trade chiefly by home manufacture.

"Trade in certain cosmetic products is dominated (with exceptions) by different countries selling in the Far East. French eau-de-cologne and higher priced perfumes usually rule those particular roosts. British and German cheap perfumes, and British face creams and toilet soaps make large sales. The United States, probably by virtue of the world-wide respect for its dentists and dental schools, commands the dentrifice market. Its powder compacts also enjoy wide sales."

Little Talks on Thrift

Well Ordered Vacation Excellent Example of Health Thrift

This is the beginning of the summer vacation period and, therefore, a proper time for all of us to do some thinking on the fact that thrift in health matters is more important than thrift in money matters.

It has only been within recent years that the public generally has begun to understand that thrift means much more than saving money. But if it is thrifty to save money, is it not more thrifty to conserve a possession that is beyond price and value, namely, good health?

A few days ago there was completed a remarkable survey of health conditions in the city of New York. The health facts discovered there may, with more or less accuracy, be recorded as typical of the entire country, and are, therefore, of general public value. Here are some of the facts regarding health conditions in the nation's largest city: From 125,000 to 200,000 persons are continually sick in bed and from 250,000 to 800,000 more are constantly ill; of the 70,000 deaths per year, a very large percentage are from sickness that might have been prevented or postponed; the total annual outlay for the care of disease is $150,000,000; the annual loss in wages due to illness is $75,000,000; amount spent annually in the prevention of ill-health, $8,500,000.

We hear much about losses incurred by the public through fraudulent or unsound investments. Needless and preventable losses of time and money through ill-health constitute an even heavier economic drain on the country.

Health thrift is more important than money thrift because without money we still can work and win, but without health we are helpless and advancement is practically impossible.

Fortunately, more thought constantly is being given to thrift of health. It was recently announced that the Rockefeller Foundation last year spent more than $21,000,000 in practical and experimental work, while within recent years it has spent $144,000,000 for the same noble purpose.

Vacations are taken for the purpose of conserving one's health. When they are so planned and carried out as to be helpful along these lines, they are by no means a waste of time—they are, quite to the contrary, a good example of thrift.—By S. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.

Simply breathing the vapors of eucalyptus and certain other valuable antiseptic healing oils has proven the effective way to reach these raw, tender, catarrhal affected spots so deeply hidden their liquids and sprays never get to them.

All you do is heat a spoonful of the "DEO" preparation in a tin bag or cup. Then inhale the soothing, healing vapor, which thereby reaches the innermost recesses of the respiratory system, destroys germs and promotes rapid healing of all inflamed membranes.

Immediately the head clears, you breathe freely. Soon nasty throat "droppings," hawking, spitting, foul breath will cease, and all traces of vile catarrh will vanish almost before you realize it! "DEO" (Dennis' Eucalyptus Ointment) is guaranteed to give instant relief to catarrh, coughs, colds, asthma, etc.—or your money will be refunded—50c. Insist upon "DEO" at any good druggist.

HEATER FACILITATES COLD ENGINE STARTING

SCHENECTADY, N. Y. (AP)—Draining oil from airplane engines and tanks so it may be heated before the engine is started may be eliminated with use of a new electrical heating device announced by the General Electric company.

The device, consisting of two units, will fit into the oil tank of an airplane through the filter cap and operates from the regular electric light circuit. Three degrees or heat intensity, low, intermediate or high, may be used.

Starting of airplane engines in cold weather when oil is stiff becomes difficult, and operators using unheated hangars have adopted the practice of draining oil at night and warming it before it is poured back into the tank or engine in the morning.

BRITISH TO EXHIBIT SUBMARINE AIRPLANE

LONDON. (AP)—A small airplane which can be transported in a submarine will be shown to the public for the first time by the British air ministry at the International Aero exhibition here, according to advance reports of the show.

Tacticians point out that a plane which is so constructed that it will fit into a submersible fighting ship can be transported to any desired spot with complete secrecy and will be of great value in cooperating with the fleet.

RELIEF FROM CURSE OF CONSTIPATION

A Battle Creek physician says, "Constipation is responsible for more misery than any other cause."

But immediate relief has been found. A tablet called Rexall Orderlies has been discovered. This tablet attracts water from the system into the lazy, dry, evacuating bowel called the colon. The water loosens the dry food waste and causes a gentle, thorough, natural movement without forming a habit or ever increasing the dose.

Stop suffering from constipation. Jhew a Rexall Orderlie at night. Next day bright. Get 24 for 25c today at the nearest Rexall or Liggett Drug Store.

REMEMBER 'WAY BACK WHEN - - -?

When a tire that lasted even 3,500 miles was a curiosity? (You can still buy that short-distance kind if you pay little enough.)

How times change! Now we're exhibiting a new type tire—Goodyear's 30th anniversary masterpiece, the DOUBLE EAGLE — that can reasonably be expected to last as long as a man usually keeps his car.

And they figure the odds at 1,000 to 1 against even a puncture, let alone blowouts!

Only Goodyear, of course, is building such a Super-tire. And it's just too good to be needed by most motorists.

But it's interesting to look at—and talk about. And that's why we say "Come in and see it." No obligation, of course. It's a pleasure to show this Super-example of Goodyear endurance and beauty.

Identification:
On the sidewall of this tire you will find in silver silhouette the Double Eagle world mark of superfine quality and value, symbol of that Goodyear union of seasoned experience and youthful progress which has produced the tire of tires.

MACHINES SPREAD AMERICAN GOODS AND WAYS

"American ways and American ideas which have been spread through such diverse products as automobiles and breakfast foods, motion pictures and toys, typewriters and jazz bands, now are being disseminated in a new way: By the coin-operated, automatic salesman," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic Society.

"The rapid growth in the manufacture of the devices that, at the drop of a coin, deliver a package, perform a service, or provide entertainment, has been astounding," continues the bulletin. "In the eight years between 1919 and 1927 the value of the machines produced yearly in the United States increased 328 per cent, and it is estimated that during the present year it will exceed $10,000,000. Approximately one-tenth of the output is exported to a score or more of foreign countries in all of the continents.

"To their surprise officials of the United States department of commerce have just discovered that Siam is taking much more than its supposed share of the exports. This monarchy in the hot, steamy southeast corner of Asia, not only is leading all the countries of its continent in importing American coin-operated machines, but is the sixth largest customer among all countries.

"In some out-of-the-way countries, the sheer novelty of American machines has sold them. In Nepal, just outside the northeast corner of India, American trade agents were amazed not long ago to see several shining cash registers used as ornaments in niches along the grand staircase of a palace. Although the reasons for the large import of automatic vending machines by Siam has not yet been found out, it is not believed that they are serving as decorations. It is believed to be more likely that they are selling sweetmeats and weighing the Siamese belles and beaus in the grounds and pavilions at religious fairs, and among the crowds that frequent temples and shrines.

"In a number of cases foreign purchasers have sent specifications to American manufacturers calling for the design of machines that will vend their peculiar products. Perhaps it is not too much to expect that soon machines in Siam and other southeastern Asiatic countries will be selling for the equivalent of a nickel or a dime, 'the makings' for betel-nut chewers, just as thousands of devices are selling cigarettes, tobacco, and matches in Europe and America.

"Automatic selling has made rapid strides since the World war. Chewing gum and sweet chocolate cakes represented most of the machine sales ten years ago. Nowadays, in the largest cities, one may buy through machines a large number of commodities, including handkerchiefs, shoe-strings, tooth brushes and seats, razor blades, cables and even groceries. Numerous services are made available by dropping coins in slots. At railway and bus stations one may obtain a locker for his bag by dropping a coin in a slot. In washrooms he may purchase soap and the use of a towel in a similar way, or may have his shoes automatically shined. In restaurants he may buy an entire meal automatically, and at automatic soda fountains can quench his thirst by thrusting a coin into a small slot. Stamp vending machines have invaded even the smaller towns, as have automatic scales, automatic pianos, and other musical devices. The latest automatic entertainment apparatus is a powerful radio set which will go into operation for a limited time when a coin is dropped into its maw. Perhaps the ultimate in automatic salesmanship is the talking vending machine. The device not only delivers your purchase, but accompanies it with a cheery 'Thank you.'

"Several foreign countries are competing with the United States in the manufacture of coin-operated machines, notably Great Britain, Germany and Denmark. Despite this competition, numerous machines are sold in these countries. Great Britain is the best customer although there is a special handicap in that country to the spread of coin-operated machines, because of the lack of a decimal coinage. American manufacturers have had to make a special study of the coins of the countries to which their goods are delivered, and adapt their mechanisms to the local conditions."

STANKEWICH FLEES AFTER SETTING FIRE TO HIS HOUSE AND BARN

Described as a raving maniac, Steve Stankewich, about 50, at present living in a boarding house in Hallville, but formerly with his family in Preston City, returned to his home there about 2 o'clock Thursday evening and set fire to his house, a one and a half story dwelling, and a barn in which farming implements and two cattle were contained. The barn with its contents and a valuable cow and heifer, were destroyed, while the house was saved by neighbors, who were attracted to the scene.

Stankewich, who is said to have been divorced from his wife about four weeks ago, came to the house, while the family, two boys, a daughter, and his wife, were asleep. Whooping it up like an Indian doing a war dance, Stankewich held forth for some time, running back and forth in the yard and around the house, it was stated. Finally he came to the door and demanded entrance, using his fists and kicking the door, but none of the family would stir. Receiving no answer to his summons Stankewich went to a window on the east side, and breaking it in, rushed through the house, up into the second story. There he set fire to a quantity of rubbish. This done, he returned downstairs and breaking another window on the west side of the house, disappeared into the night.

The oldest boy, securing a pail of water, dashed up stairs and after squelching the flames came out into the yard and saw his father disappearing around the corner of the house, running in the direction of the barn, which is located 100 yards away. A short time later the boy saw flames shooting out of the doors and hay loft, but being afraid that his father would attack him he did not go near it. He sent his younger brother to a neighbor's to secure help and a little later his father returned. He said he tried to halt his father by throwing big sticks of wood at him, but "I don't know what he seemed to be made of," he still continued to come forward, the boy declared.

"I don't know what was the matter with him," and "if I had known he was going to do such a thing I would have used my fists on him," he said afterwards. Stankewich returned to the house the second time for the purpose of setting fire to it again, as he was successful in doing. By this time the fire had gained considerable headway in the barn and several autoists using the Preston road noticing the blaze came to the scene and with the help of neighbors put out the fire in the house the second time. The blaze centered around the chimney where pails of water were thrown and need to good advantage. While the neighbors were playing the part of the Good Samaritans the three children with their mother and a number of bystanders had removed practically all of the furniture from the house.

While Stankewich was playing the part of a firebug, a Norwich man seeing the flames shooting into the sky went to the house and knocked on the door in an effort to awaken the family. In so doing Stankewich came around the corner, with his arms high in the air and his breath smelling very strongly of liquor, inquired, "What are you doing here?" "Isn't there anyone in the house?" the Norwich man asked. Stankewich at the time had a bundle of paper in his hands and asked the Norwich man if he had a match. The latter, noticing the condition of Stankewich, and mulling over the query for a match, surmised that all was not well.

Returning to his car he rushed for help and met three men running towards the house with the young Stankewich boy, who had been sent for assistance. In the meantime Stankewich had set fire to the house the second time and disappeared into the woods nearby, going in the direction of the Preston City road, which is located about a half mile distant. The house is situated about three miles from the city line on a lonely wood road.

A call was sent in to the state police barracks at Groton and State Troopers King and McKenzie were detailed on the case. These two officers with Sergeant Matthew Delaney, went to the house and scoured the surrounding woods for Stankewich, but up to 2 o'clock this (Friday) morning he had not been apprehended.

It is said that Stankewich has been divorced from his wife about four weeks and had not been living with the familily, having been staying at a boarding house in Hallville.

Only a small amount of damage was done to the house, this being around the chimney in the second story.

RESERVES DECISION IN PARSONS DIVORCE SUIT

Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court here Thursday morning took the papers and reserved decision in the suit for divorce brought by Lena Thurlow Parsons of Taftville against Thomas Parsons of Bristol, who is contesting the suit. The defendant's testimony was heard Thursday, he being the only witness for the defense and making the claim that the evidence against him is a frame-up.

Mrs. Parsons seeks a divorce, alimony and change of name, alleging a statutory offense committed by her husband in Bristol on the night of Sept. 24, 1927, as the ground for divorce.

Parsons, who is represented by Attorney Josiah Greenstein, testified that he is 38 and was employed by the New Departure company at Bristol and lived with his mother in Plainville with his twin sons, the children of his first wife. One day he came home and found that his wife had left, but he located her at her mother's and she told him she was tired of living with him as he was out of work at the time.

Parsons testified to a joint account which was kept in the Chelsea Savings bank, amounting to about $2,000, which his wife had transferred to her own account after the separation. In a suit he brought against his wife he obtained judgment for one-half, about $1,000, and later his wife attached this in the divorce suit.

He admitted he had a habit of picking up girls and giving them rides in his automobile and he made particular refernce to the girl named Mary Anderson with whom, according to his wife's testimony, she found him in an automobile on a country road in Bristol. He said the girl hailed him at a street crossing and as they were riding along she said it was too cold to ride, but she knew a good place to park and they drove off the main highway and stopped the car. She got out, he said, and then they got into the back seat where a "petting party" developed.

As to the detectives and his wife turning a flashlight on him, he said, when this happened the Anderson girl threw her arms around his neck. Parsons testified that he wanted the detective to take him and the Anderson girl to police headquarters, but the detective told him to "beat it" and he did so. The Anderson girl disappeared.

Professor Erb opened the recital with a group of four numbers which included: Prelude in B-Minor, (Bach); Cantilene in A-minor, (Salome); The Swan, (Saint-Saens); Sursum Corda, dedicated to J. L. E., (Diggle).

Rev. Mr. Abbott was heard twice during the evening and was in excellent voice, his first selection being "O God, Have Mercy," from Mendelssohn and the second Rodney's "Calvary," which was a request number.

Prof. Erb gave a very effective rendering of two movements, intermezzo and fugue, from Rheinberger's Pastoral Sonata, op. 88.

The recital closed with a group of four numbers, the last of which was a composition by the organist himself. These were: At Evening, (Kinder); Communion in A-minor, (Batiste); Andante Cantabile from string quartet, (Tschaikowsky); Anniversary March in F (Erb).

(By Alan J. Gould, Associated Press Sports Editor)

NEW LONDON, June 20—(AP)—Blue skies disappeared today behind storm clouds but victory for the blue of Yale nevertheless is forecast, rain or shine, in tomorrow's renewal of the seventy seven year old rowing feud with the crimson of Harvard.

Even bluff, good natured Ed Brown, veteran Harvard coach, conceded tonight that "Yale should be the favorite, on the records," for the four mile pull up the Thames river that brings the regatta to a climax tomorrow evening. Yet, he added, in a statement to The Associated Press:

"Don't think for a minute that we concede anything except that Yale is good. Our varsity is better, much better than last year. It has come along very well. I expect Captain Clark's crew to give a good account of itself all the way; if it is up with Yale at the two-mile mark, it's chances to win will be good."

Brown's frank statement, in contrast with the taciturn silence of Yale's able coach, Ed Leader, is no more optimistic than the views of experts who consider that while Yale's prospects are bright, all things considered, Harvard unquestionably has the stamina, the experience and the courage to make it a boat race. If the river is rough, as is possible in view of stormy forecasts, Harvard's power may accomplish the same kind of an upset it did two years ago. Under any circumstances, however, no such rout as Yale's ten lengths triumph of 1928 is anticipated by any one in either camp.

So far as the international rowing championship situation is concerned, the struggle of blue and crimson tomorrow banks only as a semi-final to the main go that will be fought out next Monday on the Hudson river at Poughkeepsie. Early in the season Yale bowed to Columbia while Harvard, among others, trailed Cornell during the spring short distance campaign. Titular honors, therefore, will go without dispute to the Poughkeepsie winner, which in recent years has frequently been obliged to share some of the spotlight with Yale.

Whatever this ancient struggle lacks this year in championship significance, however, is offset by the rivalry that became rooted in 1852 and has blossomed in many a brilliant race since that time. This is the sixty-second dual encounter but all told, the records reveal that the Crimson and Blue have rowed each other sixty-six times, whether it was in barges, four-oared gigs or eight-oared cedar shells.

Since the war and especially since 1923, when Ed Leader came out of the west to reorganize the Eli rowing system, Yale has dominated the Thames, where all the races since 1878, with two exceptions, have been rowed. The Blue has won seven of the last eight varsity duels. Over the same upstream course that will be rowed tomorrow, the Elis set the record of 20 minutes, 14 2-4 seconds, in 1926.

Stroked by A. E. Palmer, of Cleveland, Yale concedes little to Harvard except in weight. Both squads have lost considerable poundage under the terrific heat, often as much as four pounds a man in a light workout, but Harvard's varsity eight, captained by the 205-pound "Tim" Clark, averages nearly seven pounds heavier. In a gruelling finish or rough water, this weight may be a decisive factor.

Regardless of the weather and its threat of dampening the day's enthusiasm and colorful aspects, close to 50,000 are expected to see the regatta from hundreds of yachts, large and small, along the course or from vantage points of the picturesque course stretching from the railroad bridge to Bartlett's cove.

The storm that blew up this morning out of the northeast, putting an abrupt end to the torrid spell that has handicapped training for the past fortnight, also caused a hasty council on plans for the two morning races between freshman and junior varsity crews. Both are scheduled over the middle two miles of the four mile varsity course, upstream, the first to be run off at 10 a. m. (eastern daylight time). But if there is too stiff breeze backing the tide tomorrow, the races probably will be run downstream. The varsity race is to be rowed upstream, at 7 p. m. regardless of conditions.

While Harvard's chief hopes are pined upon its varsity, the scrappy Crimson freshman eight is conceded a good chance to upset the Eli yearlings in the opening race. Yale's junior varsity, however, is a pronounced favorite in the other preliminary event.

BIG CROWD EXPECTED AT MARTIN-DAVID GAME

Sunday afternoon the fast House of David baseball club clashes with the Velvetmen at the J. B. Martin grounds. The House of David baseball team is unique, odd, novel, strange, in everything. Besides they can play ball. The House of David game is not only creating local interest but hundreds of out of town fans will come here when the barberless pill-smackers tackle our gang. Father, mother, sister, brother and the neighbors' children will be in the ball yard when the House of David nine appears here.

Those shaveless athletes from the strange House of David religious colony are smashing attendance records everywhere and a banner crowd is looked for when they appear here. The "Whiskers" always attract camera fiends, curiosity fanciers and throngs of women and children as well as baseball fans.

The House of David players are vegetarians, therefore it is safe to predict that the butchers won't patronize them when they appear here Sunday afternoon.

This club gives everything in baseball, plus the most interesting exhibition of humans since the barber trade was established. As one sporting editor once described them, a novelty side show and good baseball all under one tent.

All roads on Sunday lead to the J. B. Martin grounds, one of the best attractions of the season.

CRUCIAL SERIES STARTS AT NEW YORK TODAY

NEW YORK, June 20—(AP)—The American league's first crucial series of the 1929 campaign opens at the Yankee stadium tomorrow when the New York Yankees, defending world's champions, clash with Connie Mack's fast-flying Philadelphia Athletics in the first two games of a five-game series crowded into three days.

Although the season is barely one-third over, the series is of the utmost importance for it should go far towards determining whether the Athletics' machine is as invincible as it has appeared to be during the first two months of the current campaign.

The A's idle today as were the Yanks, will invade the stadium with a lead of 7 1-2 games over the second place champions. Even should the Yankees make a clean sweep, the A's still would lead by two and a half games and few if any of the Yanks supporters believe Huggins' men can accomplish that feat. Not when Mack can throw such pitchers as Grove, Walberg, Rommel, Quinn, Earnshaw, Orwoll and Ehmke into the breach.

Against this array of flingers, Huggins will have to counter with Pennock, Hoyt, Pipgras, Heimach and Wells with Zachary and Weaver Moore in reserve.

BRAVES RALLY IN 3RD TO BEAT OUT DODGERS

BOSTON, June 20.—(AP)—A rally in the third for four runs enabled the Boston Braves to win a close game from Brooklyn here today, 4 to 2. The victory, the third straight for the home team in the series, enabled the Braves to move into sixth place. Maguire's two-bagger was the only hit off Watson Clark in Boston's big inning, but Brooklyn committed two errors and Clark passed one man and permitted two sacrifices.

Susie Says

Remember years ago when you and I were in school how anxious we were about this time of year?

Our anxiety was caused by the uncertainty of whether we would be promoted or not.

Remember how on the last day of school we'd put on our best bib and tucker for the simple little exercises that marked the closing of school?

And what a relief it was when those promotion cards were passed out and we got ours. Folks, those were good days at that.

The youngster today, I imagine, feels just about the same. At least little Jimmy does. You know Jimmy is my kid brother. Jimmy likes school just about as much as any other kid and he's a kid all the way through.

Yesterday Jimmie informs the family at breakfast that it was the last day of school and there was going to be special doings. He informs those present at breakfast that he'd like to dress up a little.

Well, that's something new for Jimmy but mother gets out a nice clean pair of white linen knickers, a white blouse, clean socks and the newest pair of shoes. Well, Jimmy looks like a little cherub as he starts for school.

At noon you remember it was raining so mother thinks it would be a good idea if she took the car and went to school to meet Jimmy so he wouldn't get wet and take all the starch outa the knickers.

She parks in front of the school for about 20 minutes 'til finally she decides Jimmy has gone home. She drives along toward home. When almost home she spies Jimmy.

Jimmy's in the midst of a real healthy fight in the middle of somebody's front lawn. It's not one of those fights conducted under state boxing regulations. No holds are barred in this kind of a fight.

Jimmy happens to be on top at the time mother arrives but it was perfectly obvious that he had not been there all the time. Jimmy sees his mother and hostilities cease.

All mother says is "Get in". And the way she said it conveyed a very potent meaning to Jimmy. He gets in and they come home. Oh, boy, but that kid was a sight.

His white knickers were black, and his blouse was blacker and his hands and face were blackest. He was a sight. Right then and there mother declared herself.

Jimmy was to wear his dirty clothes to the exercises in the afternoon. She thought this would be suitable punishment. But did Jimmy care? He did not. He'd had a good time enough to last all day.

I overheard him telling his father about it. Say, Dad, says Jimmy, Do you blame me for fighting? Wouldn't you fight if a kid came up behind you and give you a kick in the pants when you wasn't looking?

Dad only grinned and asked who won the fight. Jimmy grinned kinda sheepishly and says I cried "enough" when I saw mother coming. I knew ma'd win anyway.

Kids are a great institution. You can't beat 'em.

BASEBALL BITS

Joe Faber, local boy, is going great guns at shortstop for Omaha of the Western league. Joe is lead-off hitter and is batting well over .300 besides fielding in brilliant fashion. Omaha is right up in the race, being in third place on Tuesday morning.

One of the most honest men in the world lives right around eastern Connecticut. In the report of the Academy baseball season, Paul Bradlaw, faculty treasurer, reported the receipt of $2 with the following note: This is to pay for a ball that I stole at the campus during an Academy game. Needless to say, it was not signed.

Mace Goldblatt, former Academy catcher, is doing the receiving for the Boys club in the New London city league.

Norwich will be well represented at the Yankee-Athletic series which opens at the Yankee stadium with a doubleheader today.

Many local fans are getting their baseball via radio these days through WEAN, Providence, and WNAC, Boston for the Boston home games, both leagues.

Plenty of good attractions hereabouts over the week end. The J. B. Martin-House of David game tops them off but Taftville A. C.-Kensington A. C. and the game at Moosup should prove good dishes.

The Dusty league race promises to be a closely contested affair with six strong teams.

Academy stars are scattered through the league, what with Chubby Gibbs, Anso Tombari, Red Fagan and Buck LaCroix with the Smoke Shop, Hal Cummings, Butay Weisgraber and Bud Fontaine with the Silver Co., Harold (Speed) Reardon with the Richmonds, Alec Arico with the Polish Citizens, Les Crowell with the Y. M. C. A., etc.

REIGH COUNT FINISHES SECOND TO INVERSHIN

ASCOT, Eng., June 20.—(AP)—America's challenge for the gold cup, greatest of all Ascot trophies, failed by two lengths today as Reigh Count, Mrs. John D. Hertz's four-year-old colt, finished second to Reid Walker's Invershin over the famous two and one-half mile course.

Although forced to bow to the Irish bred but English owned horse by two lengths, Reigh Count put up a gallant fight exhibition, an impressive display of speed and stamina, which won him many friends and brought him home in front of 11 other contenders in the great international event. Three lengths back of the flying hoofs of the American three-year old champion of 1928 came Jacques Wittouck's Palais Royal II, carrying the French support.

Jones Sets Course Record

MAMARONECK, N. Y., June 20.—(AP)—Bobby Jones continued his brilliant work in his practice for the national open championship today by clipping a stroke off yesterday's low mark to set a new record for the Winged Foot course. Bobby went out in 32 and came back in 37 for a 69 card.

MAYS TAKES VERDICT FROM QUINTERO IN PRE-BOAT RACE SHOW AT NEW LONDON

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 20—Bobby Mays, Connecticut lightweight champion won a decision over Manuel Quintero of Tampa, Fla., in the ten-round main bout of the boat race eve boxing show at the New London arena here tonight. Mays took five rounds while his Spanish opponent won three, two rounds were even. Both boxers are left-handers. The decision was unpopular in some sections of the arena.

Mays, a counter puncher, had the Spaniard baffled through the first half of the bout. In the first round the two lightweights measured each other and quarred for openings but neither landed with any effect. Beginning in the second round Mays found his range for right hand shots to the head. He boxed skillfully to take the second and third rounds. Quintero's aggressiveness offset Bobby's boxing in the fourth, round which was even.

The Connecticut champion upped up his attack to take the fifth round and he coasted through the sixth which Quintero took on sheer aggressiveness. Mays forged farther ahead in the seventh poking his right jab to the face and crossing his left to the body. Quintero made repeated attempts to bore through Mays' defense but the local boy's right jab continually threw him off balance.

Quintero fought furiously to take the eighth and ninth rounds scoring heavily with left hooks to the body. Mays rallied in the tenth centering his punches around the mid-section. The last round ended with a brisk exchange at close quarters. The bout was fairly fast but failed to produce any exciting moments. Quintero weighed 137 1-2 while Mays scaled 134.

Beauregard Loses to Devlin.

Hughie Devlin of this city won decisively over Al Beauregard of Taftville in the other ten-round star bout. Devlin used his left hand to great advantage in the fighting at long range, while Beauregard's attack consisted solely of round-house swings to the body varied only occasionally with pots shots to the head. Beauregard's crouch made the Taftville boy an easy target for Devlin's right-hand uppercut. Devlin was given eight of the ten rounds while Beauregard took only the fourth round. Beauregard took considerable punishment around the head and at the end of the bout was bleeding from the nose and mouth. Although Devlin punched from all angles and rarely missed a shot, the Taftville bantamweight never stopped wading in with both arms flying. During the seventh and eighth rounds, Beauregard faltered somewhat and was missing his punches by ridiculous distances. The weights were Devlin 121 3-4 and Beauregard 119.

Gillette Gets Verdict.

Al Gillette of New London proclaimed as the state bantamweight champion was given a hairline decision over Vernon Cormier of Worcester in the eight round semi-final. The battle was nip and tuck all the way and both fighters travelled at a terrific pace. If a draw was permitted in Connecticut that would probably have been the decision but Gillette's showing in the last round swung the balance in his favor. This is probably one of the best bouts seen here this season. The weights were Gillette 121 3-4 and Cormier 122 3-4. The decision in this bout did not meet with unanimous favor.

McCarthy Takes Beating.

In the first of the two six-round preliminaries Johnny Andrews of New Haven decisively outpointed Tommy McCarthy of Norwich. Andrews was a clever boxer with a kick in his right hand and he dealt out plenty of punishment especially with right hooks to the chin. McCarthy's right eye began to swell in the first round but the injury was not severe enough to impair his vision. McCarthy rallied briefly in the fourth round and took it by a shade but the New Haven boy hit his stride again in the fifth round and continued in an aggressive attack up to the finish. The weights were McCarthy 126, Andrews 125 3-4.

Russo Wins.

In the second preliminary Joe Russo of Westerly was awarded a decision over Julius Koskie of Worcester. Russo floored Koskie for a count of five in the first round and immediately afterwards Russo tore in with both hands pumping. One of Russo's punches ripped the right glove and in a subsequent flurry the padding inside the glove flew around the ring. The bout was halted and as the round was nearly over the fight was resumed with the second round. Russo failed to show his old aggressiveness after having missed a chance for a knockout in the first round. Koskie recovered himself and boxed cautiously but would not risk an exchange with the hard-hitting Westerly boy. Koskie put over a terrific right swing to the jaw which set Russo back on his heels in the fourth round. The last two rounds were occupied with wrestling, pulling and holding with very few effective punches. The decision was booed by the crowd. The weights were Russo 151 3-4, Koskie 151 1-2.

The bouts were refereed by Young McAuliffe of Bridgeport. A crowd of about 1700 witnessed the show. Cool weather prevailed.

Duffy Lewis Resigns

PORTLAND, Me., June 20.—(AP)—Resignation of George "Duffy" Lewis, former Red Sox player, as manager of the Portland club of the New England league, was announced today. Lewis said that ill health prompted the action. Ed Baldwin, former Coast league player, and present field captain of the Mariners, will succeed him.

PHILLIES DROP THIRD STRAIGHT TO GIANTS

PHILADELPHIA, June 20.—(AP) — The Giants won their third straight game from the Phillies by defeating the home team here today, 11 to 5. Carl Hubbell was uncertain at the start, but permitted no runs after the third round except in the ninth when Donald Hurst hit his thirteenth homer. Leach hit a home run for the Giants in the eighth.

The Giants are fattening their batting averages appreciably in this series. The 17-hit barrage today ran their total for three games to 55; an average of 18 1-3 blows a game.

BROWN INVITES SKEPTICS TO SEE SONNENBERG

BOSTON, June 20.—(AP)— Jimmy "Doc" Brown, manager of Gus Sonnenberg, heavyweight wrestling champion, today invited representatives of the New York, Pennsylvania and Illinois athletic commissions to come here at his expense and attend the Sonnenberg-Lewis match on July 9. The three commissions have barred Sonnenberg from wrestling in their jurisdictions.

"As you have officially barred Gus Sonnenberg, champion of the world from wrestling in your state, on grounds that we deem unjustified and as your action seems to carry with it the imputation that he is not a real champion in the very best sense of the world, I am requesting you at Sonnenberg's suggestion," Brown said in his invitation, "to designate any member of your board, or any wrestling expert you care to name to come to Boston at my expense and attend the world's championship wrestling match between Lewis and Sonnenberg on July 9."

HARVARD DRAWS FIRST BLOOD IN "COMBO" RACE

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 20.—(AP)—The Yale-Harvard regatta competition began tonight with a victory for the crimson over the blue in a two-mile race for "combination crews" composed of substitute oarsmen.

The Harvard eight, stroked by its captain, R. W. Pearson of Newton Centre, Mass., got the jump at the start, set the pace all the way and won from Yale's boatload by two lengths.

The race was contested upstream over the upper two miles of the four-mile varsity course. Harvard's time was 10:32 and Yale's 10:39.

PITCHES NO-HIT GAME IN JR. LEAGUE

Paridis, star twirler for the Taftville Legion team entered the hall of fame last night at Hollyhock island holding the Baltic junior team hitless throughout the entire game, while his teammates continued to pound out a 10 to 1 victory, placing them in a tie with the Elks for first place, each having won three games, losing none.

Baltic could do nothing with Paradis' pitching, eight being retired on strikes, three in a row in the first inning. Not one man reached first base until the fifth inning, when two bases on balls and a wild peg to third base by Sydlo, Taftville catcher gave Baltic their only tally.

Taftville started their scoring in the first inning, scoring two runs. Murphy, first man up, grounded out, Kavrick was also thrown out at first by Austin. Breen walked and later scored on Perry's home run through center field. Paridis grounded out ending the inning, giving Taftville a two-run lead. They added four more runs in the 6th and four in the 7th, giving them a total of ten, when Savageau weakened, after holding them to a lone hit. Perry's home run in the first inning, Taftville hit hard in these two innings driving Savageau to cover. Alex took up the pitching burden, but the damage had already been done.

Breen proved himself the hitting star, driving out two triples and a home run. Perry collected two hits, one of them a home run.

Last night's game completed this week's schedule. Play will be resumed on Monday evening. The score:

NEW LEAGUE TO BE ORGANIZED IN DANIELSON

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, Conn., June 20—The Danielson Twilight league played its last game Thursday between P. & A. and the Owls. Because of a lack of support by the townspeople as well as a lack of good players the Danielson Twilight league has broken up and it is to give way to a better league.

The new league is to go under the name of the Eastern Connecticut Twilight league, and under the control of the Danielson Baseball association with Mr. Reeves at the bats which is the same association that controlled the former Danielson Twilight league. There are to be four teams in the league, one team from Moosup, one from Wauregan and two from Danielson.

The two home clubs are to be the Quinebaug Indians, and that of the Powdrell and Alexander Co. The Owls and the Killowatts will not exist but some of their best players will be traded to the two remaining Danielson teams. The way things look now the Owls' battery, A. Labelle and Waldron, may go to the Indians while P. & A. gets a group of infielders and probably Lazaos of the Indians and Stafranski of the Owls as pitchers.

The Moosup team is to consist of players from various clubs there, and the Wauregan team will probably consist of selected players from their recent Twilight league. The games are arranged such that two games will be played weekly

FANNY LEDYARD CHAPTER HOLDS ANNUAL MEETING

(Special to The Bulletin)

MYSTIC, June 20. — The annual meeting of the Fanny Ledyard chapter, D. A. R., was held Tuesday afternoon, at the home of Mrs. George S. Scott, on East Main street. The regent, Mrs. Estella B. Bailey, presided at the meeting. The reports and committees showed the affairs of the society to be in a prosperous condition and that the year just closed has been one of accomplishment along many lines. For one thing the chapter made its third and last contribution to the $6000 endowment fund which has been raised during the past three years by the Connecticut D. A. R. and which closed this year. Other educational institutions to which gifts of money were sent were: The Berry school and Blue Ridge school, both schools doing work among the southern mountaigers, and the American International college at Springfield, Mass., whose work is among the foreign born. Projects such as the Manual for Immigrants, published by the National society D. A. R. in English and 16 foreign languages, have also been supported with gifts of money; also national defense work; the work at Ellis Island and other ports of entry where the National society maintains workers and where materials are provided so that those who are detained there may have employment with which to pass the weary hours of waiting for their status to be determined by the detention department; the fund being raised for the publication of a guide to historic spots which will include every state; the Founders' Memorial, erected by the National society and dedicated during the week of the congress last April in Washington, etc.

Gifts of local interest were to the fund for restoring the libery pole, to assist in the upkeep of the Packer cemetery where five Revolutionary soldiers are buried, and to the fund for putting out logs along the main streets on holidays, etc. Another item of local interest was the purchase of a copy of Historic Groton by Charles R. Stark and which was presented to the National D. A. R. library in Washington.

Following the reports of officers and committees, the following officers were elected for the ensuing year: Regent, Mrs. Estella B. Bailey; first vice regent, Mrs. Lucy H. Chesebro; second vice regent, Mrs. Elizabeth C. Morgan; recording secretary, Mrs. Artie L. Stoddard; corresponding secretary, Mrs. Abbie B. Phillips; treasurer, Miss Elizabeth A. Burrows; registrar, Mrs. Elsie P. McGaughey; historian, Mrs. Caroline N. Stark; chaplin, Miss Julia G. Foote.

Board of management—Mrs. Eliza G. Scott, Mrs. Charlotte P. Wilcox, Mrs. Irene H. Hoxie, Mrs. Sella B. Talbot, Mrs. Minnie B. Phillips, Mrs. Ellen H. Costello, Mrs. M. Josephine Dickinson, Mrs. Linda R. Denison.

SANITATION IN POULTRY YARD PERFORMS A DOUBLE FUNCTION

Care exercised in keeping poultry yards clean and in sanitary condition has a double function in keeping the flock clear of parasites that undermine the health and sap the vigor of the birds. The injury by mites, lice, fleas and other parasitic organisms is sometimes obvious, but it also happens that some insects and other small creatures are carriers and intermediate hosts of some of the internal parasites of poultry.

For example, according to specialists in the United States department of agriculture, one variety of roundworm must develop for one stage of its life outside the poultry is affects. The roundworm lays its eggs within the chicken and they are eliminated in the droppings. They will not mature if picked up by a fowl. They do mature if a water flea picks up the eggs. Then if a hen takes in the water flea with her drinking water the roundworm parasite of the flea develops into a poultry parasite.

Many similar examples are known, and others are suspected. The grasshopper, for instance, has recently been shown to transmit at least one important parasite of domestic poultry.

Sanitation and cleanliness which prevents such insects from having access to the droppings may thus break a cycle through which infestation reaches the flock. The insects in themselves may not be harmful to poultry, but if they have had an opportunity to feed on contaminated droppings they may be the means of spreading these particular parasites.

SWINE SANITATION SAVES PIGS

Attention to swine sanitation is changing hog production on many farms in Indiana from a losing to a profitable enterprise. A report received by the United States department of agriculture from Dr. J. E. Gibson, federal inspector in charge of hog cholera control work in Indiana, credits the swine sanitation system developed by the bureau of animal industry with many practical benefits.

"Our reports," he says, "indicate that heretofore the average number of pigs per sow has been about 5 1-2, whereas farmers who are following instructions as to swine sanitation are now saving more than 8 pigs per sow. Cases almost without number have been found where farmers were nearly ready to quit raising hogs because they were unable to save a sufficient number of their pigs to make the business profitable. Since they have been instructed in swine sanitation and are following the instructions in whole or in part they are able to grow hogs at a profit."

Referring to the extensive use of the system in 11 counties of the state where the project has been introduced, Dr. Gibson adds that, aside from the educational work done on hog cholera control, nothing has had such a noticeable beneficial effect on hog production.

HINTS FOR THE FARMER

When the weather gets warmer and cows have been turned out on pasture, cream should be churned at a lower temperature than that used during the winter. Otherwise, the butter will form too soon and be soft. The temperature should be from 52 to 60 degrees Fahrenheit and the butter granules should form in about 35 minutes.

Tests of stored sorghum grains show that heat-damaged sorghums breathe more than sound kernels and develop a condition that makes them unsafe for storage. If the temperature is sufficiently high—100 degrees Fahrenheit, or more—sorghum grains that contain more than 14 per cent moisture will go out of condition.

Hide poisons can be used for protecting cured hides and skins from injury by insects or worms during storage and transportation. They include such substances as arsenious acid in alkaline solution, potassium cyanide, carbolic acid creosote, naphthols and naphthalenes, and as a rule are sprinkled on the hair. A slight application on the flesh side of the hide will do no harm. As most hide poisons are highly toxic to humans and animals, they should be handled with utmost care.

The height of a silo should be not less than twice nor more than three times the diameter. The diameter should be small enough to remove sufficient silage from the surface each day to prevent spoiling. In summer, three inches should be removed daily and in winter about two inches.

Plant morning glories and castor beans in the same hill and get a double crop of beauty from the bean and the glory.

Sow some of the newer annual sunflowers for graceful and beautiful cutting material.

Make general plantings of gladiolus for later bloom. The early plantings ought to be showing through the ground.

Get the dahlias into the ground, but wait for a warm day for it.

Don't forget to thin rigorously according to seed packet directions. You will gain in production of both vegetables and flowers. More are lost by too thick planting than are produced.

All the annuals can be sown in the open ground now, the hardy as well as tender ones.

Stake the tall perennials before they get too far advanced. Start now and they may be adapted to their supports gracefully.

Give delphiniums a shot of lime sulphur and nicotine solution if they show signs of the 'blacks.' Mulch them with tobacco dust.

Try some of the newer sweet corn. It may be better than the older types you've grown.

Give ten-weeks stocks a dressing of hydrated lime. They are lime lovers and need it if the soil is at all deficient in lime.

Get all perennial seeds started. There is no use waiting longer. The longer they grow this year the bigger and better they will be next year.

You can grow almost anything from seed. Gardeners are now finding they can even grow lilac bushes to bloom in three or four years. Plant plenty of seed as an adventure to see what you can do.

She "went back to school" by entering the Kansas State Teachers' college at Emporia with her daughter. When they were graduated in the same class Mrs. Woodhead was the oldest and her daughter the youngest graduate.

EASTERN VOLUNTOWN

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dawley were in Ledyard recently. While there they bought strawberries for 17 cents a box. Berries are plentiful everywhere and cheap.

Mr. and Mrs. Benjamin Wilson of South Manchester visited Sunday with Mrs. Wilson's father, George Green.

John H. Bitgood, a cousin of Jefferson Barber, is with him for a while. He will help Mr. Barber with his mowing.

William Bitgood and Thomas Lewis have commenced mowing.

Sunday was a still day, no traveling on the roads.

Mason Gray of Campbell Mills helped Mr. Dawley move his boiler Monday from Beach Pond up to his place where he lives.

Mr. and Mrs. John Potter of Griswold were through Eastern Voluntown Sunday, calling on old friends. He called on William Bitgood.

Mr. and Mrs. Lee Remington of Oneco went to the salt water recently and got some nice clams.

Annie Bitgood of Sterling Hill had bad luck with her small ducks. She lost 14 in one day. She thinks it was something they got in the fields to eat. She cut them open and found bugs in them.

Mrs. Lee Remington had a nice big duck killed by a dog. The duck was getting ready to set. Mrs. Remington was very pleased over it to think she would set. It made Mrs. Remington about sick. She had worked hard to get some ducks and she has chickens too, and when you work hard to get them and then have a mean dog come and kill them it is enough to make one sick.

William Bitgood and George Green were in Oneco and Sterling and Moosup Sunday.

Albert Dawley, Jr., has been home for a few days to help his father move the boiler.

Mr. and Mrs. James Congdon were alone Sunday and so were William Bitgood's family. It is lonesome when anyone is use to having callers every Sunday. The roads are so bad in Voluntown, people don't like to drive over them with a nice machine and furthermore makes anyone sick to ride over such roads.

Mrs. James Congdon attended church Sunday at Ekonk Hill.

Mrs. Albert Dawley's brother from Stonington has been to make her a visit.

The people that lived on John Stankovich's place have moved on to Mrs. Walter Cole's place which used to be Willigton Card's place.

Leo Reindeau and Delphis Reindeau were called to Putnam the past week to attend their mother's funeral.

George Green is living alone for a while, waiting to sell his farm. He has sold his cow and dog. He doesn't have anything on the place to look after now.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dawley were in Jewett City Tuesday trading.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Bitgood and daughter, Leile, called on Mr. and Mrs. William Bitgood Saturday evening. They were on their way up to Mr. and Mrs. Dawley's.

PRESTON

The ladies of the Congregational church served a strawberry supper to a good crowd on Monday evening.

Charles Kenneth Zabriskie and Miss Marcia Zabriskie are at the home of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. C. Zabriskie. They were students of Wheaton college, Wheaton, Ill., the past year.

Miss Estella Brand has been visiting her sister, Mrs. Carl Anderson, at Quogue, Long Island.

Otis A. Browning, Jr., spent the week end with friends in Providence.

The C. E. service was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. James Turner Sunday evening, the leader being Mrs. J. A. Smith. The meeting is to be held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Muttart next Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Terry Robbins of Fort Glen, N. Y., have returned to their home after a visit at the home of Mr. Robbins' parents, Rev. and Mrs. Frank Robbins.

Mrs. Carl Anderson of Quogue, Long Island, spent the week end with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Russell Brand.

Mr. and Mrs. Edwin Hallowell and family were guests Sunday of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Charles Burdick of Danielson.

The conference of six churches which met at Lisbon on Wednesday was attended by a large number from this place.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Robber the Rat Lives Up to His Name

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

A bad name sticks—I don't know why;
It sticks and sticks until you die.
—Robber the Rat.

Robber the Rat is an outcast, as everyone knows. He hasn't a friend outside of his own kind in all the world. None of the four-footed folk will have anything to do with him. Robber doesn't care. He doesn't want friends. It doesn't trouble him in the least to know that he is despised by all the furred and feathered folk. He is bad tempered, dirty and a thief, and he wouldn't be any different if he could.

Robber knew that Farmer Brown's Boy put that food on a certain big flat stone in the old stone wall, just for Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel and his family. It really belonged to the Squirrels, but this made no difference to Robber. Having frightened Happy Jack away once, he was sure that he could do it again. So he planned to have those breakfasts all for himself.

The morning following the one on which he had driven Happy Jack away Robber was a little late. He had been out all night on dark business of some kind and he had curled up for a wink of sleep. When he awoke and hurried to look out of his hole he discovered the whole Squirrel family eating breakfast on that flat stone. There were Happy Jack, Mrs. Happy Jack and four half-grown children. Robber's mean little eyes glared at the happy family. It was one thing to frighten one Squirrel away, but it was altogether another matter to try to put six Squirrels to flight.

"Well, there is nothing like trying" thought Robber. "Of course, I can't fight all of them at one time, but if I can surprise them I may be able to frighten them so that they will run away. It is worth trying, anyway."

Robber's mean little eyes glared at the Happy Family

Robber crept out of his hole. Carefully, so as to make no sound, he crept up on the old stone wall. Happy Jack and his family were so busy that they were paying no attention to anything but their breakfast. Nearer and nearer crept Robber. When he was near enough he rushed. His lips were drawn back, showing his sharp teeth. The hair along his back was on end, making him look much bigger than he really was. With a savage sounding squeal he jumped right into the middle of that breakfast party.

That breakfast party broke up in a hurry. Yes, sir, that breakfast party broke up in a hurry. There was a rush for the nearest tree. Up into it scrambled the four young Squirrels, with Happy Jack and Mrs. Happy Jack right at their heels. Not until they were well up in the tree did they turn to find out who had frightened them. Then such a chattering as broke loose. How those Squirrels did scold.

"Robber! Robber! Robber!" shrieked Happy Jack.

"Thief! Thief! Thief!" cried Mrs. Happy Jack.

Robber the Rat merely grinned and continued to stuff himself. He was used to being called names. "Names don't hurt," thought he. "It's teeth and claws that hurt. As long as those Squirrels want to fight with their tongues, I'll be satisfied."

He turned his back on the tree where Happy Jack and his family were and gobbled up the food as fast as he could.

Meanwhile Happy Jack and his family were making such a racket that Farmer Brown's Boy came out to see what the trouble was about. Robber the Rat heard the door open and at once ran for his hole. Farmer Brown's Boy saw him, however, and at once he understood what all the fuss was about. "Tomorrow morning," he thought, "I shall have to watch to see what happens."

The next story: What Farmer Brown's Boy Saw.

Forebodings

Let tomorrow take care of tomorrow,
Leave the things of the future to fate;
What's the use to anticipate sorrow?
Life's troubles come never too late.
If to hope over much be an error,
'Tis one that the wise have preferred;
And how often have hearts been in terror
Of evils—that never occurred!

Have faith, and thy faith shall sustain thee;
Permit not suspicion and care
With invisible bonds to enchain thee,
But bear what God gives thee to bear;
By His Spirit supported and gladdened,
Be ne'er by "forebodings" deterred;
But think how oft hearts have been saddened
By fear of—what never occurred!

Let tomorrow take care of tomorrow;
Short and dark as our life may appear;
We may make it still darker by sorrow—
Still shorter by folly and fear!
Half our troubles are half our invention,
And often from blessing conferred
Have we shrunk in the wild apprehension
Of evils—that never occurred!

HIGHWAY DEPARTMENT DRIVE ON TREE PESTS SUCCEEDS

Practical elimination from the state highway rights of way of tent caterpillar nests has been accomplished by the campaign conducted against that tree destroying pest by the Connecticut highway department during the past two years, according to an announcement made by Highway Commissioner John A. Macdonald.

When the highway department district supervisors set out this spring to renew their war on the caterpillar, they found that the nests so prevalent on the trees along the highway rights of way in previous years were almost entirely missing this year. Only in a very few instances were caterpillar nests found on the state highways and in each of these cases they were promptly eliminated.

Two years ago, Commissioner Macdonald issued instructions to all district supervisors of the highway department to begin the elimination of the tent caterpillar. At that time the insect was spreading rapidly throughout the state and causing increased damage to various types of trees and especially fruit trees each year.

The campaign was vigorously conducted each spring. The nests of the insect pests were sought out both on the highways and on lands adjacent to the roads. Branches carrying the tent-like nests were removed and burned. Whenever the pest was discovered on adjacent lands, the cooperation of the land owner in its quick elimination was secured.

The almost complete disappearance of the caterpillar from the highways this spring indicates the success of the campaign. Inspections will be made along all highways each year, however, and immediate action taken to kill off any trace of the destroyer which is found.

DANIELSON

DANIELSON RESIDENT FORMER OWNER OF HOSPITAL SITE

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 20—Included in the 200 acres of land that the government has selected for the site of the Veterans' hospital in Connecticut at Newington is the Francis farm, birthplace of Charles S. Francis of this town. Relative to the matter Mr. Francis said this afternoon that the properties to be taken over to make up the required acreage are ideally suited to the purpose to which they are to be devoted. The properties face Willard street, a paved thoroughfare, on the east. From the street that land is rolling and gradually ascends, 1,000 feet back to a high plateau, the probable site of the hospital. Farther on the land again becomes rolling and descends to the tracks of the New Haven road, both the Springfield-New Haven, and the Waterbury-Boston routes being close by. The nearness of the tracks was one factor on the site being selected, as a siding for use by the hospital is to be installed. The location is about midway between Hartford and New Britain. Mr. Francis' brother, Thomas A. Francis, town clerk and treasurer of Newington, is still resident on the Francis farm, and an adjoining property, also included in the hospital site, is owned by their cousin.

Retires From Mail Service

After a generation of carrying the mails on the star route between Danielson and Brooklyn Frank A. Spalding is to retire from that work on June 30, and will be succeeded by George Moran of Dayville. There have been many changes in mail service and in methods of transportation and even in the highways since Mr. Spalding first began his journeying sback and forth between Danielson and Brooklyn. For years past he has been using automobiles in the star route service, but most of the more than 30 years he has covered the route with unvarying faithfulness horses served him, in years gone by Mr. Spalding did a passenger carrying business in connection with the star route contract. The old dirt road that he rode over during the early years is now a modern trunk line highway. Mr. Spalding has had many interesting experiences on the route, especially in maintaining service after heavy snowstorms that made the highway impassable. In traveling back and forth on his trips each day, though Danielson and Brooklyn Center are only about four miles apart Mr. Spalding has traveled distance of several times around the world. Speculating on this today some estimates of his mileage in the service of the government ran from 150,000 to 200,000.

This morning the funeral of Zepherin Despatis, who died suddenly early Tuesday morning, was held from the home on Connecticut Mills avenue with services at St. James' church at 9 o'clock. Rev. Joseph Bergin, M. S., was celebrant of the high mass of requiem. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery at Wauregan. The bearers were Florimond and Aurelian Despatis, brothers of the deceased, Charles LaPrade, Joseph Landry, Emil Anger and Leodore Lacombe. Martin T. Burns was the funeral director.

Francis LaFantasie, 12, of North Main street escaped with slight injuries—a small scalp wound and a wrenched back—when the bicycle he was riding in the street opposite his home was in collision with a small coach operated by Joseph Bishop of 34 Mechanic street. The accident was investigated by State Officer James Carmody. Bishop was coming south along the street in his car when he first saw the LaFantasie boy, also going south on his bicycle. Without indicating that he was going to do so, the boy made a quick left turn and went into the car, which was traveling slowly and was promptly stopped. The bicycle was not badly damaged in the accident, though the windshield of the car was broken, just how it is difficult to understand.

Deputy Sheriff Charles E. Ayer and G. Henry Burdick, both of Dayville, agreed today to adjust between themselves the damage done to their cars when they were in collision last evening at the junction of North Main street and Westcott road. No one was injured in the accident and the damage to the cars is not serious. The junction of North Main street and Westcott road is more than ever becoming regarded as a real danger spot, especially at the southerly side of the entrance to Westcott road. Two accidents have occurred there this week.

The prospect is that there will be several bids for the contract of removing the row of 14 shade trees on the southerly side of Davis park between Main and Broad streets. Several persons have been checking up on the proposal with a view to ascertaining just how the trees can be taken out within the specifications and within the limit of the appropriation of $700 that the town has made available for the work. The bids are to be in by next Wednesday and will be opened at the specified hour.

The day was not the best that June might have supplied for the occasion, but nevertheless the combined schools of the Methodist Episcopal, Baptist, St. Alban's and Westfield Congregational churches got away this morning for the annual outing and picnic at Bates grove, Webster. The happy groups of young people got away according to schedule, and at the lake enjoyed themselves thoroughly. The diversions afforded for the day included a series of athletic events. Refreshments were served. The party returned here eary this evening.

Cold meats, salad, strawberry supper by W. R. C. in G. A. R. hall, Sat. 6 to 7:30 p. m. 50 cts.—Adv.

Local horsemen were at Sturbridge today attending races that attracted attendance from various sections of southern New England.

There is nothing to indicate, it is said in police circles here, that William Ryan, missing from his home in Webster, has been in Danielson or this immediate vicinity.

Grading of the Brooklyn-Pomfret state-aid highway is progressing. This road is open to travel subject to delays that may be encountered where grading is going on.

In default of heavy bail Jerry Nelson and Wendell Hardy, escaped inmates of an industrial school near Manchester, N. H., and embryo bandits, remain at the county jail in Brooklyn, awaiting trial in the superior court.

Mrs. William N. House of Dayville is a patient in a Boston hospital.

Miss Yvette A. Beausoliel of Fall River is visiting with friends in Danielson for a few days.

Mrs. Joseph Cudworth and two children of East Franklin street are visiting with friends in Lowell, where Mrs. Cudworth will undergo observation at a hospital.

The coming week Mr. and Mrs. A. V. Woodworth will open their cottage at Pleasure Beach for the season.

Copious rain early this morning with an ample accompaniment of thunder and lightning brought relief from the heat wave to Danielson and also much needed moisture for crops.

County Sealer Gaston A. Maindon is making slow but steady recovery from an operation on his toe, but is as yet unable to attend to his routine duties.

Midland Steel Products Co. will spend $500,000 at its Detroit plant to increase production of four-wheel mechanical brakes by 150 per cent.

PUTNAM

CLASS OF 47 GRADUATED FROM ST. MARY'S SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 20.— "Continue in the ways of higher learning," was the keynote of the graduation message to the class of 1929 of St. Mary's parochial school, delivered Tuesday evening by Rev. W. Arthur Routhier, pastor of St. Anthony's church, Bridgeport, and former curate at St. Mary's and principal of St. Mary's school. Father Routhier was accorded a hearty welcome by his former parishioners when he stepped to the platform to deliver the graduation address. The former Putnam priest thoroughly enjoyed his brief visit to this city, an incident he mentioned during his speech. To develop and cultivate the fundamental principals of their education in the higher institutions of learning was the advice of Father Routhier to the 47 graduates.

A varied programme of entertainment presented by the students of the school under the supervision of the nuns was delightfully received by the audience. It included a parasol drill, "My Revenge," a pantomime; Les Chaussons de la Duchesse Anne de Bretagne" a cleverly presented operetta in one act staged by the girls of the class of 1929; an action song, "Topsy Turvy"; a class recitation "Coup de Clairon"; the graduation song, "The Echoes Ring," sung by the class; a brief congratulatory message to the graduates and their parents by Rev. Ernest J. Boileau, principal of the school. The programme was brought to a close by the awarding of prizes to the honor students of each class and the presentation of medals and diplomas to the graduates by Rev. Father Boileau.

Fifty members of the class of 1929 Putnam Junior high school were presented with the certificates of graduation at the close of school Wednesday. The presentation of diplomas being made by Supt. of Schools Leon M. Farrin. No exercises in commemoration of this event were held this year.

Seventy-five members of the Putnam high school alumni association returned to their alma mater Wednesday evening and attended the annual alumni banquet. A delightful dinner in three courses was served the old grads by the committee in charge. Following the dinner the alumni entered into executive session and elected the following officers for the ensuing year: President, William J. F. Rafferty; Elmer Carpenter, 1st vice president; Sarah Barber, 2nd vice president; Thelma Bosworth, 3rd vice president; Edwin Mann, fourth vice president; Minot Horne, 5th vice president; Philip Arnold, 6th vice president; Marguerite Sherlock, secretary; Marion Warren, treasurer. The following committees were appointed: Entertainment committee, Gertrude Perry, chairman; Dorcas Beebe, L. Hector Lucier; speakers committee: Harriett Brown, chairman, Mrs. J. P. Sabin, A. Macdonald, Jr.; banquet committee: Mrs. Iver S. Nelson, chairman, Francis Curran, Edith Bowen.

Howard C. Bradford, outgoing president of the organization, introduced the newly elected president, William J. F. Rafferty, who acted as toastmaster. Mr. Rafferty called upon Superintendent of Schools Leon N. Farrin, Principal of Putnam high school Edwin L. Robinson and J. Richard Carpenter for talks. Both Mr. Farrin and Mr. Robinson expressed their appreciation of the spirit displayed by the old grads of the alumni. Mr. Carpenter, Putnam high school '87, the only representative of the oldest class present, delivered delightful word picture of the 3 R's as learned by the "boys of '87" which was accompanied by many of Mr. Carpenter's humorous compositions. Philip H. Arnold, president of the class of '29, the latest addition to the alumni in behalf of the members of his class thanked the organization for the banquet tendered in their honor.

A moderate and comfortable temperature prevailed in Putnam today as the result of a terrific electrical storm accompanied by heavy rains experienced here at 4 o'clock this morning. The storm was of great severity but afforded welcome relief to sweltering Putnam following the nine-day heat wave. At the home of Prosper Veglard on Woodstock Ave. a bolt of lightning struck the house, doing much damage to the property. The streak of blue fire in a freakish manner followed a course into a bedroom window, which was left open and overturned some furniture. Fortunately none of the members of the Veglard family suffered any effects of the bolt as it darted about their home.

In North Woodstock at the home of Jonas M. Johnson lightning struck a large tree and shattered a limb. The heavy limb crashed through the roof into one of the rooms on the upper story of the tenement. No one was in the room at the time.

The telephone company, usually the heaviest sufferer in an electrical storm, got off easily as only 25 stations in this district were disrupted by effects of lightning. A telephone report this afternoon stated that the outskirts of the storm area was North Woodstock.

Benjamin Green of 396 School street was taken to the Day Kimball hospital this morning following a fall from the roof of a three-story building upon which he was working. Hospital authorities stated this afternoon that Mr. Green had sustained a fracture of the wrist and possible fractures of several ribs, the latter mentioned injuries could not be ascertained at a late hour this afternoon.

Mr. Green was engaged in the repair of a chimney on a house owned by the Edward Bloom company on Church street, when a ladder on which he was standing became loosened and slid from position throwing the workman onto the roof. His fall to the ground was unbroken and it was first thought that Mr. Green had been fatally injured. A physician was called and he was rushed to the hospital for medical attention. Mr. Green is 61 years of age and is a carpenter.

Forty seven members of the class of 1929 of Putnam high school were graduated at exercises held at the Bradley theatre, tonight. WESTERLY MAN KILLED WHEN TRUCK OVERTURNED

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, June 20— Everett G. Brown, 45, of 22 Canal street, a painter, was instantly killed at 5:30 this afternoon when the Ford truck driven by him crossed from the right to left side of the state road, leading from Kenyon to Cross Mills and overturned, throwing him out. He struck against the stone wall and died instantly.

There were two eye witnesses to the accident. They were in an automobile, Mrs. Winfield Scott Solomon, of Angel street, Providence and her chauffeur, Raymond Right were driving in the opposite direction. They saw the machine with the lone occupant, cross the road and turn over.

The scene of the accident was near the Arthur Church place and about one-quarter of a mile from the Boston Post road. Brown was on his way home after work.

The two Providence people went to a telephone and notified Hope Valley state police barracks and Trooper Robert B. Butler went to the scene and investigated. He notified Sergeant Ernest F. Stenhouse, also of the Hope Valley barracks. A thorough examination was made by the two officers but they were unable to find any cause for the machine's turning over. Trooper Butler called Medical Examiner, Frances Kenyon of Woodville, R. I., who went there and investigated and found that Brown had died from concussion of the brain and a fracture of the verterbrae at the base of the skull.

The deceased is survived by his wife, who was Cecelia Casey. There are no children.

LIVING ON ONE'S INCOME.

(Written Specially for The Bulletin.)

We've all seen copies of the famous cartoon which represents a dozen men chasing each other round in a circle, each one with his hand in the pocket of the one ahead of him. No. 1 is trying to get No. 2's "wad." No. 2 is clutching at No. 3's. No. 3 at No. 4's, and finally, as the circle recurves upon itself, No. 12 has his grab-hooks in No. 1's pocket. As fast as one gets a dollar from the chap ahead, the fellow behind takes it from him. The more one gets from the sucker in front, the more he gives up to the pirate in the rear.

The cartoon was doubtless intended to be amusing, to provoke a laugh. Yet it is an almost inspiredly accurate presentation of the truth about what we simple-minded and credulous pocket-pickers are asked to consider "Prosperity."

Sam Smith, we'll say, is an industrious workman who, naturally, wants more wages and keeps digging away till he gets his coveted raise of 25 cents a day. He thinks he's that much better off—till he finds that his canny landlord, hearing of his advanced wages, has thoughtfully raised his rent by $6 a month. The said landlord, as he blithely tucks the extra $6 away in his bill-fold, congratulates himself on being so much the better off—till the painters and paperhangers and repairmen soak him at least that much more in their little bills. They, in their turn, hug themselves in joy over their bigger incomes, till the grocer and the shoemaker suavely abstract the addendum from them. Before the said grocer and shoemaker have had time to bank their pickings, some Get-rich-quick-Wallingford absorbs them into his newest sure-fire scheme. And the speak-easies get the roll from Wallingford, and the grafting prohibition officers get it from the speak-easy hostesses, and the book-makers and pool-sellers get it from the grafters, and so on and so on, till the vicious circle is completed.

Everybody concerned has been getting more money in his turn—and nobody is any better off in the end.

We all want more money, in order to live better. When we get it we find that the cost of that desired better living has advanced just about as much as our income. Whereupon the only thing to do is to call for another raise—and see it appropriated by old High-Cost-of-Living as soon as we get it. Thus the merry-go-round swings about on its axis, and the most of us after a 10-minute ride, get off exactly where we got on. We haven't been anywhere or reached anything or saved anything. Instead, we're 10 cents out for the fee to the crank-turner. Nevertheless, a whole lot of us seem to think that this sort of Ja-a-maree is Prosperity, and that swaying round and round on a painted wooden horse is Progress—both with big P's, if you please.

We've got so used to the High-Cost-of-Living that we don't hear much about it, of late. Men and women are so wonderfully made that they can accustom themselves to almost anything: to stiff straw hats which are really hotter than fur caps; to high-heeled shoes which force the wearers to waddle about on their toes; to buying 40-cent "lamb" cut from 20-cent mutton, etc., etc. It is not beyond the limits of credibility that one could become accustomed to a chrome bolt on the end of his nose, so that he'd feel "quite lost" without it. I seem to recall the tale of an old Athenian who lived in a tub, and got so he actually preferred that sort of accommodation.

But getting used to an imposition or a burden is not the same as approving the imposition or ignoring the burden. While a good many of us stoically accept conditions on the ground that we can't help ourselves, there are still some who are not quite satisfied to accept their fates with complete resignation.

I was quite interested to read, the other day, that a class of co-eds in the University of Texas, studying for degrees in home economics, had been required, as a part of the course, to live for six weeks on 50 cents a day each. This means that they must do all the housework, plan all the meals, buy all the groceries, do all the cooking—and keep the front yard in trim.

Another item, in a recent naval report, gives an interesting sidelight on what can be done by judicious management in keeping down that H. C. L. It seems that the cost of feeding a battleship crew in the U. S. navy averages just about 50 cents a day. This includes all supplies, cooking, serving, etc. It may be mentioned, incidentally, that the huskies on a battleship usually have pretty robust appetites, and have to be given food wholesome enough to keep them all the in A No. 1 condition.

For some time the New York Herald-Tribune has been publishing, twice a week, a carefully prepared study of marketing conditions, prices, etc., from the point of view of the individual buyer. The other day this alert and experienced lady started off her column with a little comparison of the then and the now, which seems to be better worth reading—and heeding—than any rehash of it which I could make. As follows:

"In the old days a housewife walked into the butcher shop with her basket on her arm. 'How much is that chunk of beef had been cut into chops cents a pound,' would be the reply, and an order for 10 or 15 pounds would be written up on the saleslbook.

"This most likely happened about 10 or 10.30 in the morning. When the butcher's boy got around to it, he delivered the meat—usually after lunch. As much as possible of the big chunk of beef had been cut into chops and small steaks. Some had been freshly ground. The rest of it was meat for stew.

"The chops were breaded, and with slow cooking were as good as an expensive veal or beef cut. The stew was put on the stove and started on its rich, slow cooking-down, plenty of vegetables being added. For three or four days, at least, this one order nourished a family, at a cost of less than $2.

"The whole ordering and delivering process is changed today. The housewife may not even realize the economies to be effected by personal shopping and may call on the 'phone. The meat may not be ordered until 4 or 5 in the afternoon. 'Send up four of you nicest loin lamb chops and can I have them right this minute?' A small order, cut from the choicest part of the lamb, to be delivered at once—the extra cost to such a customer is obvious at once.

"There must be four or five deliveries to her house—or, more likely, apartment—in as many days. The meat must be something tender enough for quick cooking and, therefore, an expensive cut. There must be plenty of boys kept on the employed staff to take chops and steaks hither and thither at a second's notice. And the butchers get the blame for increased meat prices.

"People who pay extra for time-saving appliances and canned, quick-cooking commodities forget that the time-saving meats must be extra-fare also."

After all, the old humorous skit about tells the story. It isn't so much the high cost of living as the cost of high living which calls for consideration.

There was a time when the practice of economic living involved considerable brow-puckering calculation, a rather careful budgeting of expenses, to keep them within income, and the taking of a good deal of trouble.

There is no reason to suppose that a reversion to that system would not work as well, comparatively speaking, today as it did 25 or 30 years ago.

But when all planning is deferred to the last possible moment, and all budgeting is reckoned a bore, and the taking of trouble is more dreaded than the waste of money—what wonder that the cost of living goes up?

For something over a year, in 1927 and 1928, this particular old John Farmer was forced by circumstances to be his own cook and dishwasher. He had to buy his supplies in the usual retail lots at retail prices. He was hampered, further, by the dietetic compulsion of eating what was good for him, rather than what he sometimes wanted. Yet he found it entirely possible to live comfortably and adequately, on a good deal less than 50 cents a day; and he wasn't out for a "record," either. A more experienced buyer and cook could undoubtedly have got better results than he did for even less money.

With that experience fresh in his memory, John confesses grave difficulty in finding tears to shed over the plight of those happy-go-lucky folks who assert that they "simply can't live" on their incomes.

What they really mean is that they can't live as they'd like to. Neither can John D. Rockefeller nor President Hoover nor the king of England.

CLAIMS VERTICAL RISE WITH NEW PROPELLERS

FORT WORTH, Tex. (AP)—A Fort Worth electrical engineer has patented a propeller design with which he claims an airplane can rise vertically.

The propellers devised by C. H. Merrell roughly resemble four wheels attached at the four corners of a plane. They move sideways in the same direction as a wheel would move on an automobile.

The angles of their blades have been adjusted to present the blade's flat face to the air while in descent. During the remainder of the revolution they "feather," or give an edgewise presentment of the blade to the air.

A cam arrangement automatically controls manipulation of the blades. Merrell says it is possible to deliver the full power of the flat-wise thrust of the blade in any direction desired, so a downward thrust would produce a vertical lift. He claims a plane equipped with such propeller blades could rise vertically 60 feet a minute.

Announcement has been received in Old Saybrook of the marriage of Joel A. Beard of that place and Miss Thelma Creyis of Montrose, Cal. Mr. Beard is the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Joel A. Beard of Old Saybrook. After a short wedding trip the young couple expect to make their home in Saybrook.

PUBLIC UTILITIES CONTINUE TO BE LEADING FEATURE OF STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK, June 20—(AP)—Strong rallying tendencies developed in today's stock market on indications of a gradual easing of basic credit conditions but late profit taking cut down some of the early gains. Traders received somewhat of a shock after the close of the market when the weekly federal reserve brokers' loan statement disclosed an increase of $136,000,000, bringing the total to $5,420,000,000. Wall street had expected little change in loans, the large gain being attributed to the expiration of stock "rights" this week.

Public utilities, measured by the Associated Press index of 20 leading issues, advanced to another new high record, with some of the western issues coming to the front as group leaders. Rails showed little change on the day and industrials were irregular, although the index of 50 leading issues showed a gain of about one point. Trading was relatively light in volume, the day's sales falling well below 3,000,000 shares.

Call money held steady at 7 per cent all day, although bankers thought yesterday the rate would go higher today because of the approaching mid-year credit strain. Time money rates eased further, with long term loans out from 8 to 7 3-4 per cent but with other maturities holding at the flat 8 per cent basis. Neither the Bank of England nor the New York or St. Louis Federal Reserve banks, made any change in discount rates.

A further recovery in grain prices, wheat rising 3 cents a bushel on reduced Kansas crop estimates and a better foreign demand, had a cheerful effect on speculative sentiment. One of the most important developments of the day was the announcement, after the close of the market, of a plan for the merger of the Fleischmann Co., Royal Baking Powder Co. and E. W. Gillett Co. Ltd., a Canadian Baking Powder concern, through an exchange of stock. Fleischmann and Royal Baking Powder stocks each rallied more than 2 points in anticipation of the announcement, which was made by J. P. Morgan & Co.

Commission houses with western connections were heavy buyers of Pacific coast utilities. Pacific Gas & Electric and Pacific Lighting climbing to new high records. Public Service of New Jersey was one of the most active issues of the day, climbing more than 6 points to a new high record at 106 1-2 and retaining most of its gain. American Water Works touched a new high at 146 1-2 and then dropped back to 141, off 2 points net. New peak prices also were registered by Brooklyn Union Gas and Philadelphia Co. Standard Gas & Electric, which was strong earlier in the week, fell back more than 4 points.

Electric equipment shares also extended their recent gains. Allis Chalmers jumped 11 1-2 points to a new high at 228, and closed at the top. Westinghouse Electric climbed to a new high at 228, and closed at the top. Westinghouse Electric climbed to a new high at 174 3-8 and eased to 172 7-8, up 5 points net. General Electric closed a point higher at 303 after having fluctuated between 299 and 305 7-8.

Mexican Seaboard was heavily bought on reports of important discoveries on its California properties, the stock closing 3 1-2 points higher. Skelly also pointed upward but most of the other oils were sluggish in reflection of the large increase in crude oil production last week.

Childs Co. ran up nearly 7 points to within a fraction of the year's high and Frank G. Shattuck climbed 6 points to a new peak at 172 1-2 and then eased 1 1-4 points on realizing. International Business Machines, Underwood Elliott Fisher, Timken Roller Bearing and National Dairy Products all reached new high ground for the year.

New low prices for the year were registered by Dunhill International, Hayes Body, Federal Motor Truck, Gimbel Bros., American Woolen preferred, Art Loom and a few other relatively obscure issues. Otis Elevator dropped 3 1-4 points on one sale.

Cotton fluctuated within rather narrow and irregular limits, showing little change on the day. Sugar and coffee prices held fairly steady.

British and Argentine exchanges stiffened further in reflection of recent gold withdrawals for export to this country, and the Spanish peseta recovered the drop of 1-5 of a cent recorded yesterday.

OPERETTA CLEVERLY PRESENTED ON CAMPUS AT THE WHEELER SCHOOL

The operetta, The marriage of Nannette, by Peterson and Courtis, was given its first presentation Thursday evening on the campus of the Wheeler school, North Stonington. The large audience was enthusiastic in its applause for the clever work done by the cast.

The operetta is in three acts and has many humorous situations, as well as extremely tuneful melodies. The book and lyrics are cleverly written and abound in interesting situations.

The operetta was produced under the direction of Mr. and Mrs. E. V. Atwood, with John W. Anderson and Mrs. Atwood as the accompanists. The scenery and costumes were prepared by the pupils of the school under the direction of Mrs. Atwood, who planned out the settings for last year's operetta "Leiawalla." Many interesting electrical effects were worked by two of the boys of the school, Ewing Smith and Ernest Palmer.

The story opened with the welcoming of the duke by the villagers of Chap-des-Fleurs, at The Inn of The Golden Lamb. The duke, who is seeking his fourth wife in the person of Lady Heloise de Martigny, is intrigued by the keeper of the inn, Madame Zenobie and her brother Edmond to marry Nannette, who is the daughter of Madame Zenobie. Many interesting situations transpired in the development of the plot, including the abduction of Lady Heloise by the highwaymen. Lady Heloise herself finally unravels the many snarls in the plot, as she makes the story clear in the last act.

Many dance and character bits have been developed and the operetta provided an interesting evening's entertainment.

The cast was as follows:

PLANNING FOR CONTROL OF CHICKEN POX

Connecticut Agricultural college extension service, working with the New London county farm bureau, is planning to put on a statewide chicken pox control program. Inoculation material will be supplied, demonstrations will be given, and assistance rendered to make it possible for every poultryman who is interested to inoculate his pullets for chicken pox this summer and fall.

The first two of a series of chicken pox control demonstrations will be held on Monday, June 24, at 1 p. m., standard time, at the farm of Gus Maehl of Baltic and at 6.30 p. m., standard time at the farm of W. W. Service, Preston. Professor Roy E. Jones, extension poultryman from Storrs, will be present with County Agent Clark to conduct the demonstration. Other demonstrations will be held in various parts of the county during July and August.

It was only a few years ago that chicken pox in Connecticut was uncommon and not a cause for any great concern. Each succeeding year the cases of chicken pox have become more numerous until last year practically 50 per cent of all commercial farms had chicken pox. The loss due to chicken pox may vary widely, according to the time of year it appears and the length of time the affected birds have been confined or in heavy production. Pullets may have chicken pox on range with very little apparent effect, while a flock of pullets housed for winter and in heavy production are bound to be seriously affected. The later in the winter the disease appears, the more serious it is apt to be. Many outbreaks of chicken pox cost at least $1.00 per bird in reduced egg production, besides the mortality which may run as high as 10 to 15 per cent.

Chicken pox appears as small warty nodules on the comb and wattles or unfeathered parts of the chicken's heads. These growths are light yellow and quite small at the start, but gradually build up, turning dark in color until in severe cases many scabs join together until one scab covers a considerable area. Individual birds may be taken down with chicken pox and recover in three to four weeks, while it usually takes six to eight weeks from the time the disease breaks out in a flock until it is entirely cleaned up.

Chicken pox can be entirely controlled by immunization through inoculating each bird with scab material at the time of year when the birds have the most resistance and the chicken pox affects them least. The work should be done while the pullets are on range, and about one month before production starts or before they are housed for winter. Where pullets are of varying ages, it may be necessary to let some of the birds come close to the point of production, in order to allow the younger birds to become of sufficient age. Birds may be inoculated from two to five months of age—four to five months being considered the ideal time.

On smaller poultry farms, where chicken pox has not yet occurred and where no nearby farms have suffered from the disease, inoculation is not recommended; but on farms where chicken pox has occurred, or where the disease has appeared nearby, failure to inoculate will be inviting a heavy financial loss.

For inoculation, use 50 milligrams of scab material with 10 cubic centimeters of water. This should be sufficient to treat 500 birds. Pull from 5 to 6 feathers from the shank and paint the inoculation material into the feather follicles or openings, using small camel's hair brush.

INDUSTRIES INSURE EXECUTIVE BRAINS

DETROIT (AP)—Brain insurance has been inaugurated by several of the country's greatest industrial units to guard against depletion of their supply of executive talent.

This has taken the form of huge bonuses awarded to the upper tier of executives. Standard Oil of New Jersey and the Chrysler Motor company have followed the lead of General Motors and others in making their executives so contented that they will resist offers of higher salaries from competitors.

The trend toward brain insurance is the industrial world's recognition of the fact that the development of executive brains has fallen behind the supply. The method varies. The key executives of Chrysler will receive blocks of stock substantially under the market price. The Standard Oil of New Jersey will pay its "indispensables" a generous cash bonus each year.

The theory of all such provisions is that a hard, permanent nucleus of capable executives has become the surest guarantee of succesful operation and that this reservoir of personality should be safeguarded with the same care as the physical assets of the company.

DEATH OF CHAS. F. BRUSH, INVENTOR OF ARC LIGHT

CLEVELAND, O., June 17—(AP)—A long and active career that brought numerous high honors from fellow countrymen and learned societies of foriegn lands was ended yesterday as the body of Charles F. Brush, 80, inventor of the arc light, scientist, philanthropist and humanitarian, lay at his home here awaiting funeral preparations.

Death came after two weeks of pneumonia, which followed an attack of bronchitis.

At his bedside were his daughter, Mrs. Roger G. Perkins, and her husband, Dr. Perkins, and his niece, Mrs. William Weir, and her husband, Dr. Weir. The other member of his immediate family is Mrs. Dorothy Brush, widow of his son, Charles F. Brush, Jr., who died in 1927.

Mr. Brush was active up until the time of his illness.

The establishment of the Brush Foundation for population study and betterment of humanity was one of his last notable acts. He donated $500,000 to it and placed it in trust in memory of his late son.

Mrs. Brush was born on March 17, 1849, in Euclid township, Ohio.

RETAIL RATE ASCENDS IN NEW ENGLAND STATES

BOSTON (AP)—The New England federal reserve district showed the highest rate of retail trade increase in the nation during May compared with May, 1928. Retail sales rose 6.2 per cent.

The Kansas City district was second with an increase of 6 per cent, and the Chicago district third with 4.8 per cent. Other increases were reported from San Francisco, New York, Richmond and St. Louis.

Atlanta reported the sharpest drop, 5.7 per cent. Other declines occurred in Minneapolis, Dallas, Philadelphia and Cleveland. The United States as a whole showed an improvement of 2.4 per cent over May one year ago.

TROPICS ARE MARKET FOR ICE MACHINES

WASHINGTON — (AP) — America's foreign market for ice making equipment is predominantly in tropical or semi-tropical countries.

With the exception of Canada, the largest importer of refrigerating machinery and domestic refrigerators from the United States, the department of commerce lists show that this class of export goes chiefly to the sun-baked countries of the tropics.

Airport Boom Seen

CHICAGO (AP)—More than $390,000,000 will be spent this year in construction and development of airports in this country, according to an analysis prepared for the Curtiss Airports corporation. The report predicts further that the sum will be surpassed or at least equalled for several years to come.

Big Corn Yield Contest

LINCOLN, Neb. (AP)—More than 200 entries are expected in the Nebraska corn yield contest this year. Several farmers have raised more than 100 bushels of corn to the acre at a cost very little higher than the average cost per acre.

Perfume to Asia

WASHINGTON (AP)—The Philippine Islands are the greatest market for American perfumes and toilet waters by a wide margin. In March the department of commerce finds the United States sold $53,671 worth of perfumery abroad. More than $17,000 of this went to America's far eastern archipelago.

HANKOW, CHINA, ONE OF WORLD'S BEST PORTS

"Hankow, focal point of the Chinese revolution, is one of the world's greatest inland ports," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Lying about 600 miles up the Yangtze, Hankow is as important geographically to either of the warring factions as Chicago would be if a civil war were raging in the United States. Hankow has only one railroad, but the rivers and streams of China form commercial arteries from which produce from nine provinces flows into the Hankow markets, while the port is equally important as a distributing point for foreign commerce destined to the Chinese interior.

"Hankow occupies the north bank of the Yangtze where the Han pours its muddy torrent. On the opposite side of the Han lies Hanyang, and across the mile-wide Yangtze, Wuchang, the lattera venerable town which was flourishing when Hankow was a fishing hamlet. Both Hanyang and Wuchang are a part of 'Greater Hankow' with more than a million and a half inhabitants.

"The Hankow river front is an amazing conglomeration of shipping. There are ungainly junks, but they move about the water in the hands of expert rivermen as easily as modern vessels in our busy eastern harbors. Some of them, displaying rotten hulks with gaping holes above the waterline, cause the traveler to wonder how they stay afloat, while now and then a huge high-pooped craft, adorned with brightly painted carvings and plates that make it look like a floating circus wagon, edges its way shoreward.

latter a venerable town which was "Small sampans dart here and perspiring coolies whose families, under matting-covered awnings, fill the air along the shore with the singsong chatter of the Orient. It is estimated that 25,000 native boats ply in and out of Hankow and its sister cities. Meanwhile modern steamboats from lower Yangtze points come and go on schedule.

"The walled city in the background also seethes with commercial activity to the tune of noises that strain the visitor's eardrums. Some of the narrow lanes are paved with flagstones, while others are mere ruts. Nevertheless, they are the playgrounds of thousands of children and the busy streets of a city which has been called the 'Hub of the Universe.'

"The children yell at play; the venders cry out their wares; coolies, bearing heavy burdens, warn passersby to dodge their bulky loads; beggars groan and moan; and rickshaw boys, without regard to pedestrians, shout as they hurry their fares through a jumbled mass of humanity. The yells of carriers of wealthy Chinese, as they bear their dignified masters, can be heard above the din, and the traveler wonders if these men are not employed for the strength of their vocal cords.

"But this is not all. Along the sidelines, the merchants bicker in loud voices with prospective purchasers in front of their shops. The frenzied spirit of bargaining somewhat resembles miniature civil wars.

"To the foreigner, the pedestrians in their loose-fitting clothing resemble pajama-clad citizens on parade, but the wearers are by no means ready to retire. Business in Hankow is almost a religion, and nearly every man seen on the street has to do with the enormous amount of commerce that flows through and past the port.

"If a traveler knows the advertising code in Hankow, he can locate any type of business by reading the shapes and colors of the shop signs which project over the narrow thoroughfares. For instance gold plates use salmon-colored boards with green characters. Druggists' boards are gilded. Black, gold, red and green are the predominating colors. On each sign is a motto and when a store changes hands, the sign is valued somewhat the same as American 'goodwill'."

TRIAL OF BOOTLEGGER ENDED IN A MISTRIAL

NEW YORK, June 20—(AP)—The prosecution of James McCunn, bootlegger to big business, and his three associates ended in a mistrial today after discovery that a member of the jury was a nephew by marriage to the chief defendant.

The juror was Edwin J. Carroll, a clerk, who had sworn he did not know McCunn and had never seen him until the trial started three days ago, but who declared at the opening of court this morning that McCunn resembled the man who had married his aunt. McCunn is a brother of the husband of Carroll's aunt. Authorities said an anonymous note disclosed the relationship.

Federal Judge Edwin R. Holmes of Mississippi, who presided at the trial, immediately declared a mistrial and U. S. Attorney Charles H. Tuttle said he would ask that Carroll be punished for contempt of court.

CURACAO LIVES AGAIN IN THE DAYS OF PIRATES

"In becoming the scene of a surprise attack by a band of looters, Curacao, small Dutch island of the Caribbean, forsook her slow existence as one of the quietest and most peaceful towns of the West Indies and flashed back to the rollicking, roaring, bloody days of the sixteenth and seventeenth centures, when this 'Spanish Main' was a freebooter's paradise," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

The chief city of the island, Willemstad (also called Curacao), a town of nearly 20,000 inhabitants, was attacked during the night of June 8, by a band of 500 men from the South American mainland; the forts and police headquarters were seized; a supply of arms and ammunition was stolen; an American ship was commandeered; and the adventures set sail for Venezuela with Curacao's governor and its chief of police as hostages.

"As astounding as this exploit appears to the twentieth century observer," continues the bulletin, "it is only a repetition, with slight alterations, of experiences from the island's past. Curacao has a fine harbor, one of the finest in the West Indies. This fact was recognized from the day that a Spanish explorer, Ojeda, a friend of Columbus, discovered the island in 1499; and at intervals the great naval powers have tried to claim the harbor for their own.

"It was given by the Spanish emperor to the government of Venezuela in 1622 and some time afterward a Spanish settlement was established on it. The Dutch captured it in 1634 and it served a decade later as political training ground for Peter Stuyvesant, who afterward was made governor of New Amsterdam, predecessor of New York city.

"Curacao suffered attacks in 1675 and 50 years later, both times from the French. On the second occasion the French were driven out by the British, who remained in possession of the island for two years. After the Dutch regained control Curacao experienced other attacks from English warships, and the island was under British control from 1805 to 1815.

"Since the latter date the Dutch have been undisputed owners of the barren little isle, but there was at least a threat from an entirely different quarter in 1902 when German men-of-war put into Curacao during their famous debt-collection demonstration against Venezuela. It was rumored that Germany dreamed of making the harbor a base for control of the West Indies.

"In spite of a population more than half made up of Negroes and Mulattoes, and with considerable numbers of Jews, Spaniards and South Americans, Curacao (or Willemstad, if one chooses) is intensely Dutch in appearance. Dutch cleanliness has been successfully transplanted to this tropical site, and the main streets, gutters, sidewalks, and walls are spic and span. Only in some of the narrow alleys of the Negro quarter is a lack of cleanliness to be noted.

"Curacao is approximately 40 miles long by three to seven miles wide, and lies 41 miles off the coast of Venezuela. The island is quite dry and produces little. Practically all food is imported, and even drinking water is brought from the mainland for those who can afford it. Others drink rain water caught from the roofs and stored in cisterns.

"The island's chief value is as a trading station, a value to which both its location and its harbor contribute. Lying just off the northern coast of South America, and controlled by a country famous for its peaceful and efficient political and commerical methods, it makes an ideal distributing and transfer point between its potentially wealthy but sometimes turbulent neighbors on the one hand, and Europe and North America on the other. Willemstad harbor is shaped like a banjo, with a narrow neck for an entrance and a large circular basin for anchorage and wharf locations. The town is built on both sides of the narrow entrance channel and along the flanks of the basin. A pontoon bridge crosses the channel and is swung aside to permit the passage of ships. A side-light on the town's population is furnished by the tolls charged on this bridge. 'Persons wearing shoes' pay 4-5 of one cent, 'persons without shoes,' 2-5 of one cent, for each passage.

"The well-to-do Dutch of Curacao make the gesture of maintaining country places on the barren stretches outside the city, but few plants other than cacti and aloes can be coaxed into growing throughout most of the island. The several ostrich ranches fit better into the picture. Fine, strong birds are grown and are sold to zoos and circuses or for breeding stock.

"The famous liqueur, curacao, is still distilled in small quantities on the island from the small bitter oranges grown locally, but the industry in the main has been taken over by Amsterdam.

"Petroleum is the greatest single factor in Curacao's present day activity, and one of the largest refineries in the world is maintained on the island. The crude petroleum is brought over in tank barges from the rich Venezuelan field around Lake Maracaibo. The numerous refined products are shipped from Curacao to various parts of the world."

MERCHANT ARRESTED ON CHARGE OF ASSAULT

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 20.— George Sherburne, proprietor of a store and market, 37 Howard street, was arrested today charged with assault and will be presented in the police court tomorrow. Sherburne was arrested as a result of a row he and Louis Sokol, 21, of 101 Squire street, engaged in and which resulted in Sokol sustaining a knife wound on the leg. Sokol, who is employed by a soda water distributing concern went to Sherburn's store for the purpose of making a delivery. An altercation occurred when Sherburne desired Sokol to remove the empty bottles from the store before delivering additional stock. The argument became heated and it ended, it is said, when a knife, Sherburne held in his hand, was thrown at Sokol, the blade inflicting a deep wound which required two stitches. Sokol claims that Sherburne intentionally hurled the knife at him, while the store proprietor declared that he had been using the knife to remove a bone from a piece of meat and that the greasy condition of his hand was responsible for the knife slipping from his grip as he waved his arm threateningly at Sokol.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Bread Theatre.

Every popular carnival attraction will be seen in operation in "The Spieler," a Dramatic Pathe picture coming to the Breed theatre today.

The entire locale of this photoplay whose featured players include Renee Adoree, Alan Hale, Fred Kohler and Clyde Cook, is laid on the grounds and in the tents of a traveling carnival show. "The Spieler," a Ralph Block production, was directed by Tay Garnett from an original story by Hal Conklin.

Said to be a fine production, "The Blue Danube," a new De Mille studio production starring Leatrice Joy will be seen at the Breed theatre on Sunday. Nils Asther plays opposite the star and Joseph Schildkraut, famous romantic actor also is featured. The supporting cast is quite adequate.

Palace Theatre.

"Speakeasy," the most convincing dialogue picture yet to reach the screen, is on view at the Palace theatre. It is a story of New York, filmed in New York, acted by a cast of thoroughly competent stage players and is so realistic one leaves the theatre with the thought of having just returned from a journey to the great metropolis.

Aside from the brilliant performances given by the players, and each one is effective in their respective roles, this all-dialogue Fox-Movietone photoplay is filled with numerous inspiring "shots" which keep the onlooker in a prolonged gasp of astonishment.

If you're a weak heart our advice to you is stay away from the Palace theatre, where Mack Sennett's new comedy-thriller, "The Old Barn," is holding sway. When you're not laughing at the funny things Daphne Pollard, Johnny Burke and Andy Clyde say (of course, it's all dialogue), you'll be clutching your seat in terror.

Other features on this program include a Pathe sound news, the world in scene and sound, Pathe sound revue, the wonder reel of the screen and Aesop's Sound Fable, see and hear those funny little animals.

After two long engagements on Broadway, first as a stage play with Blanche Yurka and more recently as a First National Vitaphone picture, "The Squall" comes to the Palace theatre for a three day engagement Sunday.

"The Squall" is an all-talking and singing production with Myrna Loy as Nubi, the Gypsy gale of passion from which the picture gets its title. It is an adaptation of the stage play by Jean Bart and has been transplanted to the screen with very few minor changes.

Broadway Theatre.

The Broadway theatre nert week is including in its program one of the snappiest and most entertaining pictures seen here in many days. It is "King of the Campus" one of "The Collegians" all-talking series of short screen comedy dramas. The series is built around the life and adventures in a fresh water co-educational college and is one of the liveliest college pictures ever screened.

George Lewis, a very presentable young Hollywood Adonis, is the star. He is the hero in the various athletic events of the college. Dorothy Gulliver, said to be a beauty contest prize winner, and rightly so, has the role of the most popular co-ed and the star's sweetheart. Hayden Stevenson is the coach, Eddie Phillips is the rival upperclassman and Churchill Ross the bookworm student. In addition there are scores of pretty co-eds and handsome college boys. Hollywood must have been closely combed to gather so much youth and beauty into one cast.

"The Collegians" stories were written by Carl Laemmle, Jr., and directed by Nat Ross for Universal. The productions are unusually elaborate for short screen offerings, and are keyed up to a high tempo of adventurous escapades, thrilling college contests and the spirited rivalries of the campus. Bring on the next one.

CHIEF TAFT ISSUES WARNING FOR JULY 4TH

In view of the fact that the Fourth of July, a day that generally makes work for the Norwich fire department is only about a week distant, Chief Henry R. Taft issues a warning to the residents of Norwich, advising them to take the necessary precautions now. The logical procedure at this time, the chief said, is to clean up the rubbish in the yards, so that they will be in spic and span condition for the Fourth. Chief Taft also recommends the closing of all windows in residences and buildings on Independence day. Fireworks in the hands of careless youths have been responsible for a large number of fires in the past, but with the co-operation of the residents of the city these can be brought down to a minimum.

NORWICH TOWN

SAMUEL HUNTINGTON SCHOOL GRADUATES CLASS OF 39

With a large assemblage of parents and friends assembled in the auditorium of the Samuel Huntington school, Norwich Town, Thursday afternoon at 2 o'clock, most interesting exercises were carried out by the graduating class of 39. This, the initiatory class to be graduated from this school, numbered 23 boys and 16 girls.

At the appointed hour, as the pianist, Henry J. LaFontaine executed an inspirational march led by Miss Josephine Lipsky, the class of 1929 filled down the center isle and took seats in front of the stage. Seated on the stage were Principal William G. Tarbox, Walter E. Lester, president of the school board and Rev. George Warren Potter, pastor of Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church. The stage was attractively decorated with several showering palms and at either side was a large decorative basket of red rose buds.

The class flower was the red rose. The declamations and recitations by those who had a part on the programme, were submitted in an excellent manner, showing the scholarly training received by the pupils. The spirited singing by the entire class under the skillful leadership of Mr. LaFontaine was a special feature. The class colors were blue and gold and the class motto was Excelsior. The class gift is to be a picture of the graduates, taken in front of the school at the conclusion of the exercises, with included also the principal, Mr. Tarbox, and the assistant principal, Miss Bennett. This is to be enlarged and framed and later will be hung in the principal's office in the school building, where other important pictures are now hung.

The class officers are: President, Robert Jamieson Agnew; vice president, Priscilla Mason Hough; secretary, Chester R. Maciejowski; treasurer, Doris Estelle Rose. The address given by Mr. Lester was both inspiring and uplifting. In his introductory words after addressing Principal Tarbox, parents, friends and graduates, he expressed the thought that the teaching force of the public schools of Norwich was second to none. He also spoke in commendatory words of the model school building, so adequate in its equipment for all needs. During the past few months this room said Mr. Lester, has been utilized for many different community gatherings, but this group today is a family group of fathers, mothers, sisters, brothers and friends. This is the greatest day of the year, the first time it has been used for this purpose. I cannot help but felicitate with you young ladies and gentlemen. You are on the threshold of a dignified attitude for what your future means to you. The thought that I would leave with you is that you all will make the best of the opportunities offered you and build upon and take advantage of them. If you do this, as life progresses, you will live up to the motto of your class.

Prior to presenting the diplomas to the class as each name was called and as the graduates marched across the stage, Mr. Lester said: These diplomas signify the completion of your term at this school. Wherever you go, you carry the well wishes for a prosperous future in all your undertakings. Following this, the presentation of gifts took place. In behalf of the class the president, Robert J. Agnew, presented Principal Tarbox a five-dollar gold piece; while Miss Priscilla M. Hough, vice president, in behalf of the class presented the assistant principal, Miss Florence M. Bennett a five-dollar gold piece also. Both teachers, taken by surprise, acknowledged the gifts in comforting and appreciative words, needing the class of their devotion and willingness to help each one at any time and to consider them their friends always. The honor students were first in order of rank, Kenneth J. Kivlin, second, Miss Josephine Lipsky; with honorable mention to Edward W. Connell, first, and Robert J. Agnew, second. Another feature of interest was when Miss Priscilla Mason Hough was called to the stage and had a medal pinned on her dress by Principal Tarbox. The medal was from the National Society of Colonial Daughters, for a patriotic essay, the one essay selected from Norwich schools, which eventually is to be sent to Washington to be placed on file. Miss Hough was congratulated for her honor in achieving the medal. The programme concluded with the entire company singing America.

Two seventh-grade pupils, Charles Ryan and Lon Charles Maples, distributed the programmes. The class and teachers are to hold a picnic at Mohegan park, Monday next. Following is the programme, also the list of graduates:

YALE CREWS MAKE SWEEP OF THAMES RIVER REGATTA VARSITY WON, 41-2 LENGTHS

Eli Varsity Eight Finished Strong—Harvard Crew Seemed Exhausted, Several of the Men Dropping Over Their Oars at the Finish—Start Was Made in Perfect Style—After the First Few Hundred Yards the Yale Boat Steadily Forged Ahead—The Freshman Race Was Closely Contested, the Eli Youngsters Having a Margin of Three-Quarters of a Length—Harvard Junior Varsity Lost by Four Lengths—Yale Varsity Time Was 21 Minutes, 20 Seconds.

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 21.—(AP)—Propelling their slim racing craft for all the world like so many robots of rowing, Yale's oarsmen smashed the challenges of Harvards' gallant fleet today with exhibitions of skill and power that were as impressive to watch as they no doubt seemed invincible to the Crimson.

Morning and evening, it was mostly blue sky and all blue victory as the ancient Thames river played host to the greatest and most colorful fleet of visiting craft in the regatta's history.

The Yale varsity, rowing a front race all the way after the first quarter mile, brought the regatta to a climax with a one sided triumph in the four miles pull upstream, measured by four and a half lengths, after the Eli freshmen and junior varsity crews had raced to triumph in the preliminary events in the morning.

Yale Crew Kept On Rowing

As a crowning gesture the brilliant Yale varsity as if it had not had enough exercise in the long up stream pull, kept right on rowing without the slightest let up until they reached the Harvard wharf at Red Top on the opposite side of the river. There the Eli's apparently satiated to call it a day's work, waited to greet with a cheer the tired losers, most of whom had slumped over their oars as the Crimson shell finished.

The statistics of this regatta add remarkable lustre to Yale's rowing prowess and the great record that the Elis have compiled particularly since the advent of Ed Leader as head coach. It was the fifth clean sweep of all the races for the Blue in seven years. It was the sixth time in that same period that the Elis captured both morning races and, as a final touch of supremacy, the eighth time in nine years that honors in the classic varsity race have gone to Yale's sweeps wingers.

Just One Thrill For Harvard

There was one just thrill for Harvard in the whole regatta and it came in the first race of the day, for freshman crews. With barely a half mile of its two-mile event to go, the Crimson yearlings spurted into a lead and looked like winners only to yield to a spectacular finish by the Eli cubs who came on as though inspired in the last quarter-mile to win by three quarters of a length in the most exciting race of the regatta.

It was not even close in either of the other two races. Over the same two miles course, mid-way in the varsity channels, Yale's junior varsity won easily by four lengths to complete the morning events. This evening the Eli big eight clinched the regatta with an even more impressive victory.

Some 60,000 Spectators

To those of the colorful crowd of sixty thousand spectators who could see anything of the finish from shores, boats or observation trains, it appeared that Yale's varsity won as it pleased with sufficient power in reserve to have put many more lengths between it and the struggling Crimson boatload if it had so desired. The margin of four and a half lengths, as a matter of fact, represented a reduction of the approximate six lengths margin that the Elis held after three miles had been covered. The difference was accounted for by Yale's apparent let up as well as by the desperate effort of the Crimson to close as much of the big gap as possible. Its result was to make the defeat for Harvard, decisive though it was, considerably less crushing than last year, when the Blue finished ten lengths to the good.

Harvard Strong At Start

For barely the first 440 yards it appeared as though Harvard might do something about this blue machine that has been grinding out victories by the wholesale. The Crimson was first to settle into racing stride and stick its prow in front but that was all. As if to give their rivals a taste of what was to come the Yale oarsmen responded to the call of Coxswain E. B. Loomis, of Convent Station, N. J., and the powerful racing of Stroke Art Palmer of Glen Ellen, Illinois, to shoot their shell in front. In less than a furlong Yale had a half length. Inside of a mile, nearly a length separated the rival craft. Open water showed soon afterwards from then on it was just a procession.

Two lengths at the mile and half, three lengths at the two mile marker, four lengths at the two and a half point, five lengths at the three mile stakes and fully six lengths in another half mile—that was the way Yale's lead mounted. In the last half mile, Harvard actually cut six seconds off the Eli lead. Exactly 19 seconds separated them at the finish but there was a bigger difference in rhythm and power. Like automatons, Yale's eight swept smoothly over the finish line while Harvard's bulkier boat load splashed and strained.

Times For The Races

Yale's time for the four miles was 21 minutes, 20 seconds, more than a minute behind the upstream record of 20:14 2-5 set by the Elis themselves in 1926. Harvard's time was 21:39.

The times for the other races:

Freshman: Yale 10:07 and Harvard 11:00 3-5; Junior Varsity Yale, 11:00 and Harvard 11:12 4-5.

For its background the regatta that renewed the 77-year old rivalry of Crimson and Blue presented one of the most brilliant spectacles in its long history. A record fleet of pleasure craft of every size and description jammed the old river from the railroad bridge where the varsity race started, to the finishing point off Bartlett's cove. Conservatively, it was estimated that the thousands of boats at anchor represented an outlay of one hundred million by owners, some of whose fortunes no doubt exceed that sum alone. Pages upon pages of Who's Who in America were represented in the gathering of wealth and fashion, concentrated mostly upon the decks of the magnificent fleet riding at anchor. Probably 30,000 people altogether saw some part of the races from the river while as many more looked on from the adjoining Connecticut hills, from the tops and shores as well as observation trains.

SEAPLANE CRASHED INTO A SMALL LAUNCH

NEW LONDON, June 21—(AP) — A seaplane owned by the American Air Express crashed into a small launch in the Thames river, early tonight just after the Yale-Harvard varsity race was completed. The plane was badly damaged but the pilot was rescued.

The plane, moored to a boat during the race, attempted to take off a few minutes afterward, but failed to gain sufficient altitude, crashing into the launch, which, empty, was anchored close by. The plane then took a nose dive into the river but the pilot succeeded in extricating himself and was picked up by the coast guard cutter Nemaha.

A Mail Pouch With $75,000 Missing

Mysterious Disappearance of Two Mail Sacks From Ansonia Postoffice.

ANSONIA, June 21—(AP)—The disappearance of two mail sacks from the post office here was as much a mystery tonight as it was when the loss was reported Thursday. According to Postmaster A. W. Jeynes, a substantial reward has been offered by the post office department for the recovery of the pouches, one of which is believed to contain about $75,000 and a second pouch containing checks.

The pouches disappeared Thursday morning, shortly after ten o'clock. The one containing the money was sent from Boston from the Federal Reserve bank to an Ansonia bank, with three other pouches, but according to Esko Burgess, the messenger employed to carry the sacks to and from the post office, only three were given to him. The second sack was said to have been delivered to Burgess by the post office to be put aboard a train for New Haven and contained checks from the Ansonia Electrical company consigned to the Merchants' National bank, in New Haven. Burgess told postal inspectors that he delivered this pouch to the train crew, but they denied receiving it.

Burgess, according to postal authorities, denies having received four pouches from the Boston train and is just as strong in his assertion that he put the other missing sack aboard the train for New Haven. He was not taken into custody by the authorities and today was working at his regular duties of carting the mail to and from the train to the post office.

The possibility of the loss of the pouches was strengthened today when the post office department announced that a substantial reward would be paid for the recovery of the missing sacks.

PAN-AMERICAN COUNCIL IN SESSION AT BOSTON

BOSTON, June 21—(AP)— America, South Africa and Europe were represented in the speakers at the Pan-Presbyterian council meeting here today. The speakers included Rev. Dr. A. L. Warnshuis of New York, American secretary of the international missionary council; Rev. Dr. Robert Lawe of Livingstonia, South Africa; Rev. Dr. J. MacDonald Webster of Scotland, and Rev. John Stuart Conning of New York.

The paper of Rev. Warnshuis aroused much interest. He limited his discussion to problems met by union churches in the east. He said in part, "it appears that union with congregational churches in China and India has not been prevented by either doctrinal questions or differences in policy. Moreover, in the Church of Christ in China, it has been found possible for some of the Baptist churches to enter the union. While these churches in Europe and America that are cooperating in these union churches in other lands are still unable themselves to unite because of historical differences, the lines of cleavage have not been arbitrarily extended to their missionary work in other continents."

Dr. Webster and Dr. Conning each told of doing missionary work among the Jews, Dr. Webster in Scotland and Dr. Conning in this country. Dr. Lawe told of the obstacles to mission work that still remain in Africa.

REMARRIED BY JUDGE THAT DIVORCED THEM

CHICAGO, June 21—(AP)—Someone smiled in Judge Joseph Sabath's court here today. It was a strange thing to do there where the hours are filled with tales of broken homes and hearts.

A young couple advanced and was introduced by Barrett O'Hara, former lieutenant governor of Illinois.

"This is Mrs. Esther Williams of Evanston," he said, "and this is her divorced husband, Carl Williams of Chicago. You gave them a divorce last November. They decided to get married and won't have anyone but you, Judge Sabath."

"They were childhood sweethearts in Boston and married at Marlboro, Mass. They just didn't hitch and were divorced.

"Divorce in haste and repent at leisure," said the judge after he had married them.

ALLEGED BOOTLEGGER HELD IN $3,000 BONDS

NEW BRITAIN, June 21—(AP)—William Grabowsky, 24, who police describe as a bootlegger, was held in $3,000 bonds today for trial in the superior court on charges of transporting liquor and resisting an officer. Grabowsky is the man who, when stopped in front of a store here last night, by Patrolman Daniel Cosgrove, attempted to strike him with an axe and kicked him and was subdued only when the policeman used his nightstick.

Patrolman Cosgrove said that Grabowsky was about to deliver a can of alcohol at the store when he motioned to him. Grabowsky according to the policeman, had the can of alcohol under his coat. The policeman sought to look at the can, but Grabowsky bent down, picked up an axe lying near the store and tried to strike the officer with it. When Cosgrove caught his arm, Grabowsky kicked him, it was said.

ARMENIAN GIRL MUST RETURN TO HOMELAND

BOSTON, June 21—(AP)—Haygouhi Tersian, 20 year old Armenian girl, must return to her homeland, Judge Morton ruled in federal court today. The girl's claim to being a music student was regarded as a subterfuge to gain entrance to this country in evasion of the Armenian alien quota.

The girl landed a month ago at Providence, R. I., and, the authorities said, admitted that she had been a textile worker in France for several years. She said she studied the piano at the suggestion of New York relatives and sought entrance as a student of piano technique.

15 ESCAPED CONVICTS ARE STILL AT LARGE

BRAZORIA, Tex., June 21—(AP)—With one of the 43 convicts who escaped from the Clemens state prison farm early Thursday dead and four others wounded, search continued tonight for 15 men still at large.

Prison authorities announced that 28 of the convicts had been accounted for and that severe punishment, probably whipping, would be dealt out to those responsible for the break.

Twenty five armed guards were searching a dense woodland near Sweeney where some of the remaining fugitives were believed to be hiding.

A body identified as that of S. W. Martin, sent up from El Paso for forgery, was found in the San Bernard river near the farm. It was believed he drowned in attempting to swim the stream.

Lee Halley and Tom Nichols were shot and recaptured by Joe Roaden, a guard. Roaden fired on the men with a shotgun and brought them down with serious wounds in the back when they attempted to run. Two other convicts were slightly wounded by a rancher and returned to the farm.

Two trusties were being held in close confinement, blamed for engineering the break.

"I feel sure they are the ones who slipped pistols to Joe Williams and Robert Massey, ringleaders of the break," said Captain W. M. Hickman, manager of the farm.

"We are going to the bottom of this break, and if we back up our suspicions I will see that the men are severely punished, either by whipping or solitary confinement."

MANCHESTER, England, June 21—(AP)—The required month's notice of a 13.82 per cent reduction in wages will be given immediately to nearly 500,000 workers as the result of the decision today of the Western Cotton Spinners. The notice will be accompanied by an invitation to representatives of the men to meet with the employers federation and discuss the situation.

RELIGIOUS CONTROVERSY IN MEX. HAS BEEN SETTLED

Public Statement Issued by President Gil—Roman Catholic Priests Are to Register in Compliance With Mexican Laws—Religious Instruction Will Not Be Permitted in Schools, But Will Be Permitted in the Churches—Catholic Clergy Will Resume Religious Services Pursuant to the Laws in Force.

MEXICO CITY, June 21.—(AP)—Simultaneous announcements tonight by President Emilio Portes Gil and Archbishop Leopoldo Ruiz, senior member of the Catholic hierarchy in Mexico, informed the country which has been at strife for three years that the long standing controversy between church and state was at an end.

The archbishop, who was papal delegate for the negotiations, told the children of the church that the priests would resume leadership of the services in the churches, as they have not done since August 1, 1926. He called on them "to cooperate with all moral efforts made for the benefit of all people of our fatherland."

The statement of the president, which the church delegates had seen and approved at a final conference this evening, gave the basis on which agreement was reached on the three principal issues. The terms give the church the right to specify those ministers in charge of property who should register under the laws, give it the right to instruct adults or children within the precincts of the church although not elsewhere in public or private schools and stress that under the constitution any citizen may apply at any time for amendment, repeal or passage of any law.

The agreement was broad enough to permit reoccupation of the churches by priests although not a complete settlement of all differences between church and state. The way was left open for future discussion of these if Catholic subjects of Mexico desire to seek an change in the state constitution.

The bishops did not state when regular services would begin but it was believed that the priests would begin to preoccupy the churches within a few days. In expectation of an favorable outcome of the negotiations people had thronged the churches of the capital for the past several days.

The basis of the religious agreement is as follows:

President Portes Gil issued a public statement promising three things:

(1) The Mexican government will allow the Catholic hierarchy to designate those priests who are to register in compliance with Mexican laws.

(2) Religious instruction, while not permitted in the schools (which is specified in the constitution) will be permitted within the churches.

(3) The right is reserved to Mexican Catholic prelates to apply for modification of the constitution any time in the future, which is the same right granted all Mexican citizens.

The president's statement said it was not the purpose of the constitution or the government to destroy the identity of the Catholic or any other church, or interfere in any way with their spiritual functions.

With reference to "provisions of the law which have been misunderstood" the president set forth three points:

1—That the law requiring registration of the priests doesn't mean the government can register those who haven't been named for that purpose by the church authorities.

2—While the constitution prohibits religious instruction in public and private schools, it doesn't prevent such instruction within the church confines.

3—Members of any church resident in Mexico may at any time avail themselves of the constitutional privilege of petitioning for amendment, repeal or passage of any law.

A simultaneously issued statement by Archbishop Ruiz, papal delegate, said merely that the conversations with the president had been marked by a spirit of good will and respect and that as a consequence of the president's written public statement the Mexican clergy will resume religious services pursuant to the laws in force.

After holding conference for an hour early this afternoon, the president and archbishop and Bishop Diaz met again at Chapultepec palace at 4 p. m. to affix their signatures to the declarations prepared for the press. It was more than an hour later when these were finally distributed, and then with the restrictions to publication in newspapers of Saturday, June 22, throughout the world.

DISBARMENT OF READING TAKEN UNDER ADVISEMENT

BOSTON, June 21—(AP)—The resignation of Arthur K. Reading as attorney general after a house committee had reported articles of impeachment was characterized as "a confession of guilt" by Frederick W. Mansfield, president of the State Bar association, in concluding the prosecution for the disbarment of Reading in supreme court here today. The case was taken under advisement by Judge George A. Sanderson. A decision may not be given for several weeks.

"No man worthy to hold that high office would surrender while there was breath of life in his body unless he was guilty," declared Mansfield. "And while he escaped impeachment there I impeach him here where he can't resign."

Acts of Reading in the Decimo club and United L. A. W. cases were described by Mansfield as "despicable and brutal." He declared that Hugo B. Monjar, president of the club, had turned over property because he feared arrest and that Louis A. Wolfe, head of the L. A. W. company was "coerced and frightened" into making a settlement. In the course of his argument he exonerated Herbert L. Barrett, an associate of Reading's in his dealing with the Decimo club, from knowledge of anything improper in regard to Reading's activities.

Reading, who has been his own counsel during the three weeks of the trial, said in his closing argument that there was no evidence that protection was given to or sought by the Decimo club in Massachusetts and that the $25,000 he received was a fee for properly rendered legal services. He denied that he had ever made any threats to Wolfe.

Concluding, he said, "I regret acts which I realize now were not always exercised in the best judgment but which were done with no desire or intent to do anything wrong."

MAY BE MEMBERS OF STATE-WIDE RUM RING

NEW HAVEN, June 21—(AP)—Officials believe that through the arrest of six men made today by state police as the result of a raid made in May, at the Wampawaug poultry farm, in Woodbridge, they have secured members of a state-wide rum ring. At the time of the raid, five men were arrested and with the six taken today, state authorities feel certain that they have the leaders in the rum making end. Further raids in different parts of the state will probably take place to connect up if possible, any subsidiary plants the ring has in operation.

The men arrested today on bench warrants were Caremila Cococoma, Salvatore Battalglio, Elliot Burgess and Dominick LaMonte, all of New Britain, and Tony Esposito and Michael Reverso, of New Haven. The five that were arrested in May at the time of the raid, were Harry T. Lutterman, former kleagle of the Ku Klux Klan, of the state and who was the owner of the poultry farm, Anthony Perrotti, paroled state prisoner, Ernest Porter, Anthony DeFalla and Anthony Spagone. The latter five have been out on bail since the raid.

The eleven men will appear for court session here next Tuesday. State Attorney Hoyt would not state on what charges the men will be arraigned.

The distillery on the poultry farm was one of the largest that has been seized by police in the state. There were two stills, one of a 2,000 gallon capacity and another of 500.

WILL H. HAYS HAS BEEN GRANTED DIVORCE

SULLIVAN, Ind., June 21—(AP)—Will H. Hays, "czar" of the motion picture industry, has been granted a divorce from Helen Thomas Hays and given the custody of their 14-year old son, William Harrison Hays Jr. The divorce was granted yesterday by Judge Arthur De Baun, in the Sullivan circuit court, but it did not become known until today.

The petition, filed last April, said Mr. and Mrs. Hays were married in 1902 but separated because of the incompatability of their temperaments and had not lived together for several years.

The action was not contested by Mrs. Hays. She did not appear in court but was represented by Michael Foley, an Indianapolis attorney and an old friend of the family. Mr. Hays was represented by local counsel.

Hays was republican national chairman in 1920 and postmaster general in President Harding's cabinet. Hays resigned the cabinet post to become president of the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors of America, the position he now holds. His home city was republican state chairman in Indiana.

Sullivan is the home town of Mr. Hays. It is understood Mrs. Hays intends to live in Rawfordsville, Ind., her former home.

GROUND CREW SAVES DIXON FROM INEVITABLE CRASH

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 21—Lieut. Carl A. Dixon, 43rd Div. Air Service, and chief operations officer for the L. and H. Aircraft Corp. of Hartford and his mechanic and a third person were saved from an inevitable crash at Windham Plains, two miles east from this city shortly before five o'clock this afternoon by the timely forewarning of a broken landing gear on the lieutenant's plane. Speedy action on the part of C. H. Blank, who is at the field at a week-end air meet for the aircraft concern and volunteer members of a ground crew assisted by Franchy Descombe, pilot, prevented the accident. Pilot Descombe, accompanied by Mrs. Descombe, had landed at the field as the first of a number of ships to take part in the meet here. Later in the afternoon Lieut. Dixon who had been engaged in aerial photographic work over Springfield earlier in the day appeared over the field.

The pilot was coming in for a landing when those on the ground noticed that a brace of the landing gear to which was attached one of the wheels was hanging loose. Manager Blank, Pilot Descombe and others rushed out with red signals and succeeded in keeping Dixon from landing when he was about 200 feet above the field. Pilot Descombe then left the field to escort the damaged plane back to Hartford. A telephone report from Brainard field one hour later was to the effect that Lieut. Dixon was hovering over the field while his mechanic was suspended from the undercarriage in attempt to fasten the wheel. The near crash was witnessed by several hundred people who had gathered for the opening of the events of the meet.

Manager Blank indicated that the schedule would go on as arranged tomorrow in the event that Lieut. Dixon landed without injury.

While anxiety prevailed here, daring acts were thrilling the vast crowd at Hartford as Dixon's ship underwent repairs in the air. The damage was caused when a safety chain in the strut snapped for some unaccountable reason on the trip from Hartford to this city, allowing the lower strut and right landing wheel to dangle in the air. Upon arriving at Brainard field, Pilot Descombe took on board Sergeant C. P. Kinkead of the L. & H. Aircraft company who carried with him a strong rope. Returning to the air, Sergeant Kinkead, walked out on the wing of his plane and lowered the rope to Dixon's ship. Mechanic Weigard, who had already crawled out onto the lower landing gear caught the rope. The 19-year-old mechanic fastened the strut by tying the hanging piece into position. With the passengers acting as a counterbalance against the damaged right strut Lieut. Dixon then brought his ship down to a perfect landing without damage to ship and injury to the occupants. Lieut. Dixon explained that he had understood the signal of Manager Blank to indicate a damaged landing gear and his first intention was to use up his supply of gasoline to prevent a fire hazard and make a forced landing. He had to land either on the field, which would necessitate a broken wing or in the river, from which the ship could be salvaged. "I wasn't going to crack up my ship," said the lieutenant, as he received the congratulations of co-pilots and others. Manager Blank was warmly thanked at 5.50 o'clock by telephone by Lieut. Dixon for the part which he played in preventing a smash-up and taking a venture with a fortunate ending.

Lieut. Dixon, following his safe landing at Hartford, stated that he would fly to New York Saturday morning to secure a new landing gear for his plane, returning at once to Hartford. He informed Manager Blank that he would leave for the air meet at Willimantic about noon Saturday, accompanied by five or six ships including army training planes. Among the pilots who will come here during the meet will be Capt. Herbert H. Mills, Capt. Hubert Thompson, of the 43rd Div. Air Service.

Willimantic people turned out in numbers late this afternoon to see the flight of this city's first licensed pilot. He is Pilot Harry Young of Lebanon avenue, who received his license some time ago at Brainard field, Hartford. Pilot Young, manning a Challenger C-3, powered with a Curtis OX-5 motor, arrived at the local field this afternoon and entertained the crowd with a number of well-executed stunts culminating in perfect landings.

A collision of automobiles shortly after 5 o'clock this afternoon in front of the Nathan Hale hotel resulted in damage to both machines and drew a crowd of spectators. The cars involved were a coupe, operated by Philip Copeland of 2 Lincoln avenue this city, who was coming westerly on Main street, and a sedan driven by Marie Toole of 525 Main street, Hartford. Mrs. Toole was turning around on Main street and she claimed that Copeland's machine was not in view when she started to make the turn. The front of her car had passed the center of the road when the right front wheel and bumper jammed into the left front wheel of the local machine, demolishing that wheel and dishing the right front wheel. The coupe was hauled from the scene. Officer John Killiquey investigated the accident.

Two steel vaults in the Willimantic Savings Institute building, which is undergoing extensive alterations, presented a hard problem to the workmen. The vaults had been installed when the building was erected in 1870. Both are nine feet high and six by eight feet wide. Brick walls two feet in thickness enclosed the steel walls and the former had to be penetrated by compressed air drills. Oxy-acetelene torches were then used to cut the steel. One of the vaults was on the second floor and had not been used for some years. Its original use was by the offices of the borough and later the municipal government before the town building was built in 1897. The vault on the lower floor has been in constant use by the bank.

DANIELSON

FOSTER WOMAN GETS 60-DAY FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 21—Mrs. Isabelle DeFlora who has been living at North Foster, just over the Rhode Island line from East Killingly, broke a record—or made one, as you like—for this town this morning when she was sentenced to serve 60 days in the county jail for operating a motor vehicle while she was intoxicated. She is the first woman to go to jail from the Killingly town court for such a reason. Mrs. DeFlora was arrested last evening by Lieut. Ross V. Urquhart and State Officer James Carmody while she was driving her car from the vicinity of Killingly Center toward East Killingly, in company with another woman. She resisted being taken into custody and the state officers had both a difficult and distasteful duty to perform in getting her to the barracks. Mrs. DeFlora is about 45 years of age, and with her husband has been living in North Foster for some time past. Mrs. DeFlora not only declined to say more relative to where she obtained the intoxicant she had been drinking other than that it was given her by a friend, and she told the court that she had no money with which to pay a fine. After questioning her to some extent, Prosecuting Attorney A. G. Bill recommended a jail sentence, and it was imposed by Judge W. Fenner Woodward.

This afternoon Henry Boutitte, who has been living in Voluntown, was turned over to Pawtucket officers who came here to take him back to Rhode Island to answer to a charge of theft. Boutitte was arrested at Voluntown during the early hours of this morning by State Officers Royal Scranton and Theodore Strand and brought to the Danielson barracks. With him also came a canoe, which has been identified as one stolen on a night about four weeks ago from Stump Hill pond, a short distance from Pawtucket. The canoe went back with the officers and Boutitte this afternoon. Boutitte's arrest followed revelations made by his grand-son, Clarence King, 16, and Richard Barrie, 18, who were arrested by State Officer Scranton for robbing the Glasgo General store a night about a week ago. They took away boxes of cigars, candy, a camera, cigar lighters and other things, it is charged in the complaint against them.

Statements made by King led to the arrest of his grand-father, King, who has been living in Voluntown 13 weeks, having come there from Pawtucket, has a record of serving a sentence in the Howard reformatory in Rhode Island for stealing bicycles, and also has faced other charges without conviction. The case against the youths was continued when they were presented in court before Judge Barry today.

PUTNAM

FRACTURES BOTH LEGS IN RAILROAD ACCIDENT

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 21.—Fred Cournoyer of Franklin, Mass., was seriously injured in Thompson this morning when a railroad crane dropped a boom on the lower part of his body, fracturing both legs and causing internal injuries. According to a late report from the Day Kimball hospital tonight Cournoyer's condition is regarded as being critical.

Cournoyer was a member of the section gang employed on the Midland division of the New Haven railroad. The gang, for the past few days, has been engaged in the renewing of a stretch of track about one mile out of Thompson. To speed up the work a crane was employed to lift the new rails from the flatcar to the ground. Cournoyer walked in under the swinging derrick as it was returning to position. At this moment a carter pin slipped out of place releasing the boom of the crane. The extreme weight of the boom fell on the workman's back, crushing him to the ground under it. When fellow workmen reached his side they at once discovered the fractures of his legs. A telegram was sent to Putnam and the Day Kimball hospital ambulance was held in waiting at the Putnam railroad station and met the bruised and battered body of Cournoyer which was brought from the scene of the accident to this city in the caboose of the worktrain.

Word was received here today of the death of Isaac Chapeau, former Putnam business man who died Thursday in Hartford. Mr. Champeau was for a number of years a resident of Putnam and was widely known in this section of the country. Mr. Champeau was for a number of years manager of the People's store which has since become the Byrne company, and his last position in Putnam was that of manager of the ladies' department of the Bugbee corporation. At the time of his death Mr. Champeau was employed in a large Hartford department store working in a capacity similar to positions he held in this town.

Mr. Champeau was a member of the Putnam lodge of Elks, he being a past exalted ruler of the organization. He was also actively connected with the Cargill council, Knights of Columbus, and was affiliated with several of the French fraternal societies in the north end of the city. He was a member of St. Mary's church of this city. Surviving Mr. Champeau are three sisters, and a brother, Frank Chapeau of Church street.

An unidentified man, about forty years of age was committed to the Day Kimball hospital Thursday evening after he had suffered attacks of a lung disease on Front street. The victim was acting strange and suddenly lapsed into unconsciousness. He was taken into a restaurant on Front street and was later examined by a physician who ordered him committed to the Day Kimball hospital. It was stated this afternoon that the man had improved today. Efforts to learns his identity were fruitless.

Attorney Irving H. Miron, counsel for Andrew Dominick of Phoenixville who was recently defendant in a superior court civil damage suit pressed against him by Arnold C. Kent, also of Phoenixville, disclosed a judgment made yesterday by Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin. The hearing of the case proved to be of unusual interest to the residents of this city. The case grew out of the sale of a gasoline station to Kent by Dominick. Within a few weeks after the deal had been consumated state authorities failed to renew Kent's license to operate the station. Kent entered suit against Dominick charging that the defendant had defrauded him. In his decision Judge Marvin stated that in weighing the evidence he saw no error or any clandestine intentions against Kent by Dominick and decided for Dominick.

Deputy Sheriff Charles A. Ayer on Thursday replevined a Chrysler sedan from Robert Diamond, local automobile dealer for the Rhode Island motor sales company, who claim that the car was tolen from them by a high powered salesman two weeks ago. Mr. Diamond purchased the car, ignorant of the fact that he was acquiring stolen property, from Charles Crawford of Providence, now of parts unknown. The local police hold a warrant for the arrest of Crawford. It is alleged that he came to Putnam about a fortnight ago and consummated a deal with Diamond, promising to return the following day with a bill of sale. Before leaving Putnam Crawford completed a second automobile deal with another local dealer and then disappeared and has not been seen or heard from since.

IN NORWICH FIFTY YEARS AGO

Many little newsy items were contained in the columns of The Norwich Morning Bulletin in the week beginning June 16, 1879, and include the following:

Monday, June 16 — Chief Engineer Hendrick of the New Haven fire department and Fire Commissioner Roof of the same city were in the city Saturday looking at the old Torrent engine stored in the house of the Norwich Hose, No. 4. This engine is to be taken to New Haven to be placed in the Fourth of July procession to show by contrast the advance made in fire extinguishing apparatus in the last century. Chief Engineer Carrier entertained them. (Editor's note: This piece of apparatus is still in existence and is located at the Central fire station.)

SPRING HILL

The Children's day concert of the Baptist church was held at Spring Hill Sunday evening with the superintendent, W. P. Wildes and Mrs. Frances Gifford in charge. The church was beautifully decorated with laurel, peonies and roses with a rainbow arch above the platform. In place of the scripture reading the young people responded to Bible questions on Friendships of Jesus. The welcome was given by H. Kennison. There were group recitations and songs by the Sunday school children. A brief talk was given by the pastor, Rev. Florence Jones who then presented certificates to five members of the beginner's class and to seven graduates from the primary department.

ANOTHER SURPLUS.

Another week and the government's fiscal year will be at an end. Then it will be possible to tell exactly what the surplus is. Surplus is mentioned because it was indicated a few days ago by figures given out by the budget bureau that there would be a surplus somewhere in the neighborhood of $100,000,000. If it proves to be larger than that it will not surprise. The treasury department places its lowest estimate at $150,00,000, but in doing so it includes the $45,000,000 which must eventually go to the railroads for back pay for carrying the mails and it is anticipating that such payment will not have to be made until July.

That there is a surplus indicated is cause for gratification. The outlook was not always favorable. At one time the statement was made that a deficit was threatened. It could have resulted without any trouble if congress had insisted upon wading in and making appropriations recklessly. Congress yielded to pleas but that is not the whole reason for the probable surplus. During the year, as in other years, there have been receipts which could not be anticipated. However clever those officials are who make the estimates they could not foresee that customs duties would show an increase of $30,000,000 because importers brought a huge volume of goods into the country in anticipation of a boost in tariff rates.

It is a satisfaction to know that revenue has continued to gain even though there have been tax reductions. This indicates a healthy state of business, greatly strengthens the position of the treasury and provides the means of further lowering the national indebtedness. Thus it is to be hoped that the treasury department wasn't too optimistic when it placed the surplus somewhere between $150,000,000 and $200,000,000.

LIPTON'S CHALLENGE ACCEPTED

Not many of them get to see the contest but Americans are much interested in yacht racing, and particularly so when the test is between an American sloop and one sent here from across the water by Thomas Lipton.

For about three decades now Sir Thomas has carried the impression that he could secure a yacht that would lift the America's cup. He has sent over four Shamrocks without success, although the last race was particularly close. Though he has failed to lift the cup Sir Thomas Lipton is a good loser. He is in love with the sport, he has the means to indulge his likes and his confidence hasn't been shaken in the ultimate success of his effort.

With the prompt acceptance of Sir Thomas Lipton's challenge by the New York Yacht club the next step must be to produce a defender for even though the race isn't until a year from September there are many details which need to be cared for. According to the terms of the race the yachts will be 76 footers and this race is to be sailed off Newport instead of Sandy Hook. Experiences in other races caused the abandonment of the latter course. More favorable sailing conditions it is believed will be found off Newport while the provision that there shall be no time allowance is bound to pep up the close. With closely matched yachts this means that each will be on its merits and the one crossing the line first will be the winner.

These international contests provide an opportunity for drawing comparisons between the yacht builders of the respective countries and the ability of the crews in handling the craft. The skill that is displayed in both directions has a bearing upon the outcome of the contest. It was in 1920 that the last race was sailed, so that the time is ripe for another one.

PRODUCE TREES.

Reference has been frequently made to the opportunity which exists for growing trees on unused or waste land in Connecticut and the other New England states. There are demonstration forests which show what can be done and there are private pieces of woodland which tell their own story and provide a nice yearly income for their owners. But the difference between what is being done and what ought to be done in order to more nearly supply the demands for timber is great.

According to Forestry almanac there were at one time 39,000,000 acres of forests in New England. There are today but 26,000,000. Part of this has given way to city and farm land development, but there are 5,000,000 acres which have been denuded and nothing has been done to replace the trees that were removed. This is probably due to the fact that it is not suitable for anything else, but no effort has been made to have it produce more trees.

When we stop to realize that there is a demand for one and two thirds billion feet of lumber every year in the New England states and that only about 300,000,000 board feet are cut here it becomes evident that the lumber market here is quite as attractive for other states and perhaps others countries as it is for the New England producers. The freight bill for getting lumber here from other states and Canada is enormous, and there is no reason why that business could not be, to a large extent, handled by New England producers.

The land that is not used, the waste land and the acres which have cut over and allowed to remain idle could be employed for the growing of trees that would supply a nearby market and reduce the amount which it is now necessary to import.

It will be said that this is an industrial state, and it is, but that doesn't take care of the idle land that is to be found in all directions. There are sections which ought to be put to some use. There is land which is too valuable to devote to a crop of trees. There is much that is just fit for such a purpose but even that isn't employed to supply what is really needed in Connecticut.

CHILDREN AND AUTOS.

Many are the cities which can appreciate the indignation felt in the city of Washington over the speed at which automobiles are driven on some of the streets and the accidents and deaths resulting therefrom.

This week a five year old was killed when struck by an automobile at a point where another child was seriously injured last month and residents are reported as protesting the speed that is made at that point.

In this particular fatality witnesses are quoted as declaring that the child ran in front of the machine, the driver of which did all possible to avoid striking the youngster but without success.

While there is much fast driving and it would appear that many accidents could be avoided if such speed was not being made, it is nevertheless a fact that in the cases where children are involved they are running in the street in a way which ought not to be tolerated by their parents. Those cases where children have been struck do not represent the many instances where drivers have narrowly escaped striking them. Children give no thought to autos while they are intent upon playing, getting something in the street, or crossing. They step backward into the path of autos, they dash out into the street most unexpectedly, they jump out from in back of standing machines and they make it impossible for the person driving a fast moving machine to avoid striking them.

Speeding autos and children in the street make a bad combination. It is unfortunate that such a danger exists but the knowledge in advance that the streets in general are dangerous for the children should cause parents to impress upon the youngsters the necessity of keeping out of the street at all times. Highways are not what they used to be. Even the grownups have to watch their steps very carefully to avoid accidents and inasmuch as prevention is far preferable to cure, and it is better to be safe than sorry, the steps necessary to keep children from the streets and the autos would appear to be in the interest of proper protection.

THE REPARATION AGREEMENT.

Following international conferences it is necessary for those countries which are officially represented to ratify the agreement reached. That will be done by all the countries represented at the recent reparations conference with the exception of the United States.

It will be remembered that when the American delegates were named and when they left, it was emphatically set forth that, even though they were approved by this government, they were not the official representatives of the United States. This did not interfere with the selection of Owen D. Young as chairman, or the valuable service that both rendered in reaching the new understanding to replace the Dawes agreement.

There has been some question as to whether this new accord would have to be submitted to the senate, and there were no doubt many therein who were eager for such an opportunity for starting a fight on it as such submission would invite. Thus it will be a disappointment to them that the president has declared that the new agreement is such that it does not call for ratification by the United States senate.

Inasmuch as the United States was not a formal party to the negotiations, being represented by unofficial delegates, it is not called upon to ratify. It stands in a different position than the other countries in this respect. But there is probably one point that will require attention and that is the approval of the willingness indicated by the government to accept a smaller sum in payment of the costs of our forces in the army of occupation on the Rhine. Action giving the administration authority to accept a smaller sum ought not to precipitate any great opposition in view of the manner in which other countries have met the far greater problem. It is regarded in most quarters as an excellent handling of the situation and the indications at the present time point to ratification by all countries which are required to sign.

THE MAN WHO TALKS

Anyone who is at all possessed with a sense of beauty must rejoice over the transformation that has been made of Hollyhock island. Not so very long ago it was an eyesore to all who loved beauty and believed in healthfulness. In a word by the use of intelligence and a sense of propriety an unsightly, disease-producing dump has been evolved into a thing of beauty. It certainly makes an excellent playground for the young and keeps them off the streets. Here they can play their games without the danger of being run over by automobiles. It would seem to be fully large enough for a baseball diamond for this is a game that every lad ought to have the opportunity of playing. There is also the health side of the proposition. The people of Norwich are deeply indebted to those who have done this work. Let us now fix our eyes upon some other sore spots in and around the city.

There are abundant reasons why property holders of this city and town should take their cue from such improvements and remove some of the other eyesores that are found on some of our leading streets. Every intelligent real estate dealer knows that there is no money in letting property run down. And when property begins to run down and is let alone it always gathers momentum until it gets to the bottom of the hill. To see an old ramshackle building with paint washed off, roof sunken, windows smashed, and in many ways defaced, it gives one a shudder and also the community in which it is placed a black eye. Such neglect lowers the value of real estate in the whole community to say nothing of the shock it gives to our natural sense of beauty. Greater care also should be given to the disposal of the city garbage.

The foundation of every church is religion. As such it will never flourish if anything is substituted in its place. Your church diminishes in value just in proportion (I mean as a religious organization) as your minister turns the pulpit into a rostrum for the presentation of secular themes. These themes may have great intrinsic value to the community at large, but they ought not to be substituted for religion. He may talk on biology, social science, politics, literature, labor problems, and if terribly hard up on companionate marriages. In fact he may resort to anything that will tickle the crowd, but he does it at the expense of real religion. There are many themes not distinctly religious that may be important but let them be presented at the proper place and at the proper time. Let the pulpit be reserved for the spiritual side of our common humanity and the man who is neither ashamed of the gospel of God, and refuses to cater to the whims of the crowd is the man who will win out in the end.

In the field of human activity have more changes been made in the last 50 years than in education? Dr. Frederick L. Fagley puts the matter very concisely in this sentence: "It is not surprising, therefore, that in no field of human activity has this new age brought greater changes than in that of education. We get a better view of the change in method if we take a stretch at a time. For example, in Boston in 1845, in the average school of 400 pupils, there were given 65 whippings a day; one whipping ever six minutes. In that same year hundreds of rural schools of Massachusetts had to be abandoned because the pupils drove their teachers away. Massachusetts stood then probably at the top of education in our country. In 80 years how great has been the change!" Many of us have realized what Dr. Fagley says. Are teachers thus treated today?

While riding the other day on the Hartford bus I came into contact with a sight that would seem to challenge the above statement that in the line of changes the field of education had been the most conspicuous. This side of Colchester I saw a man in a very large, smooth field tilling the soil with a motor tractor. At the entrance of the field was a Cadillac machine evidently belonging to the man who was operating the tractor. Like thousands o fothers he was substituting a great natural force for animal muscle, and was probably able to do ten times as much work in a given time. Certainly a yoke of oxen or a span of horses are not in the same class with a motor tractor, and at the end of the day there are no signs of fatigue. The enormous size of the field he was tilling was good evidence of this. From all points of secular activity the same evidence is given. Are we moving along moral and spiritual lines at the same rate?

By the time these words appear in print the schools of the various grades will have had their annual commencement exercises. These exercises are of mingled sunlight and shadow. If there is any mental capacity worth speaker of among the graduates it cannot be otherwise. It simply means that our boys and girls do some thinking at graduating time. At the public school graduation joy seems to predominate because in most instances there is more school life ahead. Thus far a certain amount of success has been attained; they have learned how to study and begin to feel its value. The Academy looms up big before them. From the very depths of our hearts we say, God be with you in your new and larger educational life! Also try to make it possible to go to college.

When men and women are working at something in which they are deeply interested to an unusual extent, they sometimes fail to realize that human powers are subject to limitation, and they keep on plunging until something snaps. Then they are brought up with a jolt, when, possibly, it is too late. The average boy and girl do not overstudy any more than the average man and woman overwork. When you enter school next fall do a square day's work and no more. The curriculm of study is arranged for the average intellect. With judicious care you will have no trouble in keeping up with the class. Enter the field of sports for recreation. You are under as great an obligation to keep the body well as to make the mind strong. If you ignore the body you will miss it sooner or later. Remember that either a broken-down mind in a sound body, or a powerful mind in a wretched body is a terrible tragedy.

The younger generation, accustomed to nothing but tranquility in national life, have no conception whatever of what their fathers and grandfathers went through when one party of our great nation was in deadly conflict with another part. To be sure we have had some hot debates in congress but thus far they have never taken human life, or caused the least terror anywhere not even among the disputants of the inhabitants of Washington. It would, however, be well to remind our young people that 66 years ago on to June 24, 1863, Morgan's raid into Ohio and Indiana began. This Confederate general with his troops spread terror and death wherever they went. With bitter hatred toward the north they let loose the wildest and most revolting of human passions all along their trail. These two states were swayed with abject fear as to what the result would be. But at length this carnival of lawlessness was put down.

A monument will be established at Boonesboro, Ky., marking the spot where Daniel Boone established the first outpost of civilization on the frontier.

THE UTILIZATION OF OUR AGRICULTURAL BY PRODUCTS.

By Arthur M. Hyde, Secretary of Agriculture.

It may appear to some who are unfamiliar with the spirit and method of research that research into small things may at times be trifling. No "unknown" is trifling in honest research. To the scientist every strange field is as the rainbow, with always the hope and possibility of the pot of gold being at the end.

The little tomato seed was a waste of the catsup industry until chemists found a way to extract its oil. Today this oil is used as food and in making fine soaps. The kernel of the seed of the apricot was a waste of the apricot industry until chemists found a way to free it from its bitter principle. Today the apricot kernel, tasting nearly like the almond, is used in flavoring macaroons. The seeds of the raisin were a waste with the seeded raisin industry until chemists found a way to use them. The oil of the seed is compatible in taste with the raisin, and work is now being done in spraying this oil on the seeded raisins to keep them soft and fresh until consumed.

Until only a short while ago the pancreas gland of the slaughtered calf and hog of the packing house was only a minor edible by-product, called sweetbread when used as food. Then medical research found in the gland the marvelous substance called insulin which relieves humankind from suffering and death from diabetes. This discovery not only greatly heightened the commercial money value of a trifling by-product but it benefited suffering humanity entirely beyond any mere money value that can be put upon it. So nothing is too small for research.

By-Products of Corn

In these days of rapidly moving evolution in industry—and the farmer must draw a lesson from it—one can never tell but that the humble and little respected by-product of today may be a main product tomorrow. The manufacturing industries can show hundreds of examples of this. The cornstarch industry started out to make cornstarch for cooking and laundering. Then science showed how to make glucose from the starch. Then someone conceived the idea that the oil of the germ had attributes of the comparatively costly imported olive oil. Today glucose, corn sirup and corn oil are main products of the corn refining industry. There was a time when this industry dumped into the river all of the corn kernel that was left after the starch had been removed. Today these formerly utterly wasted by-products are livestock feed, selling for well up into the millions a year.

Our immense fruit and vegetable canned-food industry had its beginning in the home and was perfected in the scientific laboratory and in the canning plant. However at first the purpose of the canning was to save something out of the losses from surpluses and low prices. Today the canned article is a main product, with thousands of acres of land and factories devoted to canning crops.

Age of Cellulose

Our chemical laboratories point out to us an age of cellulose, which challenges our imagination. What is cellulose? This is the substance—consisting of the three chemical elements carbon, hydrogen and oxygen—which is the principal part of the solid framework of plants. The wooden floors we walk upon, the newspapers and magazines and books we read, corncobs, cornstalks, wheat straw and other straws—these and myriad other things are largely cellulose. Chemically, cellulose is very similar in composition to cornstarch and the sugars; it contains the same elements and is convertible into sugars by the action of heat and acid.

Cotton is nearly pure cellulose. The chemist already knows how to make rayon and artificial silks out of cellulose from cotton linters, cornstalks, etc., and industries of great size have sprung up to manufacture them. Who can imagine the future in store for the humble and lowly cornstalk? I have seen a beautifully printed and bound book entitled "Farm Products in Industry," the paper of which was made mainly of cornstalks. I have read farm journals printed on paper the most costly part of which had been replaced by cornstalk pulp. I have handled samples of insulating and building board made of cornstalks, some as porous and light as cork and some almost as hard and dense as iron. Who can say now, in view of the industrial beginnings already made, what part cornstalks, now worth $2 a ton for their potash and $3 as feed, will play in the building construction and heat and cold insulation of the future? Some day our books and daily news may come to us on cornstalk paper.

Bagasse

Not long ago the idea was conceived of manufacturing the bagasse of the sugar-cane mill into insulating board. Today an enormous business stands as a monument to that idea, to the ingenuity of private business, and to the cooperation of the United States department of agriculture and the capacity of its scientists. Bagasse is the pulp of the sugar cane left after the extraction of the cane juice. The sugar mills formerly used it as fuel for the mills. Today the bagasse pressed-board industry takes not only all the bagasse it can handily get in our south, but is importing it from Cuba and is also looking for other materials to utilize. Bagasse board has been selling for $100 to $125 a ton, as against the fuel value of the bagasse at the sugar mill, which is about $2 to $3 a ton for the wet material.

In the operations of making boards out of bagasse, cornstalks, straws, etc., the processes are largely mechanical but in the chemical laboratory, where man play as the game of atoms and ions with nature's secrets, the revelations promise to be intensely interesting. In the chemical field the chemist has made only the barest beginning in unfolding the mysteries and possibilities of cellulose.

Lignin

In the bureau of chemistry and soils of our department in Washington, where a vast amount of valuable work has been done in the utilization of agricultural by-products, there is a small bottle of a brownish cellulose substance called lignin, which was derived from the corn plant. Lignin is one of the principal parts of woody plant tissues. Its chemical nature is not yet clear, but Dr. W. W. Skinnings, assistant chief of the chemical and technological research unit of the bureau, says lignin possibly may yield as many products of commercial, chemical and medical importance as have been yielded by coal-tar, that by-product of the manufacture of coal gas, the study and exploitation of which gave to Germany a preeminent position in the world chemical trade. Our chemists say that lignin may possibly yield even more than coal-tar, itself a vegetable by-product of the carboniferous age. Some of the articles made from coal-tar that are of great commercial importance are aniline dyes, phthalein dyes and other phthaleins, indigo, carbolic acid, creosote, flavoring extracts and drugs and chemicals of many kinds. The bureau of chemistry and soils has already made dyes from lignin which are more fast than the fire aniline dyes made from coal-tar. And the chemist has gone scarcely below the surface in the exploration of lignin. Millions and millions of tons of by-product stalks, cobs and straws are produced on our farms every year and every ton holds its store of the mysteries of lignin and cellulose—and who knows what else!

Furfural

Then there is furfural, from which is made an artificial resinous material—a hard and quite elastic substance which, when made from the corncob, looks almost exactly like gutta-percha. Gutta-percha is an imported product taken from Malayan trees which is used for a multitude of purposes, especially as an insulator and nonconductor of electricity. Furfural can be made from a number of the woody cellulose by-products of the farm, corncobs and oat hulls being very good sources. Furfural may have tremendously extensive possibilities in the manufacturing industries. There is not yet a pressing economic or technical demand for the substance, but who knows, when there may be? Our chemists believe the substance can be widely used some day in the manufacture of insulation materials, the parts of telephone instruments that are now hard rubber, penholders, umbrella handles, and generally as a substitute for hard rubber, etc. There is a vast quantity of furfural in cobs, hulls, straw, and the like. One of the largest oat processing concerns in the country is now making large quantities of furfural from oat hulls and selling it to manufacturers of resins, paints, lacquers, etc., who use it as a solvent. Furfural formerly was imported from Germany, as a chemical curiosity, at $30 a pound; today, as a result of work done by the bureau of chemistry and soils, it is manufactured in this country to sell at about 11 cents a pound.

For generations the cotton farmer has had as his main business the production of an industrial inedible fiber for the textile mills. At the time of the Civil war the by-product, cottonseed, except the small quantity saved for planting, was practically waste; in 1870 it was used for fertilizer; in 1880 for cattle feed; and in 1890, thanks to the chemist and his research, a cotton-oil industry came into being. Cottonseed oil is used in cooking and for many other purposes.

Linters

A by-products may even have by-products of its own. In pressing the cottonseed to extract the oil the cotony fuzz on the seed was a nuisance. This fuzz is called linters. Today we have a great industry which makes a product out of linters that looks and feels like silk. This is an accomplishment of the research chemist, made in the chemical explorations of cellulose. Linters have become so valuable that the seed is sometimes scalped so close that it looks as if it had been shaved with a razor. They were first used in making mattresses, stuffing, high explosives (nitrocellulose), etc. Today they are used to make the finish and tops for our automobiles, substitutes for leather, brushes, combs, and mirrors, camera films (including our movies, casings for sausages, fine paper, collodion for skinned fingers, etc.

The tree of the forest is largely cellulose. What the lumber industry has done and is doing in the utilization of its by-products is a romance in itself.

Utilization of By-products

The whole story of the utilization of the by-products of our farms, even only up to now, would fill many books. The chemists and other scientists of the United States department of agriculture, the state colleges of agriculture and experiment stations, and other institutions, are working with intense interest to develop new products from our agricultural by-products. They have already found many things, but for many of them the economic place has not yet been found. Our federal research laboratories do not believe in waiting for the hurry-up call from manufacturing industries for new and better products which they may be able to use. They are going on working day by day with the by-products, whether there seems to be any immediate need for what may be found or not, believing the day will come when there will be need and that the farmer and all of us will be the gainer from their work.

The farmer must begin to think more in the terms of his by-products, as the meat packer has done. From the beginning of time, practically the sole business of the butcher was to sell meats, hides and fats. Then came science and industrialism and great demand for new goods of all kinds. The packer discovered that he could cut down his losses, increase his revenues, reduce his overhead, and increase his opportunities of making money, by using everything but was in the live animal as far as he could thereby make a profit. It is a surprising statement to make, but the by-products business is the life of the meat-packing industry of today, and for this fact the chemist and the research laboratory are responsible. What the meat packer has done with by-products is an inspiration to all branches of our agriculture.

Incidentally and in closing, I believe that the farmers' cooperative organization must and will take an active and diligent interest in the commercial and industrial utilization of the by-products of the farm. The by-products are as much the business of the farmer as are the main products, and the cooperative should carry the by-products as far along the road to consumption as practicable, to insure that a fair share of the profits from the utilization will be reflected directly back to the producer.

Sunday Morning Talk

Come.

Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden and I will give you rest.

Take my yoke upon you, and learn of me; for I am meek and lowly in heart and ye shall find rest unto your souls. Matt. 11:28-29.

Christ's life outwardly was one of the most troubled lives that was ever lived. Tempest and tumult, tumult and tempest. The waves breaking over it all the time until the worn body laid in the grave. But the inner life was a sea of glass. The great calm was always there. At any moment you can go to Him and find rest. And even when the bloodhounds were dogging Him on the streets of Jerusalem, He turned to His disciples and offered them, as a last legacy "My peace." Nothing ever for a moment broke the serenity of Christ's life on earth. Misfortune could not reach Him. He had no fortune, food raiment, money—fountain-heads of half the world's weariness—He simply did not care, for they played no part in His life. He "took no thought" for them. It was impossible to affect Him by lowering His reputation. He had already made Himself of no reputation. He did not live to please man, but God, his heavenly Father. When He was reviled He reviled not again. In fact, there was nothing that the world could do to Him that could ruffle the surface of His spirit. Such living is far from the usual. It is only when we live in daily communion with Him. He came that we might know of and possess the more abundant life to be found only in Him.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 21 — Should you happen to believe that the official fuss over social precedence to be given the sister and hostess of Vice President Curtis was just a newspaper story, try to get the state department to give you an informal pointer on seating order for guests of official position.

You will get nowhere. The department is mum from top to bottom on that sore subject. By ukase of Secretary Stimson it has gone out of business as a social precedence information first aid relief station for the hostesses of Washington.

The muzzling of the state department was soon apparent after the Gann precedence controversy ended in complete victory for the vice presidential point of view as to status of his sister-hostess.

As the word got about that Prime Minister MacDonald was probably coming from England for a chat or two with President Hoover on undisclosed subjects, a flutter ran through social Washington. Aspiring private hostesses no doubt hoped for a chance to entertain the English political leader of the day.

Mum

As a natural measure of preparedness against forthcoming news emergencies, inquiries rattled into the state department as to where Mr. MacDonald and his daughter, should she accompany him, would be seated at official dinners and the like.

Obviously, there could be no doubt as to precedence in such a case. It could be no more certain if King George himself were to be the guest of the American nation. But would the state department say so? It would not. It would say absolutely nothing.

And if the barrier of official silence on moot points of social status is erected against the press, obviously it also stands against private hostesses. They will have to takefull responsibility for any social errors in seating arrangements they may commit unknowingly in future. Secretary Stimson is not going to get involved again in any such matters if he knows it.

Probably No Danger

It is rather to be doubted, however, that any such emergency will arise during the projected MacDonald visit as far as unofficial social functions are concerned.

The premier cannot be coming to participate in any round of festivities of that sort, but only for urgent reasons of public policy.

It is to be anticipated that a program of official intercourse, pivoting about the conference with Mr. Hoover, will be worked out by the British embassy well in advance, and that the prime minister will be formally declared unavailable for any other form of entertainment.

Washington's social whirl may proceed about its customary business of retiring to cooler summer climates without fear of missing out on a chance to entertain the distinguished visitors.

An exception to this rule which can be visualized as a possibility would be national officials of American organized labor.

They are not apt to overlook the fact that MacDonald is a laborite in politics, nor is he likely to cold shoulder them if they seek to exchange greetings.

CHILD TRAINING

MATERIALS FOR CHARACTER BUILDING

Edith Lochridge Reid

Julia's mother brought from the kitchen a tray on which were a small dish of cornflakes and one of oatmeal. The tray was held before Julia. She considered a moment and said: "Cornflakes, please."

At luncheon she was allowed to choose between applesauce and sugared orange for her first course.

After luncheon her mother asked: "Will you start your nap at 1 o'clock or five minutes after?" Julia, being already sleepy, chose the earlier time.

"If she isn't sleepy, she will say 'Five minutes after,' or 'Ten minutes after,' depending on what I name as the time," the mother explained to a guest visiting in the home, who expressed some surprise at this program of choices.

"But isn't that way very much more bother than telling a child what to do, and demanding quick obedience?" asked the guest.

"It takes, perhaps, a little more effort on my part, but I wouldn't call it bother," replied the mother. "You see, that is the method I have always used to start my children in habits of decision. Instead of clamoring with Julia about her nap time and telling her she must go, I encourage her to say that she will go. She understands that her choice will be respected."

The guest was much interested in this plan of discipline in which the children's volition was given some range instead of being characterized as stubbornness, when exercised, as is the case in some homes.

Later when Bobbie come bounding in from kindergarten he called out: "Clarence and Bill are going over to the vacant lot to play ball."

"Are you going?" his mother asked.

"Well—" considered Bobbie. "I've been thinking about it out there on the porch. I didn't finish raking my leaves last night, so I guess I'd better do that first."

"Oh, yes" replied Mother, speaking in a tone of equality, instead of "talking down" to Bobbie "you do feel as if you wanted to rake those first, but of course that isn't a long job and you'll soon be through and ready to play with the boys."

A little later Dick came in and said he was going to spend his whole week's allowance on a kite. "You think the kite is worth that much?" his mother asked, having seen them in the corner storoe that morning, at which time she thought they were priced too high.

"Yes, they're all right; everyone is buying them," said Dick.

"It's six days until another allowance, Son," replied Mother. But she didn't say "No, you can't waste your money on that kite — it isn't any good."

At dinner Dick confessed frankly: "That kite wasn't any good. It split the first thing. That's what I get for not using my thinking cap before buying," he added.

But neither Mother nor Dad censured him. Mother didn't say: "I told you so," and Dad didn't remark: "You're old enough to know better." They both regarded it as an experience which would be helpful later—probably much more helpful than if Mother had forbidden him to spend fifty cents for a worthless toy. In later life he may be saved much greater grief simply through having had these opportunities which his parents are offering him for exerting his will and making free choice even at some sacrifice.

Children can be taught to choose at a very early age although at first it may be only between two toys to play with. By making these selections, habits of considering and judging are formed. Later the child more naturally looks at the two sides of a question or the several phases of a real moral issue.

IN DAY'S NEWS

The Mistral

It was the mistral, "Europe's best known wind," that stopped and then blew adrift the crippled Graf Zeppelin when it was forced to turn back from its voyage to America recently. This wind and Provence, France's southeastern division, in which the airship came to earth, are the subjects of a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"A mistral storm in Provence differs from a windstorm in the United States," says the bulletin. "The brilliant sunshine and cloudless skies of Provence are not affected by its advent. But no matter how blistering the sun may be, the mistral always brings a piercing cold. Farmers of Provence dread it so much they protect their fields from the mistral's onslaught by hedges of cypress and shields of reeds.

"Provence, the home of the mistral is a land of contrasts. There are high mountains, rich, alluvial plains, arid, pebbly regions and the famed garden spots of the Riviera. The last, when include Nice, Cannes, Mentone and Monte Carlo, are better known to tourists than most towns in the interior of Provence. The Riviera is semi-tropical in climate and consequently lovely the year round. It is in the springtime, however, when all Provence bursts into glory. Almond and cherry blossoms color the trees. Purple and white lilacs grow in profusion, and the intense blue of the skies contrasts with the green grass.

"Provence is the home of the troubadours. In the Dark Ages when the pursuit of the arts was at a standstill in the rest of Europe, the singers of Provence evolved a poetry in their own language, a mixture of Ligurian, Celt, Phoenician, Greek, Roman, Visigoth and Saracen. The troubadour was the 'shiek' of the Dark Ages. He wooed the lady of his choice by singing his own compositions to her in the castle hall. She respended by putting a gold ring on his finger as a pledge of affection at a ceremony somewhat resembling the bestowal of a knighthood. In the compositions of the troubadours many present-day literary forms had their origin.

"The first port of France and the largest city of Provence is Marseille. It was once a Greek and later a Roman city and its name is derived from the Greek, Massalia. Some of Marseille's fame rests on a soup. It is the famous bouillabaisse of which poets have sung and visiting Americans still endeavor to identify the numerous ingredients. Fresh fish from the French coast supplies the 'backbone' of this concoction.

"Marseille is a city of cafes. They line the streets and their thousands of patrons prattle and gesture while they drink their coffee or syrup and water. Not all the patrons are French. Blond Scandinavians, brown Arabs, Chinese, any race and any type may be found in this most cosmopolitan seaport.

"Although it is a Provencal city, Marseille with its modern hustle and bustle, differs from most other cities of Provence as much as the near pink and blue stucco villas of the Riviera differ from the stern, square farm houses of the dwellers on the Provence plains."

YOUR HEALTH

HEALTH HELPS THOSE WHO HELP THEMSELVES

By Lloyd Arnold, M. D.
Medicine and State Department of Public Health, Chicago.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Some disease producing bacteria are spread by means of water, milk and other uncooked food. These germs come from some human carrying these microbes. The human may be sick with a disease or apparently healthy. In this latter instance they are called "carriers" of the pathogenic bacteria producing the illness. Typhoid fever, diarrhea, cholera and such ailments belong to this group of water-and food-borne diseases.

Organized community effort is necessary to protect people against such diseases. Pure water, clean pasteurized milk, sewage disposal and other health activities are examples of organized community effort. This has been done in the United States to a great extent, typhoid fever and other summer diseases having been reduced to a minimum.

We must harden ourselves by outdoor walks and exercise, hot and cold showers or baths, proper clothing and balanced diets, in order to withstand the indoor temperature of our homes and offices, as well as the crowded cars and assembly halls.

It is necessary to take care of ourselves as individuals. We no longer live a frontier life, but exist under unusual artificial and man-made conditions. Maintaining a healthy and well trained skin, along with the membranes of the nose and throat is our individual responsibility.

We cannot use the same methods in reducing the winter ailments as we have used in the summer illnesses. The state, or any political community, can make a sanitary code, and employ the personnel to carry out the regulations. This has been of great benefit in making our warm months the healthiest time of the year.

To combat other, and especially, the infectious diseases of cold weather, we must make our own sanitary code, and carry it out individually.

POETRY

The Three Hills

There were three hills that stood alone
With woods about their feet.
They dreamed quiet when the sun shone
And whispered when the rain beat.

They wore all three their coronals
Til men with houses came
And scored their heads with pits and walls
And thought the hills were tame.

Red and white the clay shines bright
They hide the green for miles,
Where are the old hills gone? At night
The moon looks down and smiles.

She sees the captors small and weak,
She knows the prisoners strong.
She hears the patient hills that speak;
"Brothers, it is not long.

"Brothers, we stood when they were not
Ten thousand summers past.
Brothers, when they are clean forgot
We shall outlive the last;

"One shall die and one shall flee
With terror in his train,
And earth shall eat the stones, and we Shall be alone again."

—J. C. Squire.

True Gaiety

Whom call we gay? That honor has been long
The boast of mere pretenders to the name.
The innocent are gay—the lark is gay,
That dries his feathers, saturate with dew,
Beneath the rosy cloud, while yet the beams
Of day-spring overshoot his humble nest;
The peasant, too, a witness of his song,
Himself a songster, is as gay as he,
But save me from the gayety of those,
Whose headaches nail them to a noonday bed;
And save me, too, from theirs, whose haggard eyes
Flash desperation and betray their pangs
For property stripped off by cruel chance;
From gayety that fills the bones with pain,
The mouth with blasphemy, the heart with woe.

—William Cowper.

HOOVER TO START FOR FISHING PRESERVE TODAY

WASHINGTON, June 21 —(AP)—In spite of oppressive heat, President Hoover today postponed until tomorrow the journey he had planned to his fishing preserve near Madison, Va.

Preparations had been made to leave some time late today, but the president found that he was unable to do so. He expects to start early tomorrow. As usual he will be at his desk for a time in the morning looking after his mail before leaving.

He is to be accompanied by Mrs Hoover, Secretary Hyde, Lawrence Richey, one of his secretaries, and by Lieutenant Commander Joel T. Boone, his physician.

On his last visit to the preserve, two weeks ago, the president found the seldom used road leading through the forests to his camp in such a poor condition due to rainfall that an hour and a half was consumed in traveling ten miles.

Bright weather since then, the president has learned, has put the road into a much more passable condition.

TROLLEY TRACK WORK BEGUN IN NORTH MAIN STREET IMPROVEMENT

The real work in the reconstruction of the North Main street roadbed from the foot of Schofield hill to a point north of the Burnham square where there is a cement roadbed has been started with the trolley track changes which are now underway.

The old track which is used for the north-bound trolley cars has been taken up between the foot of Schofield hill and what are known as the old car shops and a cross-over to the south-bound tracks has been laid at this point so that the trolley cars are run on a one-track system up to the trolley barns in Central avenue. During the daytime the easterly side of the street is out of use, but at night the machinery and apparatus is cleared out of the way so that both sides of the street can be used by motorists.

New and heavier rails are to be laid where the old ones have been taken up, the roadbed will be raised two inches and the present concrete roadway will be used for a foundation upon which to lay the new surface from the rails to the curb. The trolley work is protected by strings of red lanterns at night and by printed danger signs attached to the lantern standards in the daytime.

While the North Main street work is in progress, motorists who are making a through trip from the center of the city towards the Greeneville or Taftville sections can find a convenient detour up Franklin street and Boswell avenue. Those wanting to reach Greeneville can use Hickory street from Boswell avenue till it reaches the old Point saloon corner.

Street Commissioner Herbert B. Wightman has just given his attention to Hickory street which has been in about the worst condition of any street in the city. But he has filled the holes up and given it a scraping and a top dressing of tarvia and sand with the result that the street is now in very good shape for the increasing travel which it promises to have while the North Main street work is underway.

On Friday the street commissioner had Cliff street, Hobart avenue and Park street oiled and sanded.

Sand has been distributed along Broadway hill where the work of oiling and sanding is to be done.

STANKEWICZ WAS FOUND HIDING IN A BARN

Steve Stankewicz, 50, who tried to set fire to his farmhouse in Preston Thursday night and succeeded in burning a barn in which were a cow and a heifer, was found hiding about 4 o'clock in a stall at the barn of Arthur Eliel, which is about half a mile from Stankewicz's place.

Stankewicz was located and arrested by Sergeant Mathew Delaney and Officer Luke Riley of the local police department, who had been searching for him. He was brought to Norwich police headquarters and locked up, pending his presentation in a justice court in the town of Preston.

Stankewicz offered no resistance to arrest, but when a flashlight was turned upon him said, "Don't shoot." When the officers took him in charge he asked, "What will I get for this?"

His explanation of why he had attempted to burn the house was to shrug his shoulders with the words, "I don't know. I get drunk and go crazy." He claims he has had trouble at home for six years and thinks his family has not given him a square deal.

For a time Thursday night, after the police heard of the burning of the barn they had the oldest son of Stankewicz in custody, but they found out they were holding the wrong man and let him go. His name is also Steve and he was fined in the Preston court this week for beating his mother, younger brother and sister, because he did not like them. However, he does not side with his father in the attempt to take revenge on the family by burning the dwelling house.

The article placed in the record by Senator Blease is a report of a goiter study conducted by Dr. William Weston working with Dr. Remington, and contained statements asserting that the disease is a serious problem in large portions of Connecticut and that figures reveal about 29 per cent. of high school girls of the state show some symptoms of the disease.

This action, Mr. Weil stated, had been decided upon at a meeting of the state campaign committee held in New Haven recently.

Kelly, 61, of Lake street, competed with Young Canty, 19, of Hill street, in a 100 yard dash Friday evening at the stone crusher on Roath street and trimmed him handily, covering the distance in less than 12 seconds. Kelly says he is willing to run against Canty again, in case the latter is looking for satisfaction. The officials of the race were Timothy Brown, referee, and James Kane, timekeeper.

REACHED AGREEMENT IN MONTVILLE INJUNCTION CASE

When an agreement between counsel was reached out of court, an injunction sought by the town of Montville against James C. O'Connor of New London to restrain him from disposing of certain machinery in his mill at Montville, was not heard in superior court here by Judge Allyn L. Brown.

O'Connor is owner of the mill, known as the Keyes Product Co., and was said to have commenced disposing of the machinery therein by sale. He recently took an appeal from the doings of the board of relief for the town of Montville, being aggrieved by the action of that body in assessing machinery in the mill for $16,320. This tax appeal is pending.

By the agreement made out of court, O'Connor is to post a bond of $300 in order to insure payment to the town of Montville of any taxes which might be found due against him in this court.

Lots of men pray for things they wouldn't be willing to work for.

HENS KEEP ON LAYING THROUGH HOT WEATHER

The hot weather during the 23rd week did not seem to have any injurious effect upon the egg production of the birds in the egg-laying contest at Storrs as they came through with a yield of 4,381 eggs. This is a reduction of only .3 of one per cent. under that of last week, but .6 of one per cent. less than last year's lay for the same week. The grand total to date is 143,105 eggs or an average of a little better than 143 eggs per bird. This is within two eggs of the average yearly total of the hens in the eighth contest as they finished with 145 eggs per bird.

Wm. L. Gilbert Home's entry from Winsted, Conn., seems to be the lucky one this week as their pen came through with 63 eggs to take first place. There was quite a scramble for second place as is evidenced by the fact that three pens laid 62 eggs. These pens, one of Reds and two of Leghorns, were owned respectively by John Z. LaBelle, Ballouville, Conn., Toivonen Leghorn farm, Girard, Pa., and Peetoocce Poultry Plant, Telford, Pa. Third honors went to the Hanson Leghorn entry from Corvallis, Ore., with a lay of 61 eggs. R. C. Cobb's Barred Rocks from Littleton, Mass., and a pen of Rhode Island Reds owned by F. S. Chapin of Longmeadow, Mass., were tied for fourth place with a lay of 60 eggs.

These beetles which have recently made their appearance are found on rose bushes, daisies, grape vines and numerous other shrubs and flowers. Chickens, ducklings and young poults seem to have a craving for these bugs, but the unfortunate thing about them is that they are extremely poisonous to domestic fowls when young. Professor Lampson of Storrs, Conn., was the man that demonstrated that it was not their sprawly, long, scratchy legs that caused the damage but a poisonous substance in the body of the beetle. Many of our poultrymen have overcome the heavy mortality caused by rose chafers by hatching early for it will be necessary for those who have not adhered to this principle to close their chicks up or keep them away from shrubs harboring rose chafers during the remainder of June and the fore part of July.

The leading pens in each of the principal varieties:

Barred Rocks: R. C. Cobb, Old Pickard Farm, Littleton, Mass., 1864; Hawes Bros., Union, Maine 1696; R. Walter Bishop, Guilford, Conn. 1578.

White Rocks: E. A. Hirt, South Weymouth, Mass. 1597; Davidson Bros., Upton, Mass. 1365.

White Wyandottes: The Locusts, West Cornwall, Conn. 1581; Winlay White Wyandottes, Collinsville, Conn. 1559.

Rhode Island Red: Charlescote Farm, Sherborn, Mass. 1773; F. S. Chapin, Longmeadow, Mass. 1741; Zephrim LaBelle, Ballouville, Conn. 1722; John Z. LaBelle, Ballouville, 1715.

YANKEES AND ATHLETICS BREAK EVEN IN FIRST GAMES OF SERIES

(By Brian Bell, Associated Press Sports Writer)

NEW YORK, June 21—(AP)—Babe Ruth was just a ball player in the first game of the series of double headers between the Yankees and the Athletics and the A's won 11 to 1. In the second he was Babe Ruth in person, not a convalescent invalid, and the Yankees squared the day's play 8 to 3. With two homers and a single the big fellow accounted for seven of the Yankees' eight runs.

The two games and Ruth attracted a crowd of 76,145.

The big Babe went to bat six times before he reached first base but thereafter he was very much in evidence. He singled to drive in a run on his seventh appearance and on his eighth and ninth chances he drove the ball far into the right field bleachers. Of the three Athletic pitchers he shot at during the afternoon, Bill Shores was his favorite, the two circuit clouts coming from the delivery of George Earnshaw's relief.

Against Robert Moses Grove in the first game, Ruth had no luck but the same was true of most of his mates. A run in the first inning, through the medium of Robertson's single and Gehrig's triple was all the damage the world champions could do to the lean left hander, who turned in his 11th victory against a single defeat.

The league leaders, who retained a seven and one half game advantage over the Yankees through the even break, made enough home runs to win the first game, Simmons cracking out two and Haas one.

But for the late volcanic eruption in a big way by Ruth the customers would have gone home with the name of Al Simmons on their tongues. Simmons blasted five hits and scored five runs in the first game and added three out of four hits, two doubles, in the second.

Ruth played 17 of the 18 innings on the day's programme, being spelled by Cedric Durst in right field for the last half of the ninth.

The first of two double headers and a single between the two leading clubs developed two great pitching performances and some others not so good. Grove and Hoyt, who were credited with bringing home the bacon, did their work well. Grove held the Yankees to seven hits and the A's could get no more from the delivery of Hoyt.

It was Hoyt's ninth triumph with three on the debit side.

Herb Pennock, another convalescent who has been a victim of boils, pitched well enough in the first to win a lot of games but suffered from ragged support and was finally removed from the picture to make way for a hitless pinch hitter. Sherid and Moore served to add only to the scenery when they took charge of the pitching assignment.

George Earnshaw, with a record of six straight victories, was staked to a three run lead in three innings but he too ran into trouble, part of it not of his own making. Max Bishop paved the way for the Yankees' first two runs when he dropped a throw at second base. With the visitors leading 3 to 2 in the seventh, Robertson singled and Gehrig was walked. The pass to Gehrig finished Earnshaw and Shores came in just in time to have Ruth hit his first home run since he was forced out of action June 1 after hitting his tenth homer. There were two on in the eighth when the second blow landed among the patrons in the bleachers but that was not vital to the ball game.

Another double header was billed for tomorrow with Freddie Heimach, former Athletics' pitcher, a probable starter against another left hander, George Walberg in one of the battles.

COONEY WEAKENS IN 15TH AND ROBINS WIN

BOSTON, June 21—(AP)—Johnny Cooney weakened in the fifteenth inning here today, and the Robins scored four runs to win their first game of the season in Boston, 7 to 3. The Robins previously had been defeated six times at Braves field. Babe Bressler's home run into the left field bleachers with two on base capped the winning rally.

Cooney should have won by 1 to 0 in union hours, but an error by Lester Bell permitted the Robins to score. The visitors got two in the twelfth only to have the home team tie it up in the last half of the inning. The score:

FAST GAME AT MOOSUP SUNDAY

A large crowd is expected at the Carpet grounds in Moosup on Sunday when the first game with the Taftville A. C. will be played. The game should prove a banner attraction as the Taftville team is reported as having signed up a few new players to give their team added strength.

Manager Jarvis of the Taftville club will either send Meska or McLeod to the mound. Meska has a great strikeout record this season in the four games he has pitched. He has allowed but four hits to a game and has an average of nine strikeouts per game. His high mark was 14 against the Norwich State hospital club. The remainder of the team needs no introduction to eastern Connecticut fans.

The Moosup management is taking no chances and has signed the entire Socony team of New London to play for Moosup. Moosup will also keep the best of the former team as reserve players. Moosup now has a pitching staff of four good men, Chappell, Taylor, Daniels and Gardner. The lineup for the clubs is as follows:

Susie Says

Yale won again. Hurrah.

Didja attend the boat race yesterday? Well, if you didn't, I can't say as you missed much.

It ain't much fun watching a procession like yesterday's race was. Them Harvard boys didn't have much of a chance. They rowed too long in one place.

But what I got the most kick out of was the crowd, the yachts and the supreme disregard for prohibition. To mingle with that boat-race crowd you'd think liquor was sold the same as soda-pop.

If I had a dime for every bottle that was tossed outa the observation train I'd tour the world. And let me tell you it was difficult to tell from the bottles whether a Harvard or a Yale man had drunk the contents.

There was two kinds of drinking at that race, those that drank to drown their sorrow and those that drank to celebrate. After a certain time you couldn't tell whether they was mourners or celebrators.

Then there was the picnic parties. Ain't they just the grandest things you ever saw. Can you imagine one of these veneered 70-year old dames with a ham sandwich in one hand and a Harvard flag in the other cheering Harvard on to victory?

Gosh, there's optimism for you. Harvard had as much chance of winning that race as a selling plater with a busted leg had of winning the English derby. They was just another crew that's all.

Yet there was people at the finish that was hollering for Harvard to win. The only way Harvard could have won was to have Yale run onto a coupla rocks and bust about four oars.

Well, anyway, it was a boat race and we had a good time just the same.

BASEBALL BITS

The Giants-Phillies double header at Philadelphia will be broadcast today, over the Columbia Broadcasting system, starting at 1:30. Local fans will also be able to get the Boston-Broklyn double header at Boston, which also starts at 1:30. This comes over WEAN and WNAC. Providence and Boston, respectively. Still another double header for the radio fans is the Phillies-Braves game set at Boston Sunday, starting at 2:05 p. m.

The New London City league and Norwich Industrial league both look strong and about evenly matched in playing talent this year. A series at the end of the season between the two champions wouldn't go bad.

Second week of the Industrial league starts Monday when two clubs make their bow, Thermos and Silvers.

YALE TAKES BOTH THE MORNING RACES

By Alan J. Gould
Associated Press Sports Editor

NEW LONDON, Conn., June 21—(AP)—For the sixth time in seven successive years, Yale today swept the two preliminary races in the annual regatta with Harvard on the Thames river.

The blue freshmen, in a spectacular closing spurt, came from behind to beat the Crimson yearlings by a scant three-quarters of a length in a two-mile race that was thrilling all the way. Immediately afterward, Yale's junior varsity eight rowed to a decisive and unexciting victory by four lengths over the Harvard "jayvees".

With this twin triumph to her credit Yale's stock remained high in anticipation of making it a clean sweep by winning the varsity four-mile race, scheduled this evening at 7 p. m. Odds on the Elis for the big event lengthened to three to one on the wave of blue enthusiasm.

The Harvard freshmen got the jump at the getaway, spurted out into a quarter length lead, and held a varying margin for the first half of the race. Yale's cubs, always within striking distance, challenged at the three-quarter mile mark and again at the mile as the crews swept past the New London submarine base. The Elis actually got out in front at this point, but in less than a furlong they had lost their lead as Harvard spurted gaining a full half-length as the crews went past the mile and a half flags. Sirens shrieked from Crimson beflagged craft. Yale appeared beaten but not for long. Lifting their stroke up to the astonishing pace of about forty to the minute, the Elis stroked by R. S. Auchenloss of New York city, put on a rally that quickly cut down the Crimson advantage a quarter-mile from the finish and they were prow and prow together, but in the closing dash Yale's stroke never faltered. The Eli youngsters gained steadily and swept across the finish line three-quarters of a boat length to the good.

The official times were:

Yale 11:07
Harvard 11:09 3-5

The junior varsity was all Yale. The Elis got the jump at the start had a full length advantage at the half-way mark and rowed away from the Crimson "jayvees" easily to win by fully four lengths. Harvard's boat load seemed sluggish all the way, while the Eli craft, paced by W. R. Tappen, of Pleasantville, N. Y., last year's varsity stroke, never was in danger of being headed. It wasn't necessary but the blue put on a finishing spurt just the same to make it more decisive.

The official times:

Yale 11:00
Harvard 11:12 4-5

Yale's double victory repeated the Blue's sweep of the morning events in 1923-24-25-27-28. This covers the period of Head Coach Ed Leader's regime at New Haven, during which Harvard's only moments of preliminary glory came in 1926. The Crimson won both early races that year.

Georgetown

"Have you property worth $250. Or do you pay an annual rental of $250 or over?"

"These queries are put to prospective voters in Georgetown the capital of British Guiana, and must be answered in the affirmative before a citizen can vote," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C., headquarters of the National Geographic society. "This unique law explains why Georgetown with its approximate 60,000 population has only 1,000 registered voters. To be a city councillor is even harder than to be a voter. The civic government is vested in a mayor and one councillor from each of the fourteen wards. Each councillor must possess property within the city limits worth $5,000—or a wife whose city property approximates that amount.

"Georgetown recently figured in the daily news as having become headquarters for development of one of the world's most recently discovered oil regions, the Corentyne district of British Guiana. Drillers from the United States and Trinidad are bound for Georgetown and will soon supervise prospecting in the new field. British Guiana is one of the richest mineral areas in South America, although it is largely undeveloped.

"Automobiles, huge trucks, electric trams and teams of oxen for the traffic on Georgetown's wide streets, some of which have in the middle long, water-lily canals. The traffic on the pavements is even more varied. Turbaned Hindus, yellow Chinese, Indians from the jungles of the interior, swart Syrians, Negroes, Europeans and North Americans make up the motley population.

"Georgetown houses are gayly painted structures, and almost all have wide green lawns, and luxuriant plants and shrubs. Rows of 'efficiency houses,' such as exist in the United States, are unknown. The usual building material in Guiana is hardwood, and timber of greenheart, wallaba, mora, crabwood and bullet-tree is popular.

"Its botanic gardens are Georgetown's special pride. World-famous collections of orchids and ferns are found there, and in the numerous pools brilliantly-colored water birds bathe, and manatees (sea-cows) sport. The promenade gardens, eight acres of cool, shaded walks, are situated in a central location. Bel Air park, a well known racetrack, lies but a short tram ride from the city.

"The Georgetowners are music lovers and public concerts are given almost every day. The three public bandstands are located in the botanic gardens, the promenade gardens and on the sea wall. Excellent shops, two large movie houses and modern conveniences keep Georgetown abreast of the times.

"As Georgetown is below sea level the inhabitants of its early days had much trouble with the encroachments of the sea and tidal river water. The city is situated on the north coast of British Guiana where the Demerara river empties into the ocean. A compact sea wall was completed in 1882 after thirty years of building. It forms a breezy promenade for a mile and a half along the ocean to Kitty Village. There it is joined by a newer wall which parallels the coast for many miles. Where the two walls join clean sands have accumulated to form a natural playground for children.

"One goes marketing in Georgetown in a huge structure of glass and iron situated in the middle of the town. Many tropical delicacies unknown to temperate climes, may be bought there. The market has a river frontage of 300 feet and products are brought to its wharves from the rivers and creeks of Guiana, and even from Barbados. Water street, the main business thoroughfare, also parallels the river and the business concerns have wharves back of their buildings to facilitate the delivery of river merchandise."

Para, Home of Rubber.

Homemade tires and tubes will soon be available to automobile owners of Para, Brazil, for the first time, although this port has been exporting crude rubber for a century. Increasing numbers of cars on the streets of Para and nearby towns have created the demand for the local factory. Heretofore the motorists saw thousands of tons of crude rubber leave the city docks, returning later as tires, tubes and other rubber manufactures.

"Para is really the old home town of most of the rubber produced in the world," says a bulletin from the Washington, D. C. headquarters of the National Geographic society.

"Today most of the world's rubber supply comes from Ceylon and the Malay peninsula. Singapore has taken Para's place as the world's greatest rubber port, but Para can point with bride to the fact that Para rubber bears its name and that the trees of the east are descendants of original Para trees that were taken from the Amazon jungles and transplanted on the other side of the world by an Englishman.

"A traveler familiar with the odor of smoked rubber knows when he is nearing the docks of Para. But, perhaps, the average traveler would not recognize the huge ham-shaped chunks of potential tires, garden hose and water bottles which half-naked, perspiring negro and Portuguese laborers are passing from warehouses to cargo boats.

"A portion of the river front is lined with fishing boats. There are also boats which bring to the docks cargoes of Brazil nuts, and cacao, while small native craft drift in with such articles as jaguar hides, snake skins, homemade pipes and baskets, and alligators' teeth. Most of these articles can be found in the market place near the river, but here the visitor is impressed with the great variety of colorful tropical fruits. Huge piles of bananas indicate that the famous banana song does not apply in Para.

"All Para is busy but twice a day. In the morning the workers toil while the sun is low, seek cover during the heat of the midday, and then return to their labors in late afternoon. Para is but 100 miles south of the equator.

"At dusk most of the city's 230,000 inhabitants seem to emerge from their sun shades. Then the promenades, palm lined and bordered by widen flowered spotted lawns are filled and the boulevard traffic problem begins. Portuguese is the language of the natives in Para, but in a city block one meets Frenchmen, Germans, Americans, Syrians, Dutchmen and men and women of many other nationalities. The women, dressed in rainbow-colored garments, present a gay aspect against the natural tropical coloring of Para as a background. The men don linen and white duck.

"Most of Para is modern, but now and then a curious traveler finds himself in a narrow, cobbled street. Even on the beautiful avenues, however, the traveler is taken back a few decades at least, when he frequently observes two-wheeled, ox-drawn carts with black drivers who can trace their ancestry back to the popular slave markets."

HOUSE OF DAVID TEAM HERE SUNDAY

The House of David game carded for Sunday afternoon at the J. B. Martin grounds is creating unusual interest and a record breaking crowd is looked for when they appear here. Let's go to see the "Bearded Beauties" is the slogan wherever you go. Looks as if everybody in town will attend the game.

Odd of appearance, yet constituting as a whole a classy professional team of ball-players, it is little wonder that this unique sect draws record-breaking crowds. Some of the best minor league and semi-professional teams in the country have been defeated by this hustling ball team of whiskered performers.

The House of David team will most likely be greeted on their visit here by the largest crowd that has ever witnessed a game here for several years. The "Bearded Beauties" are beyond question the most unique aggregation in baseball and this team of bewhiskered, barberless, shaveless pill-smackers is the leading traveling professional team of the country.

From the shoulders up, these House of David ball team members look like cave men we read about in history, but while they are ancient and venerable in appearance their play is plenty fast and furious. Fans everywhere they will appear get a kick out of watching these heavy-bearded youths play ball. Unlike most novelties, the novelty is only an extra measure, these peculiar diamond athletes can really play ball.

The J. B. Martin field has been put in perfect condition during the past week and added police protection has been secured. The grounds will be roped and there is also plenty of parking space. All roads on Sunday lead to the J. B. Martin grounds, an ideal place to spend the afternoon.

Morin and Simcox will officiate. The lineups follow:

Burgess Bedtime Story

What Farmer Brown's Boy Saw
By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Whose cause is just, who knows he's right,
Has great advantage in a fight.
—Happy Jack Squirrel.

Farmer Brown's Boy had put out a good breakfast for Happy Jack Squirrel and his family. As usual, he had put it on what he called "Happy Jack's table," a big flat stone in the old stone wall. Then he had hidden where he could watch what might happen. He didn't have long to wait. Hardly had he reached his hiding place when he saw Happy Jack and his family coming. They ran across from the nearest tree and up on the wall. Happy Jack looked hard and long toward the hole of Robber the Rat. Robber wasn't to be seen. Happy Jack turned to eat and in the enjoyment of his breakfast he apparently forgot all about Robber the Rat.

Presently Farmer Brown's Boy saw the head of Robber the Rat poked out of his hole. For a minute Robber watched the breakfast party. Then, seeing that none of the Squirrels were watching, he ran quickly along at the foot of the old wall until he was right below the breakfast table. Then up he scrambled and jumped right into the middle of the table. The surprise was complete. Away went the Squirrels and Robber the Rat settled himself to eat his breakfast.

So sure was he that he had thoroughly frightened Happy Jack and his family that he paid no attention to them. In fact, he turned his back to the tree in which they were chattering and scolding. He didn't notice when presently the chattering ceased. He didn't see the Squirrel family come down from the tree. But Farmer Brown's Boy did, and he chuckled.

"Those Squirrels are going to turn the tables on Robber the Rat," thought he. "I hope they will. Yes, sir, I hope they will."

They did. They rushed at Robber the Rat just as he had rushed at them, and because he hadn't expected this, he was taken completely by surprise, and took to his heels. He didn't stop until he reached his hole. Then he turned around and glared at the Squirrel family once more settling down to enjoy their breakfast.

Evidently Happy Jack and his family had made up their minds that Robber had been so badly frightened he wouldn't return, for they gave him no further attention. Robber saw this and saw his chance. He made himself look as fierce as possible and rushed that breakfast party as before. Away they all went, just as usual. Not until they were up in the tree did they realize what had happened. Then such an angry barking as there was. This time Robber turned so as to face them. He had no intention of being surprised again. The Squirrels saw this and so they hesitated to attack Robber. He was such a savage looking fellow, and they had heard such tales of his bad temper and fighting qualities that they had no desire to feel his teeth.

Finally they withdrew to talk it over, leaving Robber the Rat in possession of their stone table and the rest of the breakfast.

"Huh! Huh!" exclaimed Farmer Brown's Boy under his breath. "The idea of one Rat putting six Squirrels to flight! I have no use for Robber, but I must say that he has won my respect. He certainly bluffed those Squirrels. He couldn't fight all of them, and he knows it, but he has made them think that he could. I'm afraid Happy Jack hasn't much courage. I wouldn't expect Happy Jack to fight Robber alone, for Robber is tough and a born fighter, but I do think that the whole family might drive Robber away and keep him away."

SOCIAL CORNER POETRY
People Will Talk

We may go through the world, but
'twill be very slow,
If we listen to all that is said as we go;
We'll be worried and fretted and kept in a stew,
For meddlesome tongues must have something to do.

If quiet and modest, you'll have it presumed That your humble position is only assumed—
You're a wolf in sheep's clothing or else you're a fool;
But don't get excited—keep perfectly
cool.

If generous and noble, they'll vent out their spleen;
You'll hear some loud hints that you're selfish and mean;
If upright and honest, as fair as the day,
They'll call you a rogue in a sly,
sneaking way.

And then if you show the least bold-
ness of heart,
Or a slight inclination to take your own part,
They'll call you an upstart, conceited and vain;
But keep straight ahead, and don't stop to explain.

If threadbare your coat, or old-fashioned your hat,
Some one, of course, will take notice of that,
And hint rather strong that you can't pay your own way;
But don't get excited, whatever they say.

If you dress in the fashion, don't think of escape,
For they'll criticise then in a different shape;
You're ahead of your means, or your tailor's unpaid;
But mind your own business—there's naught to be made.

They'll talk fine before you, but then at your back,
Of venom and slander there's never a lack;
How kind and polite in all that they say,
But bitter as gall when you're out of the way.

The best way to do is to do as you please,
For your mind, if you have one, will then be at ease;
Of course you will meet with all sorts of abuse,
But don't think to stop them—it ain't any use.

For people will talk, you know,
people will talk,
O! yes, they must talk, you know!

"They'll Never Miss Me."

Lucindy Jane, aged thirty-five,
Was the most unselfish girl alive.
"Mother was sick and father was pore,"
But she managed to keep "the wolf from the door."
Her brothers and sisters, "real gifted."
she said,
"Had to be schooled and clothed and fed."
So she did the washing, and scrubbed
the floors,
And mended the clothes—did all the chores.
When the boys forgot the Sunday's wood,
She split it herself as well as she could.
If they asked her to go to a huskin'
or bee,
She said: "I'm too busy; they'll never miss me."
Old Deacon Calkins, fervent and thin,
Took every occasion to "lift drop in To talk with Lucindy," her soul to win,
"'Cause workin' on Sunday's a dreful sin;
It's breakin' the law of God," he said,
"And'll bring down judgment on your head.
When the last trumpet's thunders roll,
And all the sky is a written scroll,
You've got to face the Almighty then,
And render account, with the sons of men."
Lucindy heard with her quiet smile,
Mending the last week's wash the while.
"I b'leve, my soul, Deacon Calkins," said she,
"That the Lord knows all about Sunday and me.
Don't talk about none o' your 'glories to be,'
And 'trumpets' and 'scrolls' and 'judgments' to me.
If ever I'm laid in a long, cool grave—
A poor old, tired, and worn-out slave—
They may blow all the trumpets from Dan to Bershee;
I'll just keep as shady as shady can be.
And lie there and rest; they'll never miss me."
—Virginia Morgan, in Century.

The Fun We've Had

When a feller wakes at mornin' with a head that's feelin' bad
He is sometimes apt t' grumble an'
ferget th' fun he's had.
For th' dazzle of th' lights, an' clink of ice an' glass are gone.
And his hair starts pulin' fiercely when th' sun comes up at dawn.
But, th' feller who's a hero, then, jest smiles an' says "I'm glad!"
An' he disregards th' present fer' th' thoughts of fun he's had.

When misfortune hits a feller with a mighty vicious whack,
An' th' clouds hang all about him, an'
th' day is lookin' black,
When th' friends whom he has cherished in th' hours of old have fled,
An' his hopes of better times t' come are lyin' crushed an' dead;
Oh, 'tis then his mem'ry wanders back
t' when he was a lad,—
An' he laughs an' lives them over, all
th' pleasures he has had.

So, when'er th' summons reaches me t' journey to that land
Where th' folks sit 'round all day a-list'nin' t' th' angel band,
There is just one privilege I'd ask, an'
that is that I may Go back an' loiter with th' kids with whom I ust t' play.
No string of mourners do I wish, with faces long an' sad—
For I'll be happy in my dreams of the pleasures I have had.

Those Medics

If you're fat or if you're thin,
If your toes are turning in,
If you've bunions on your shin—
It's your tonsils!

If your hair is falling out,
If you're suffering from the gout,
If you're getting too darn stout—
It's your adenoids!

If your dome is turning gray,
And you can't eat bales of hay,
If you're failing day by day—
It's your teeth!

Pain in thumb or ache in toe,
When to "Doc" you sadly go,
He will say his little piece—
"Tonsils, adenoids, or your teeth!"

THE OUTDOOR LIVING ROOM

Dear Social Corner Friends: Perhaps it is time for me to do my bit again. This extremely warm weather tempts one to be a slacker in many ways. I have enjoyed reading the letters of our newer members and it seemed good to be able to relax a little in my responsibility to the Corner page. I was one of the fortunate sisters in attendance at the B. M. on Tuesday, the 11th. It was a wonderful meeting. We are blessed in having such talent and executive ability among our members. In some ways these gatherings remind me of the old-time county fair, as one meets so many friends there one doesn't see very often, so it is not strange that the buzz of conversation is often louder than the drone of many bees. One of these meetings "sets me up" for some time. There is an uplift about them easier to feel than to explain.

The summer rush of traffic is on, as we who dwell beside cement trunk line roads know but too well. What a contrast to my early summers! Then so few vehicles passed the farm that I felt disappointed if a single one of them escaped my vision, while now I am as anxious not to see them as the opposite in those days. In some post-war book I call to mind reading of some country (I think it was France) in which the people make a great deal more of their back yards as outdoor living rooms than most of us do here. It has been the custom in New England to make the front yard attractive, with smooth lawn, shade trees, a variety of shrubbery and gay flowers, using the space at the rear of the house for utilitarian purposes. Before automobiles became so ubiquitous families enjoyed sitting out in front of their houses, there being just about enough traffic then to add a note of interest but not enough to tire one's eyes and head. With the changed conditions the almost constant whirr of wheels will drive us, I think, to the back yard as an outdoor living room, and we shall soon be giving more attention to making this space attractive and restful.

Many unsightly things that we hadn't noticed much will be done away with entirely or made more pleasing to the eye, while retaining their useful features. Of late the second girl graduate has been much in evidence and baccalaureate sermons have had their hour. In my home town paper I read one given by the president of a state college, the subject being This Business of Growing Up. Some people, this writer said, never grow up, though they may live to pass the three score and ten mark. How true that is, too true for the good of humanity.

One of the problems that confronts us at this vacation season is what to do with the young people. It is a pity that among the youth there is so much misdirected activity, and in many cases there seems no solution of the problem. It is so difficult to provide means for a healthful outlet for so much energy. Good reading may fill many pleasant hours for those who hunger for knowledge. We have lately acquired some fine new books at our library here, one of the best being A Pilgrimage to Palestine, by Dr. Fosdick. It makes plain to me many things that had seemed obscure before. A good friend has made me happy with a gift of several Atlantic Monthlies of recent date, ensuring me hours of pleasure and profit. Welcome to all new members and best wishes to you all.

PROPOSES A FLOWER FUND

Dear Editor and Friends: My, but it is some hot! Well, this is what we wanted, and we have got it, so we ought to be satisfied. One sister spoke of carrying flowers to the shut-ins and sick and hospitals. Yes, that is a fine idea, but we could have a memorial day for those who have passed on, just the same. It will show they are still remembered and not forgotten. Down home the Rebekahs have a flower mission and a flower fund. I think it a fine idea to have one for us. Each member of each club could give 10 cents a month; have one appointed as treasurer. Then if one of the members pass on there can be a piece of flowers sent in behalf of the club. Then there will be no mistakes made. If I had ways and means, I would carry some flowers every day to someone. It is such a fine thing to see how happy those look who receive them. God gives us the flowers, why not share them with others?

Ravilla: Did you and your party arrive home safely? Say, how would you like to be under the shade of the old oak tree today?

Rural Aunty: I am so glad you are going to have a state road over the dear old hill. Won't it be fine? Speaking of roads, I took a trip over a road the other day. Never saw it in such fine condition as it is now. Mr. S—, you and your men have done some fine work. Just keep it up. Uncle Harry used to say "fix it good and it will stay fixed for a long time," and he just knew how to fix the roads. As I rode over that road I did not bound out of the car once or hang on for dear life, as I have done in other times. Good for you, Mr. S—, just keep on as you have begun.

John G.: What a fine time it will be to have an old school reunion down at the old schoolhouse when that road is done. Have all the old playmates gather there once more as we used to do. Say, do you think you and I could climb that tree as we used to? My, but I would like to try, wouldn't you? The boys did not beat me at any of their games in those days. What fun it would be to have a picnic under the shade of those dear old trees, with all of the old sweet memories of our childhood days. They were happy, full of joy and fun. They have long been passed, but there is yet a spot of green left in our memories. I think of the dear school and playmates of the dear old days. How I would like to see them again, but they are far in the past, never to return.

Arles: I hope you and Adam are all right this fine cool weather.

Kochia: I guess it is hot down there. Poor boy! Just keep in the shade.

Last Rose of Summer: Can you keep cool? I have a large ash tree in my yard and the shade is fine.

Keziah Doolittle: I don't see as we have any chance to go paddling, for it doesn't seem to rain for us.

Butterfly: Ravilla and I called last Thursday, but found no one home.

Azele: I hope you are better now. Try again.

Killingly Bud: How are you? Do you find it warm? If we don't have a meeting and roll call this month, we can pray for the sick and those in trouble and sorrow. That is the best we can do. May God bless all and be with them.

Pippin: I hope you are better. I hear hubby is no better. I am so sorry for you both. I hope he can get better soon.

Ann Tenna: I hope you are fine. It is so nice to get home after being away.

Daisy Deane: How are you this hot weather?

Peter Prose: Last winter you was frozen. Are you melted this summer? But not enough so but that you can just give us a few lines.

May God bless and be with all is my best wishes.

NEED MORE FAITH

Dear Corner Writers: We need more faith. This is why we are discouraged and disheartened so often; why life looks so gloomy and why hope hides her face from us. We are not willing to let God lead us. We would rather walk alone and trust to our poor blind eyes and our weary, faltering feet to find the way home. Instead of putting our hand into God's hand and cheerfully believing in Him, we toil on and on over hills of difficulty, down valleys of shadow and into pitfalls of temptation. There is no need of all this; it is only making trouble for ourselves. Instead of singing and smiling and trusting as you go, we are groping about for the light just within our reach and a refuge ever nigh. Oh, for the faith of the snowdrop and the violet! They never question why they are shut up in silence and darkness. They only trust and wait, and in time they bloom.

Did you ever think what a terrible thing false judgment is? Did you ever try to realize how much it has done? You could not calculate the amount if you were to toy until the end of time. Friendships have been destroyed, hearts broken and homes wrecked because of it. It has been the cause of a great deal of misery in the world. Let me urge you to be careful how you judge. Be continually on the lookout lest you should be tempted to misconstrue a word or action. Find something to commend rather than condemn in those around you. Are you free from censure? Have you no faults? Do you make no mistakes? If you are so imperfect yourself, you cannot afford to judge others.

And you who judge so harshly, are you sure the stumbling stone that tripped the feet of others might not have bruised your own?

Are you sure the sad-faced angel who writes your errors down will assign to you more honor than him on whom you frown?

Remember your influence. Be careful what you do and say, for somehow or somewhere, and at some time, it will come back to you. Do not imagine any word or act of yours is valueless. In years to come perhaps it will spring up and bear good or evil fruit and help or hinder your hope for eternal life. The idle word you may carelessly speak today will not be lost. Oh, remember this! Each one of us is born to exert an influence over someone else. Therefore weigh your words and measure your deeds lest they should prove a stumbling block to your neighbor. Nothing is too small to escape the eye of God—nothing in His sight is ever lost.

Love your enemy; bless those who persecute you, bless and curse them not. Do not say back evil for evil to anyone. If possible, as far as it depends on you, live at peace with all men; never revenge yourselves, beloved, but give place to the wrath of God, for it is written "vengeance is mine, I will repay," saith the Lord. Rather if your enemy is hungry, feed him. If he is thirsty, give him drink. For in so doing you will heap coals of fire on his head. Be not conquered by evil but conquer evil by doing good.

OVER 40 MET WITH CLUB 6

Dear Social Corner Members: My, but we are having a hot wave, and yesterday Club 6 held its meeting at the Road church parlors with 43 present, which seemed a very good attendance for such a hot day, and being off of a bus line. We were pleased to have with us visitors from Gales Ferry, Yantic, Gardner Lake and Norwich Town as well as our own members from Groton.

We were called to the tables at noon by Nereid, the hostess. All joined in singing Praise God, from Whom All Blessings Flow, then a moment of silent prayer for Pyrethrum in her sorrow. Grace was said by Zuhleka. Then all did justice to the nice dinner of boiled ham, baked beans, macaroni and cheese, salads, relishes, cake, pie and coffee and the good cold water from a nearby well. In the afternoon there was a good program in charge of Topsy. We were favored also with a reading by Mr. Bell, one of the visitors. We then went across the lawn and entered the well preserved colonial church and had a hymn sing closing with God Be With You Till We Meet Again. Everyone seemed to have a good time.

We all feel so sorry for our sister Pyrethrum and her family in the loss of the little daughter who was killed on Saturday by an automobile when she was returning from school. On the 11th it was the pleasure of some of us to attend the meeting of Club 2 and didn't we have a good time! Some entertainment! I heard one lady say she had paid 75 cents more than once to see entertainments not as good. We will all take our hats off to Georgette and her helpers when it comes to entertainments.

TAKING HER VACATION

Social Corner Editor and Sisters: I think I agreed to write a letter every month. I started in all right, wrote for January and February, and then I stopped. Next week I am going for a vacation, something I have not enjoyed for five year, so when I get back will write and tell you about it.

Aries: You will feel interested in my trip, I know.

Reading through the letter of Calla Lily this week, where she speaks of candle moulds, that used to be my job when I was a small girl. I had to make six candles every morning and the next morning take them out of the moulds. My father would not have a lamp in the house, so we burned tallow candles. In the summer we did not need a light, for we all went to bed as soon as it was dark. No evenings made in that home from April to the middle of September, but we were up early in the morning, and it was much better for our health.

There was no need of daylight saving in that home.

Ann Tenna: I hope the frost did not touch your beans, as it did some of mine

CAPRICORN.

SOMETHING NEW UNDER THE SUN

Dear Editor: When you read this heading you will say "Bah! It can't be did." Well, I'll tell you about it later. I wanted to let you know we are safe and sound, after all the excitement of hot weather, decoration days and senator from Alabama, to say nothing of graduations and home dramatics, and tuna fish parties where red pepper is used instead of paprika. But that's another story, so I'll hasten to tell you about the novel idea. People cut postage stamps into queer shapes and carefully paste the pieces on any pattern or model or drawing in such a way as will form a very good picture for framing. Lamp shades are made by using any plain paper for a foundation and pasting the postage stamps upon it in any pattern desired. A coat of transparent shellac is used as a finish. I have seen white dinner plates decorated with the cut-out postage stamps. Also a full sized bureau covered with this sort of work. It is splendid work for an invalid who can arrange forms on postcards or small pictures.

Well, while I am in the writing mood I may as well tell you of an idea for your church lawn party. As July 4th is approaching, this bazaar is particularly appropriate. Six small tents are required (any size), but this tent idea is good in case a shower of rain comes. It is well to arrange three tents on each side of a "midway." The first tent is called the "Indian tent." Baskets and ferns and other Indian articles may be sold. Also small articles wrapped in brown paper can be sold at 10 cents each, the customer being required to shoot an arrow at the packages, and he must take the one nearest his arrow. Indian costumes are worn by salesmen.

Next is the "Puritan" tent, the maidens in costume presiding over candy, popcorn, lollypops, peanuts, potato chips, etc.

Next the "Colonial" table, where dames sell ice cream, cake, cream cones and soft drinks. If one can get three large beach parasols, place small card tables under them where patrons may sit to eat their refreshments, back from the midway.

Next the "Pioneer" table or tent is placed opposite the Indian tent. The men and boys are dressed in hiking garb, red handkerchiefs about neck, belts supplied with make-believe pistols, knives, etc. They sell hot dogs and coffee. The women attendants wear long skirts, tight-fitting bodice, full skirts and sunbonnets.

Next is the "Civil war" table or tent. Odd articles are sold here, not over 10 cents. Balloons, wind mills, small flags, noise makers. The girls wear hoop skirts, old fashioned dresses and bonnets.

Next is "World war" tent, presided over by Boy and Girl Scouts in uniform. One Red Cross nurse costume among them looks well and gives variety. Soft drinks of all kinds are sold here.

At the end of the midway seats are placed for people to rest and chat.

Side shows may be placed if there is room for them. The "gypsy fortune teller" a "lollypop game" or "A Patient Tree" all draw dimes for your fund.

The lollypop game is made by using a plain board a yard square with small holes bored in same four inches apart, in which are stuck the end of lollypop sticks. Each customer is given five fruit jar rubber rings, and he tries to throw them, one by one, over a lollypop. This game is popular with the men folks.

The Patient Tree is simply a tree or bush. Favors are tied with long string upon the branches and tangled. The customer buys the end of a string, then unwinds it until he gets his favor. The favors are wrapped, so one never knows what the parcel may contain.

It is well to have music at intervals or an entertainment may be put on, each 'tent" giving some number (song or dance) suggestive of the period they represent.

A display of fireworks caps the climax and brings this successful bazaar to a close.

PLEASED WITH HELP GIVEN

Dear Sisters: One day of relief from the terrible hot wave. Though when you think of those poor people who live in those high tenement buildings in New York with only windows in the front and back rooms and no breeze to cool them, should we complain.

I want to take this way of thanking each one of the members who helped me with the two plays and the minstrel, I thank you. Mawb, Lahleet, Gypsy, Smudgie, Red Rose, Libby, Country Sister, Aunt Mary Jane and Mrs. Fowler and daughter Charlotte. Mrs. Ted Clark of New London and Miss Violet Pedace of Norwich also helped. Many thanks, Mrs. L. G. W. for your work at the piano.

I have the minstrel picture which came out very good. All those who would like one can call 2553-J, Norwich, and we can make arrangements for delivery. They are Brownie 2A size and are very clear.

I am sending in a recipe for a good fluffy frosting. It stays soft except for a thin coating which forms a crust.

Fluffy Frosting: 1 cup sugar (granulated) 3 tablespoons cold water, 1 egg white. Put into a double boiler and with an egg beater, beat 6 or 8 minutes while on the fire. Take off fire put in desired flavoring and spread.

GEORGETTE

HAY AND BEANS

Mr. Editor and All the Rest: Well, this is some fine growing weather. How the crops are growing; the weeds if nothing else. The hay crop does not look so good as last year, but I guess there will be quite a lot of it. The gardens will suffer if it doesn't rain soon. Pole beans are looking fine just now. The spring was late, but the crops will grow fast just the same, for the ground now is good and warm. Winter beans should be planted now. The bugs are not so apt to bother them if planted the last of June. Can someone send in some good farm hints? If so, I would like them, as I always like to get new ideas.

Yours truly,

DADDY LONGLEGS.

LIKED THE "SHOW BOAT"

Dear Social Corner Friends: We do not attend moving pictures very frequently. But when we saw an advertisement of "Show Boat" we determined that by hook or by crook we must see it, for we had read and enjoyed the book, and wondered what the picture could be like.

Of course, we had put ourselves in a gullible frame of mind to accept without reservations all the wonderful things the adv. had proclaimed, and we came prepared to be pleased.

But it certainly came up to our expectations. We loved it. We felt a genuine thrill when the old "Show Boat" appeared around the first bend. When the calliope began to play our thoughts left the screen for a moment and went back to the merry-go-rounds on the old Norwich fair grounds. But the sight of the grinning negroes scurrying down to the bank to greet "Show Boat" hastily recalled our wandering thoughts once again to the picture and to the present.

We won't attempt to describe the scenes. Probably many of us saw it. And it would take a far cleverer pen than ours to tell of the impression that the haunting melodies of "Ol' Man River" and "Lonesome Road" made on our hearts or of the beauty of the scenery in the last act of the picture: "Show Boat" moving slowly up the Mississippi, green banks in the distance, water glistening and rippling in the magic moonlight, Magnolia Ravel in her mature years, lovelier than ever, recalling the dreams of her youth.

And to think we had all this for 50 cents a ticket!

An article in a recent issue of the Saturday Post speaks of the great changes the talkies have wrought. The author says that he paid $18 for two seats at the Ziegfeld theatre performance of "Show Boat," but from the rear seat of a picture house he both saw and heard more completely. The illusion was complete, and all for a dollar.

This same article goes on to say that "the movie orchestra appears to face early extinction. Of the 16,000 union musicians in New York, many are out of work, and many more expect to be soon." The effect on the production of sheet music is likewise great. Here the picture business is swallowing up the industry and making a huge demand on the song writers, who are profiting accordingly.

How do the talking, singing productions affect pictures gotten up at tremendous cost just before the great changes, Ben Hur, for instance? Will they still be popular? Can the producers insert song and dialogue? We wonder!

SNAPPY JINGLES BY BRICKTOP

Dear Social Corner: Someone suggested that we need more mirth in the Corner page. As I am not any good at letter writing, I will send in some jingles. This is for father:

"Through all the years of married life
He's never uttered
One hasty word toward his wife;
Poor chap! He stuttered."

This is for son—
"I must be a double boy,
And not like other laddies;
When I'm good I'm mummy's child,
But when I'm bad I'm daddy's."

This is for mother—
"The dust is on the furniture,
We for clean plates are seeking;
There are no steaming eats for us,
Our mother's gone antique-ing."

For a Scotchman—
"The reports about Sandy are very disquieting;
He married a fat girl because she was dieting."

Some don't dare, but—
"Breathes there a man with soul so dead
Who never to his wife has said:
'When do we eat?'"

Human nature—
"For nuts who slap me on the back
I must admit I do not care;
But I've great admiration for
The kind of folks who pat me there."

Oats and beans and barley—
"Anyway, there's one nut that really isn't a nut—the peanut belongs to the bean family."

So we've noticed—
"Shed a tear for Bernice Blopp,
As a flapper she's a flop."

Duplicate—
"Li'l pickaninny, looks just like his poppy;
Don' know what to call him 'less it's Corban Copy."

Lobster with ice cream—
"There is one thing 'bout life
That makes us groan and cuss—
And that's that the things we like
Are always bad for us."

"Altho we still can see the slippered feet,
We don't so often hear of the slippered sea."

A mighty charger is he—
Under the spreading chestnut tree
The village garageman stands;
He makes his daily wherewithal
On carboned cracks and burnt-out bands.
And the children coming home from school
Look in at the open door;
They love to see him stick the city chaps
And hear the suckers roar.

Quite so—
"Since a million cars are built each year,
I venture forth with fear.
For since a fool is born each minute,
Each car I meet may have one in it."

Old Glory—
"I take off my hat to Old Glory,
I'm strong for the 'flag of the free,'
The emblem of any square nation
Can count on observance from me."

THE BIRDS

Dear Editor and Everybody: Some way the Corner page looks lonesome without a letter of mine. I wish Bo Peep could see the birds that come on my lawn every day for worms; the grass and bushes are so thick, they seem to love the open space where they can find bugs and food for the young birds. Some time I'll tell her a true story that happened about a steel trap and a robin, but time is too precious, with 101 things to do looking me in the face all the time.

Not a drop of rain has fallen since I planted my garden, and I am very discouraged, but must wait with patience, I suppose.

THANKS HER HELPERS

Dear Corner Sisters: We have had our meeting today and it was dreadfully hot. I wondered if I felt the heat so because I was around the fire or if it really was a warm day. At home they told me the thermometer was 90 degrees in the shade.

I want to thank Topsy for the fine program she put on. It took such a load from my shoulders when she agreed to attend to it for me. I also want to thank Paroquet and Beers and all the other sisters who so ably assisted me.

My heart is wrung with grief for Pyrethrum and her family in the loss of their little girl. The poem was beautiful. I could picture Constance entering the Golden Gates as it was being read.

My sympathy to all shut-ins and sorrowing ones.

Solution of Yesterday's Puzzle

TOURING THE SOUTHLAND

Dear Social Corner Editor and Friends: Quite a number of times there has been letters written for the Social Corner readers of incidents and experiences of those who have visited various sections of the country. Those letters have been very interesting and instructive. As the near home places have been well pen-pictured, the thought came to me that a mind visit to some far-away section of the country, particularly the "Sunny Southland," would be interesting to many of the Social Corner readers. As the vote is in the affirmative, I will take the readers along with me over the route that I have traveled several times.

My mind is fresh with the scenes and incidents as I saw and experienced them as I looked from the car window while passing through a very interesting and historical section of the country.

I will picture them to you as best I can. As it can't all be submitted to you in one article, I will write it in series of such length as will not crowd out letters of other members under the title "Sketches by the Wayside."

Vacation time from many years' service in the company store was approaching, and having for some time contemplated taking a journey to some part of the south, only waiting for a favorable opportunity to present itself, which came the last week in August, when Mr. C. J. S., agent of a large manufacturing company, and myself decided upon Knoxville, Tenn., as the objective point.

Mr. S.' trip was to meet a business engagement, while mine was for recreation, sightseeing and pleasure.

The next thing to consider was what route we should take in order to see the most that would be interesting and pleasing to the eye.

It was proposed that we take the Boston and Philadelphia express to Philadelphia, thence to Harrisburg, down the Cumberland valley to Hagerstown, thence the Shenandoah Valley railroad, the Norfolk and Western and Southern to Knoxville, and return via Lynchburg, Washington, Baltimore, Philadelphia and New York, and then home.

I never have been noted for logical acumen, but this conclusion was as easily taken as a case of measles. On the evening of Aug. 27, 1883, we were seated in a Pullman sleeping car, being whirled across the country toward New York and Jersey City, where we arrived at 5 o'clock Tuesday morning. At 5.30 we were again on the way toward the "City of Brotherly Love."

After taking breakfast, we were again on the train going toward Harrisburg, passing through a fine farming country. The farm buildings are substantial, neat and commodious, the stock being pastured in fields of clover, were fat and sleek, showing that they didn't suffer for want of either food or drink.

The crops of corn, potatoes, tobacco, etc., were of extra growth and showed good cultivation. We arrived at Harrisburg at 10.15 and after a stop of 30 minutes were again on the way to Hagerstown over the Cumberland Valley railroad, which leads through many fine and important towns, one of which is Chambersburg, burned Sept. 20, 1862, by confederate General Stewart's cavalry. The Cumberland valley is noted for the fertility of the soil, well cultivated farms and excellent crops and is called the "Garden Spot of the World," as is a greater part of the Shenandoah valley.

After a pleasant ride of some two hours and 20 minutes through most romantic scenery we arrived at Hagerstown Md. (This is in fact the beginning of the Shenandoah Valley railroad.) It is a pleasant city of some 15,000 inhabitants and to all appearance is active and enterprising. After a stop of a few minutes we were again fairly under way with plenty of room in our coaches, over a nice roadbed and steel track. We settled ourselves down to sightseeing and enjoyment. At Grimes station we were informed that we were where the contending forces left blood red tracks that are now covered with grasses and flowers and that Antietam or Sharpsburg were but four or five miles away. Soon we were across the creek, and near here is the bridge which General Burnside and his command crossed; a sad reminder of the past to me, for in the attempt to carry this point fell several of my old schoolmates and many friends and acquaintances. We were now in the very center of Antietam battlefield, where was poured out some of the best blood of the union. From the car window we plainly saw the soldiers' monument, which speaks adoration of those who fell in defense of their country. Looking directly across Antietam we catch a glimpse of South mountain battlefield and monument, where took place a sharp engagement between the rebel forces under Lee, Longstreet and Jackson and union forces commanded by McClellan, Burnside and Reno; the latter fell mortally wounded while leading his men to victory.

At Sharpsburg it is said that every acre about this place is a battleground. For three miles the railroad runs through the center of fields once the arena of fierce fighting. How vividly my mind pictured the charge, the retreat, the carnage. As one has said, "Oh god of battles, let it never be seen again in reality."

Peaceful as a benediction the sunbeams rest on the trees that watch over the graves of 5,000 federal soldiers who sleep here.

"Oh, bury the brave on the field where they fell
Let them sleep beneath the sod
That drank up their blood in the deadly affray
When their spirits went home to God."

HEPATICA'S NAME FLOWER

Dear Editor and Corner Writers: I was pleased to have Just-a-Nut inquire about the flower I call hepaticas. I think she would find the flower all right in a botany book. It is also called liverwort. I do not know any other name for the little lavender or bluish flower which grows in the woods so early in the spring.

So many early spring wild flowers are called May flowers that I am not sure that it is the right name for any one of them.

If she had inquired a little earlier this spring I could have sent her some, as I pressed some and sent them to three different persons.

It was hard to decide upon a pen-name and so I fell back on the flowers like many others.

Having such pleasant memories of the first time I picked hepatica, I chose that flower for my name.

Lular Wyle: I looked over old papers hoping to find a copy of The Bulletin which you desired, but it was among the missing. I am sure there will be other readers who can help you out. Was interested in your letter about old cemeteries and agree with you that it's sad to see them so neglected. I liked what you said about the well kept ones. "The sight rests the eyes and gives comfort to the heart."

Best wishes to all.

TOOK ANOTHER'S NAME

Dear Editor and Members of the Social Corner: May I join you? I have read the letters with interest for some time and enjoyed them.

Nereid: Your suggestion as to fixing a screen door met a very urgent need and hubby had ours fixed in a very few minutes after I read your letter.

May I have the pen name

SISTER SUE.

(You have taken the name of another member. Please make another choice and it will be recorded on the membership roll.—S. C. Editor.)

HELPFUL QUOTATIONS

Dear Social Corner Folks: There have been many helpful quotations in the letters of late. Many years ago, when teaching in a district school, where the ages of the pupils ranged from 4 to 16, I wrote upon the blackboard one morning the following couplet:

"Politeness is to do and say
The kindest thing in the kindest way."

I wondered if it would be noticed, and was pleased to find that almost without exception the children copied it.

A few years ago I was interested to learn that it was the custom in one of the schools in Cambridge, Mass., for the teacher to place daily on the blackboard selected quotations for the pupils to copy in their note books. On one of the last days of the school they were asked to hand in the quotations they had found the most helpful. The one that received the greatest number of votes was the following:

"Lost—Somewhere between sunrise and sunset, two golden hours, each set with sixty diamond minutes. No reward is offered, as they are gone forever."—Horace Mann.

One of the strong favorites was the familiar and loved quotation from Whittier's "Eternal Goodness":

"I know not where his islands lift
Their fronded palms in air;
I only know I cannot drift
Beyond his love and care."

The third quotation of those receiving the most votes was from Dr. Holmes' poem, "The Chambered Nautilus":

"Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul!
As the swift seasons roll!
Leave thy low-vaulted past!
Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast,
Till thou at length art free,
Leaving thine outgrown shell by life's unresting sea!"

MOCK MINCE PIE

Editor Social Corner: Below is a recipe requested by Nonesopretty some weeks ago:

Mock Mince (Vinegar) Pie: 1 1-2 cups raisins, 1 lemon, 7 soda crackers soaked in 1 pint warm water, 1 cup sugar, 2 cups molasses, 1 cup vinegar, 2 tablespoons cloves (ground), 2 tablespoons cinnamon, some nutmeg, a little salt. Chop the lemon and raisins fine and mix all together. Bake in two crusts. Makes filling for two pies.

HANOVER

At the six-church conference held at Lisbon Wednesday the 19th, the Hanover church was represented by 18.

Miss Doris May Crowder was married to Alexander Walmsley of Occum at the Parsonage-by-the-Pines by Rev. Dwight C. Stone Wednesday, June 19ths at 7 o'clock in the evening. The bridesmaid was Miss Dorothy Thornes, and the best man was Fred Benson of Occum. The immediate members of the two families made up the bridal party.

The last missionary meeting before the summer vacation was held in the parish house Thursday afternoon at 3 o'clock. The leader was Mrs. William G. Park, and the hostesses were Mrs. Frank and Mrs. Kenneth Doyle.

Next Sunday will be observed as children's day at the Congregational church. The children's day exercises will take the place of the regular preaching service at 10.45 a. m. A number of the younger members of the church school will appear for the first time as public speakers on the stage.

Miss Mary Freeman of Norwich Town, and Mrs. Lewis E. Hammond of Stonington borough are visitors at the Parsonage-by-the-Pines. Thursday callers at the house included Mr. and Mrs. Noyes Main and their daughter Estella, and Mrs. Main's sister, Mrs. Conrad and her daughter from Stonington.

At the Jubilee entertainment given by the children of St. Mary's parish in honor of Rev. J. J. McCabe's 25th anniversary of ordination, Miss Marguerite Shea presented him on behalf of the children $50 in gold, an exquisite embroidered set of linen to be used in the mass, a spiritual bouquet and a lovely rose bouquet. Miss Shea's address opened with Reverend Dear Father and she said:

What happiness is ours tonight, in this intimate parish gathering, to be the echo of the profound joy which is in every heart at the occasion of this, your silver jubilee!

For months we have anticipated the date, and now, though the younger members of your flock, we deem it an honor and privilege to offer you, in the name of all our most hearty and sincere sentiments.

Years ago, in answer to the sweet, yet pleading voice of the Master: "Follow me," you left the rank and file of men, to become in spite of forseen sacrifices, the valiant commander of Christ's army.

Saint Mary's parish of Jewett City was the portion chosen for your zeal. For fifteen years you have been here a burning torch leading souls to God. Your children have recognized in you "another Christ," for have you not consoled every sorrow, soothed every pain, shared every joy, and gone about doing good? You have labored untiringly, borne the burden and the heat, seeking no applause save God's own approval. May He be your reward exceedingly great!

Deign to accept, kind father, with these flowers, the slight token of the love of a grateful people.

Roses! emblems of that charity which is Christlike! This heavenly virtue so dominating in your every action portrays Christ to us, for it is justly said: Kindness springs from the soul of man, just at the point where the divine image was graven deepest.

Yes each and every one who has come within your gentle influence has experienced your universal charity and to know you is to love you. But cannot we your children boast of occupying a large corner in your noble and generous heart. Should you ask us why we believe so, we have only to point to St. Mary's new parochial school. It will silently but eloquently tell of your priestly and fatherly love for the little ones. Here you have given us the very best, sparing nothing to make our school life happy.

May we, in a small measure at least, repay you by doing our utmost to profit by the lessons taught therein! Love of God, love of virtue and love of country! Thus we shall become what you intend we should, loyal American citizens!

Like all days on earth, this happy day must end but ere it departs may it leave in your heart, dear father, the assurance of our prayers that God may grant you all the blessings which will lighten your noble task among us, all the consolation of your priestly mission, all the joy of fruitful labor, and at the end the reward eternal.

Thursday as Fred Greene was driving home to Westminster from work his Ford car broke a wishbone near Arthur Tracy's home. The car became unmanagable and crashed into a fence smashing the car badly and seriously injuring Mr. Greene who was alone in the car at the time of the accident. Greene was taken to Dr. J. L. Gardner's office. Deep gashes were found on his face and pieces of wood were embedded in them from the posts which he hit. After his wounds were dressed Greene was taken to his home. The accident was reported to the state police.

RAILS AND INDUSTRIALS SUPPLANT UTILITIES AS LEADERS IN MARKET

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP)— Stock prices made further recovery in today's market with the rails and industrials supplanting the public utilities as the leaders. While trading showed only a moderate expansion in volume, due to the uneasiness over the possibility of a money pinch next week, the demand for stocks was more varied than it has been at any time this week. Total sales fell just short of 3,200,000 shares, or slightly more than 400,000 above yesterday's total.

Inasmuch as about $400,000,000 in stock "rights" had to be taken up in the last ten days, the increase of $136,000,000 in federal reserve brokers' loans was disregarded. Neither was any attention paid to the decline in the federal reserve bank holdings of bill and government securities, which apparently disproved rumors that there had been a relaxation in federal reserve credit policy. Meanwhile, money rates were unchanged, call money holding steady at 7 per cent all day although the undertone of the market was characterized as firmer.

The Chicago federal reserve bank followed the action of the New York institution in announcing no change in the 5 per cent rediscount rate.

Public utilities, which had been in the forefront of the advance earlier in the week, ran into heavy profit-taking. Commonwealth Power dropped 4 1-2 points, American Power & Light, Detroit Edison, Pacific Lighting and Peoples Gas dropped 2 to 3 points and Consolidated Gas, Public Service of New Jersey and several others yielded a point or more. Meanwhile, Brooklyn Union Gas, and Columbia Gas & Electric moved into new high ground.

Announcement of a large food merger by the J. P. Morgan & Co., interests was hailed as a bullish development, but curiously Fleischmann and Royal Baking Powder, the stocks directly involved, lost ground, probably on "selling on the good news." There was little else in the day's news to influence the price movement. Weekly Mercantile Reviews continued optimistic in tone, stressing the impetus to summer goods trade given by the heat wave this week.

Speculative interest veered decidedly toward the rails in the late trading. Atchison ran up 6 points and retained most of its gain, Union Pacific and New York Central each advanced about 5 points and a dozen others advanced 1 to 3 points, with New Haven and Norfolk & Western reaching new high ground for the year.

U. S. Steel common and Anaconda were two of the most popular standard industrials, the former closing 2 5-8 points higher at 180 3-8 after having crossed 181, and the latter showing a net gain of 3 1-4 at 115 1-4, which contrasts with the low of 99 touched on the recent decline.

Wide gains were registered by some of the high priced specialties. Adams Express soared 39 points, Federal Mining & Smelting jumped 33 points and Allied Chemical closed 14 points all but a point of its 19 points gain and Allied Chemical cosed 14 points higher at 306 after having sold 5 points above that figure. Air Reduction, Underwood Elliott Fisher, Childs Co., MacKay Co., and Youngstown Sheet & Tube reached new high ground.

Mexican Seaboard common and "rights" were heavily bought on the bringing in of another well on its Kettlemen's Hill property in California and Pan American B recovered more than 3 points of its recent loss, but the other oils continued sluggish.

Baldwin A. M. Byers, Commercial Investment Trust, Commercial Solvents, General Electric, Greene Cananea Copper, May Department Stores, United Air Transport common and preferred and Wright Aero all sold 4 to 10 points higher.

Commodity markets were mixed. Cotton declined about $1 a bale on selling influenced by excellent growing weather. An early gain of 1 1-2 cents a bushel in wheat futures, based on a better export demand, was cancelled by subsequent liquidation inspired by favorable weather forecasts. Corn futures also lost ground after an early advance.

Foreign exchange trading was quiet with price changes inconsequential.

BOND MARKET

NEW YORK, June 21.—(AP)— Convertible rail and telephone obligations, advancing on the strength of the stocks, accounted for most of the activity on today's ragged bond market. Issues without a speculative flavor eased slightly, although the charge for long term time loans dropped to 7 3-4 per cent. It had ranged on Thursday between that figure and 8 per cent.

Railroad securities exchangeable for stocks showed considerable improvement. The largest gain was made by the Atchison 4 1-2s, up 1 5-8 on a large turnover. Erie Convertible 4s mounted 1 1-4 and fractional advances were made by Baltimore & Ohio 4 1-2s, Missouri Pacific 5 1-2s and Southern Pacific 4 1-2s, with warrants.

American telephone Convertible 4 1-2s moved within a range of more than 2 points, closing at 129 1-2 for a net gain of 1 5-8, while International Telephone 4 1-2s climbed 2 3-4 to a new high at 133, closing a shade under its best price of the day. Public Service of New Jersey 4 1-2s made a new 1929 high at 236, but reacted to 230, the previous close.

The remainder of the list, including the United States government issues, was spotty. Although quotations tended toward the down side, changes were mostly insignificant and the volume of business continued light. Minor strength appeared in Consolidated Gas of New York debenture 5 1-2s and in Pacific Telephone 5s, but North American Edison 5 1-2s and 5s, which had been selling higher this week, met fractional declines.

In the rail section, only the secondary and speculative issues, aside from the convertibles, traded to an appreciable extent. Fair attention was paid to the St. Paul 5s and the Seaboard bonds, the Consolidated 4s of the latter line advancing 1-2 and the refunding 4s 1 1-2.

Several representative industrials met with selling which carried American Beet Sugar 6s down 2 points to a new 1929 low. Armour Real Estate 4 1-2s, Goodyear Tire & Rubber 5s and United States Rubber 5s declined fractionally. Walworth issues were strong, the 6 1-2s climbing 2 1-4.

WESTERLY

FOUR CHINAMEN, MEXICAN AND WHITE GIRL HELD

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, June 21—Four Chinamen, a Mexican and a white girl were held Thursday night and Friday at the Westerly police department. The last named, in a statement to the police described herself as Rosie Murphy, 22, of 73 McCullen Place, Astoria, Long Island, N. Y., hostess in a dance hall, "The Smart Set Ball Room," 48th street and Broadway, New York." She explained her presence in Westerly by saying that she was paying her own expenses in New York, getting $40 a week, and added but its rather slow there now. "Her boy friend" was Ricardo Flores, a Mexican. It was upon his invitation that she took a trip from New York to Boston. On the return trip they got into the tolls of the Westerly police by reason of an auto collision.

At 9:30 Thursday night Westerly Traffic Officer George L. Madison was called to the home of Mrs. Jessie Neugent, 54 Franklin street, where some 15 feet of picket fence had been torn down when the machine, a taxi, driven by Flores, struck on the right side of a Ford car owned and operated by William J. Hartley, 8 Union St., as it made a turn to pass into the yard as it came up behind. Damage of $50 was done to wheels and mudguards of the Ford and the Nash lost a left front hub cap. On the front seat of the taxi, besides the driver and girl was seated a Chinaman who had engaged the car for the trip. He was John Sam, 185 Washington street, Brooklyn. On the rear seat were three Chinese boys or young men who appeared disinclined to get out of the auto after the accident. They gave their names as Lo Sun, Long Kee and Cho Chen, and their presence on Thursday night was explained by Sam that he was taking them to New York to work in a restaurant. Friday his story was that they were seamen from a boat which they had missed in Boston and were to join in New York. In the number of conflicting stories Police Lieutenant George H. Champlin decided to hold all Thursday night and Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown on Friday summaned Chinese Immigration Inspector Carney from Boston with an interpreter and also asked for Gen. Superintendent Herbert B. Caffrey of the Rhode Island State Bureau of Criminal Identification to visit Westerly and assist the Westerly authorities after Town Solicitor John Ferguson had obtained all the information he was able from questioning all of the party, in the belief that they were involved in the smuggling of Chinese into New York from Boston.

Police Officer Paul McCarthy on Thursday night recalled that there were only three occupants in the front seat on Thursday morning at 1 a. m. when they had stopped to inquire their way to Boston. At first all denied having passed through Westerly but in saying that Route No. 1 had been used were convinced they had been in town before.

From information gathered by the Westerly police it was learned that the taxi left New York, at 6:30 p. m., Wednesday, for Boston and arrived in Boston on Thursday at 6 or 7 a. m. In Boston three rooms at the U. S. hotel were occupied until 1 p. m., when they called at 50 Oak street, in Boston, and Sam came out of a store which appeared to look like a silk store with five Chinese, three of whom got in the taxi and the start for New York was made. Previous to this they had gone to Chinatown and all three had eats. Expenses of the trip were all paid by the Chinese, but while in Boston the girl had complained of being ill and had visited a doctor and also a drug store. At the Westerly police station she continued to take the medicine secured in Boston. Bottles and cards with Chinese labels and writing were found by the police in and about the New York car at the scene of the collision.

An attachment was placed on the auto.

SHORT SESSION OF THIRD DISTRICT COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, June 21—Judge Oliver H. Williams held short session on Friday morning of the regular third district court when court matters were disposed of as follows:

New writs entered before the calling of the docket—Maggs and Co., vs. William L. Bryant, continued two weeks; James Cofone vs. Russell C. Duguid, alias, continued one week.

Criminal docket—Case against William E. Bennett, continued one week; Peter Gastrelis, continued two weeks; Ferris Bookataub, continued two weeks.

Civil docket—Frank LaBrak vs. Ninto Lorello, continued two weeks; John J. Dunn vs. Anthony Fiore, peremptory assignment asked by the plaintiff and ordered for next Friday, June 28th; Vaccum Oil Co. vs. Walter T. Killam, continued two weeks; Massachusetts Bonding Co. vs. James R. Lee, continued one week; Wilbur Clark vs. Bessie Card, continued one week; James Nacarrato vs. Maria Uzzi et al, briefs ordered not yet filed and case continued one week.

Angelo M. Derandi, 30, of Westerly, entered a plea of guilty, following his being given a summons by Lieutenant George H. Champlin for failure on June 16th to stop at a red semaphore traffic light at the junction of Broad and Main streets when he was driving an auto over the Pawcatuck river bridge into Westerly.

Chief Brown told the court that the accused cut out of a line of autos waiting for the light. With a word of warning in finding the accused guilty, Judge Williams imposed a fine of $2 and costs amounting to $4.83, which was paid.

Thomas D. Murano, 23, of 57 Tower street, Westerly, was brought before the court by Chief Brown charged with the evasion of the payment of his railroad fare on the N. Y., N. H. & H. R. R. on Feb. 7th last while on a train bound from New Haven to Westerly. The defendant told the court that he had paid his fare from Mount Vernon and in changing at either Stamford or New Haven he had left his ticket which cost $4.63 and that he had not evaded payment intentionally. Chief Brown presented the report of the railroad conductor on the matter, under date of May 23rd, from which it appeared that the accused had received a letter from the railroad auditor to which he had paid no attention and that an agent had visited him in Westerly.

Murano plead "guilty" said he wanted no trial for $2.50 the balance due on railroad claim. Judge Williams said it was a matter of "word of honor" and directed the withdrawal of plea which he would not accept to one of "not guilty." "Anyway," said the respondent, "I was not working at the time and could not pay." Bond was fixed at $100 and the hearing set for next Friday. Later the accused again changed his plea to "guilty" and was so adjudged and a fine of $5 imposed together with the payment of fare and costs.

An autopsy was ordered upon the body of Everett G. Brown, who was instantly killed when his Ford truck, Thursday afternoon, dashed off the Kenyon-Cross Mills state road and turned over, throwing him out. The autopsy was performed under direction of the R. I. department of state police at the Cherenzia and Salemino undertaking rooms. Remonstrance made by the wife, who was convinced that there had been no foul play caused, Attorney General Oscar L. Helegen to rescind his order for an autopsy.

POLICE INVESTIGATE FIRE WHICH DESTROYED BARN

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, June 21— No less than five whistles and one still alarm on Thursday night and Friday morning kept members of the Pawcatuck fire department busy on the West Side. About 7:30 a still alarm sent the firemen to the dump off Stillman avenue at the rear of St. Michael's parochial school grounds. For a period of two hours a stream from a fire hose was played upon the dump by the firemen. At about 10:30 p. m. whistle alarm 62, from the box at Liberty street and Stillman avenue again brought the firemen to this scene by the flames breaking out again and a line of hose was again stretched from a Stillman avenue hydrant.

Following other early morning whistle alarms Pawcatuck police were engaged in investigating a fire that early morning destroyed a barn of Henry Walton at 34 Morgan avenue, Westerly. The fire is believed by investigators to have been of incendiary origin. Damage is said to exceed $1000.

At the annual meeting of the Westerly Savings Fund and Loan association held Thursday evening in the association rooms in the Washington Trust building Walter C. Hiscox was re-elected president of the association.

Other officers for the coming year were chosen as follows: Thomas F Lenihan, vice president; Everett E Whipple, secretary; Howard M. Barber) treasurer; A. R. Stillman, E. Howard Clark, Robert E. ALLEGED KNIFE HURLER'S CASE IS CONTINUED UNTIL NEXT WEDNESDAY

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 21—George Sherburne, proprietor of a store and meat market at 32 Howard street, was presented in the police court this morning charged with assault. The case was continued until next Wednesday and Sherburne furnished bonds of $100 for his arraignment on the latter date. Sherburne was arrested yesterday when he, it is claimed, threw a knife at Louis Sokol, 101 Squire street, the blade imbedding itself in Sokol's leg and inflicting a wound, which required two stitches to close it. Sokol claims that Sherburne hurled the knife at him intentionally, when the men engaged in a heated quarrel. Sherburne denies throwing the knife, claiming that the greasy condition of his hands in handling a piece of meat, caused the weapon to slip from his grasp.

Antone Wojcoski, 16 Clover court, was charged with breach of the peace and was fined $25 and costs. Wojcoski and a neighbor, Joseph Lisa quarrelled close to their homes last night and during the argument, Wojcoski attacked and beat Lisa it is said. The latter made complaint to the police and Wojcoski was arrested.

Hedler, 5 Terrace avenue, Taftville, was charged with speeding on Williams street and Alfred Gladhus, Willow Point, West Mystic, was charged with speeding on the same street. All these cases were continued until tomorrow. Three cases of intoxication were also presented, but the men were discharged.

The committee in charge of the arrangements was composed of the folowing members: Mrs. Arthur Barry, Jr., John Crandall, Mrs. Lincoln D. Daniels, Mrs. Mima Jeffrey and Evelyn Stewart.

Mrs. Thomas Howard of Williams street gave a shower recently in honor of Miss Bessie Walsh who shortly will become the bride of Thomas Hendry of Waterford. Mrs. Edith Daniels, 44, widow of Elmer Daniels, died yesterday afternoon at her home, 498 Bank street. She is survived by four sons, Arthur, Raymond, Elmer and Charles Daniels and by three daughters, Mrs. Albert Hamler and the Misses Gertrude and Evelyn Daniels.

An automobile driven by Edith C. Bradley, 185 Tyler avenue, Eastern Point, struck William Codd, 3, of 118 North Bank street, last night. The youth sustained bruises and contusions only. Miss Bradley was driving through the street and with no warning whatever, the child ran into the street and in front of the auto, the driver having opportunity to reduce the speed of the auto only slightly. Fortunately, the automobile was not being driven at a fast rate of speed.

Claude Trepanier, submarine base, was arrested today charged with driving without a license. He will be presented in the police court tomorrow.

George M. Merritt, 47 Fern street, Hartford, made complaint to the police this afternoon because of the driver of an automobile carrying Connecticut registration, L-2995 and asked that the driver be arrested for evasion of responsibility. Merritt said that his automobile was on Broad street and was hit by the reckless driver, who failed to stop.

Buried in Preston.

The body of Paty Schwartz, former New London resident, who died in Brooklyn, N. Y., was brought to New London this afternoon and was taken to Preston where it was buried in the Hebrew cemetery.

Clinton H. Moten, 715 Dwight street, Springfield, Mass., was arrested this afternoon charged with evasion of responsibility and will be presented in the police court tomorrow. He was released on bonds of $150. Moten, while driving through North Bank street, struck the machine of Arthur Wolensky, which was parked in front of the latter's place of business. Instead of stopping and determining the damage, Moten attempted to speed away. His act was witnessed by Detective Sergeant Nelson Smith, who signaled to Patrolman Thomas Lyden a block away and Moten was arrested. Motsn's auto as well as that of Wolenski's was damaged.

The crowd that came to New London today and witnessed Yale's sweeping victory on the Thames with Harvard, was fully as large as was anticipated, although the greater part of the men and women did not begin arriving in the city until afternoon, this being because of the late hour, 7 o'clock, when the varsity race was rowed. The observation trains were crowded, the New Haven road hauling 24 cars, two more than last year and the Central Vermont railroad hauling 32 cars. The number of yachts that occupied berths in the harbor and along the course over which the crews rowed, was the largest in many years. Not only were the boats more numerous, but there were many large types of palatial craft here.

The New Haven railroad had a large force of apecial agents on duty on the observation trains and at the union station through the day for every available agent was taken from his permanent post all over the New Haven system and ordered to New London for duty.

Every member of the New London police department was pressed into service this afternoon and evening in order to handle the big crowd of visitors, even the supernumerary members of the department being assigned to duty. The large number of visitors were handled well.

Conspicuous on the Thames for the rowing of the three races was the Boston steamer, Governor Dingley, which brought several hundred Harvard graduates into port last night.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

What Happens to Old Tires

Many people wonder why tire dealers take in old tires toward the purchase of new ones, and whether the dealers do this merely as a bait to bring in customers, taking a direct loss of the allowance made, or doing the best they can to break even.

"In our case," states Mr. Goldberg of The Goldberg Tire Co. in explaining his position on tire trade-in, "we do more than break even on the old tires that we take in—in fact, we make a profit.

"Some of the trade-ins are only worth their scrap value. Another group will give some mileage but because of the condition they are in it would not be economical to attempt to repair them. We sell a number of these tires at a very low price to the people who want a tire or two to tide themselves over. The others are sold for their scrap value. The third group includes the tires than can be repaired.

"Many of our customers now realize that when tires are well worn they can bring them in for recapping and after that they are assured of safety and thousands of extra miles.

"From what I have said you can readily see why we can really afford to allow the real value on trade-in tires."

Next Week at Central Church

(Picnic Wednesday if it rains Tuesday). Bell will ring at 9:00 a. m. for picnic. Thursday—7:45 p. m.—Meeting for prayer and conference. Leader, Deacon Young.

Next Week at United Church

All leaders and workers in the daily vacation Bible school are asked to attend a conference to be held in the Central Baptist church at 7:30 o'clock on Monday evening. The program will consist of an address by a speaker from Hartford Seminary and group conferences for teachers' instruction.

Broadway Theatre.

As a defiance to a seeming tradition of the screen, namely that a picture has to have a lot of Roman baths, roguish ladies, rococo sets, rowdy villains and roistering nereids to make it a "clicker" we have "The Rainbow Man," built upon a simple story, plus Eddie Dowling and his singing.

This human and unextravagant theme "got them" in New York, when it premiered there last April, and it didn't take veteran showmen very long to tell George W. Weeks and O. E. Goebel, its producers, that their first talking, singing venture was "in."

The story of a minstrel man and his love for a girl and a small boy, and the boy's love for his dog, is one of the simplest themes which has ever been put into a picture. The fact that it is a smash-hit lies in the sincerity of the portrayals of their roles by Eddie Dowling, Marian Nixon and Frankie Darro, the boy. All have excellent talking voices, and Dowling of course, is a marvel at putting a song across. He has been a Broadway music comedy success for nearly ten years.

The melodies in the production are the kind that reach right into the heart and make it swell with lyric tunefulness. They are "Rainbow Man," "Smile Little Pal" and "Sleepy Valley."

There are many laughs in the play—all of them based on clean, human situations, and there are a few tears. In the end the rainbow comes shining through—not because the hero makes a stack of coin by a lucky break and not because the husband divorces the wife who ran away with his best friend, but because the hero finds true, unalloyed love.

"The Rainbow Man" comes to the Broadway theatre for four days beginning on Sunday next.

Breed Theatre.

Hollywood's busiest inhabitant! Although the newest addition to the film capital's galaxy of stellar players, Nils Asther has justly earned the title.

Since arriving from Sweden a short time ago, Asther has appeared in many prominent screen productions. "Topsy and Eva" the son in "Sorrell and Son," and lead opposite Pola Negri in her latest production, are listed among his cinema achievements.

At present Mr. Asther has the leading masculine role in "The Blue Danube," Leatrice Joy's latest De Mille starring vehicle, which was filmed under the direction of Paul Sloane, for Pathe and which comes to the Breed theatre tomorrow night for three days. Nils portrays an heir to the lord of the manor in this colorful story of peasant life on the banks of the Danube.

Joseph Schildkraut, Seena Owen, May Robson, Albrt Gran and Frank Reicher, complete the supporting cast of prominent screen players. Ralph Block, associate producer for De Mille, supervised the production. Director Sloane and Harry Carr made the adaptation. The picture is said to be packed with drama and thrills.

Palace Theatre.

When George M. Cohan stated, for the press, that dialogue pictures were confined to four walls, he certainly did not include the Fox-Movietone production, "Speakeasy," which is the featured attraction at the Palace theatre. The scenes in this sensational talking picture are staged in the Madison Sq. Garden, New York, at the Belmont Race Track, in subway tunnels, on main streets of the great metropolis and, in fact, all over the big city. More than that, they are not the usual news reel shots because the players are right there acting their parts.

There's no doubt about it. Dialogue applied to certain types of two-reel comedies certainly makes them many times funnier. If you don't believe it, go down to the Palace theatre, where Mack Sennett's latest laugh-maker, "The Old Barn," is on the bill and see—and hear—undisputable evidence.

"The Old Barn," is a comedy-mystery thriller and the sound effects and dialogue really make the picture. Other featurettes included in this wonderful program are a Pathe Sound News, Pathe Sound Revue and Aesop's Fables in sound.

The day of the serpentine vampire is gone. That day of Theda Bara's snakish charms, of Louise Glaum's satanic allurements—gone forever! And in its place the unbridled appeal of the primitive, unmoral type such as presented in the character of Nubi in the First National-Vitaphone all-talking picture, "The Squall," the coming attraction for the Palace theatre tomorrow.

Alexander Korda directed "The Squall," which is a complete Vitaphone production with dialogue. A remarkable cast including Alice Joyce, Myrna Loy, Loretta Young, Richard Tucker, Nicholas Soussanin, Zasu Pitts and others are to be seen. It comes to the Palace theatre after two sensational runs on Broadway, first as a play and later as a First National-Vitaphone picture.

Jack White's new all-talking comedy, "Cold Shivers," has a haunted house for background and atmosphere. It's a 100 per cent. talking picture, with Raymond McKee, Lucille Hutton and a big cast of talented comedians. "Cold Shivers" will be at the Palace theatre beginning tomorrow, with an all sound program of show features including the latest Grantland Rice Sportlight, new and novel events in the field of sport, Pathe Sound News and the wonder reel of the screen, Pathe Sound Revue.

Christian Science Meetings.

Wednesday evening meeting, 7.45; the reading room, 40 Main street, is open every day except Sundays and legal holidays from 3 to 4.30 p. m.

He was always a prominent figure in the religious and political life of the town. He was deacon of the church for many years, and served for a time as judge of probate for this district, also state senator, and was a member of the constitutional convention in 1902.

He is survived by five children, William Collins, Raymond Collins and Jewett Collins of Whitneyville, Hubert Collins of Columbia and Mrs. John Davis of Whitneyville. There are also 17 grandchildren and four great-grandchildren.

Mr. and Mrs. Newton Fallor and three children of Montclair, N. J., accompanied by Mr. Fallor's mother, motored to Columbia Friday where the two Mrs. Fallors and the children will spend July at the lake.

The regular grange meeting was held Wednesday evening at the town hall. On account of the intense heat the attendance was smaller than usual. The lecturer's programme consisted of music and readings.

It may be all right for a girl to hustle around for a husband, but after she gets him he should do the hustling.

SALESMAN RECORDS HIS BEDTIME IDEAS

KANSAS CITY—(AP)—Lyle A. Stephenson, Kansas City insurance agent, uses a telephonic recording device to preserve ideas that come to him after he has gone to bed.

The instrument stands beside his bed. Whenever a bright idea crosses his mind in connection with the art of selling, he tells it to the machine. The following day he may have forgotten, but the machine remembers.

Stephenson adopted this system when he found that too many of his thoughts escaped his bedroom notebook.

10.7 CARS PER MINUTE THROUGH CITY AT PEAK OF TRAVEL FROM RACES

Almost 1,900 automobiles, besides numbers of bicycles, motorcycles and wagons, passed through Shetucket street between 8 and 9:30 o'clock Friday evening on their return from the rowing classic on the Thames river between Yale and Harvard. There were 961 machines by actual count, making an average of 10.6 7-9 cars every ten minutes or an average of 10.6 a minute. This figure takes into count only those cars coming through Shetucket street by way of Laurel Hill avenue and Water street.

An even hundred cars were counted in the first 10 minutes, the peak being reached in the next 10 minutes with 132. For the remaining ten minute periods the count was 124, 110, 124, then a lull, 82, 78, and 101 and 116. There were all kinds of makes, from the rattle trap Ford to the most expensive models, and they were registered from various sections of the country, north, south and middle west. Naturally Connecticut cars predominated with Massachusetts and Rhode Island coming second, with a sprinkling from Maine, Vermont, New Hampshire, Maryland, North Carolina, Virginia, New Jersey, Ohio, Michigan, New York and Florida.

A New York driver in attempting to park his machine about opposite the ten cent store failed to gauge the distance and crashed into the telephone pole at the edge of the sidewalk, crushing in his right front bumper. It was a brand new machine. That was the only mishap during the checkup. A noticeable feature was the smooth way in which the hundreds of machines travelled over the street, there being no tieups, all seemingly knowing where to go and trying to get there as quickly as possible.

A big percentage of the machines were bedecked with blue balloons and feathers or else Yale banners. There were very few machines bearing the Crimson.

Bishop W. F. Oldham, one of the outstanding spiritual leaders of the day, who is now in England will be one of the speakers at the annual Willimantic camp meeting which is to be held from Aug. 17 and 25. Rev. Dr. Robert A. Colpitts and other noted pulpiteers will preach.

Justin Laurie, noted light and grand opera star, who so charmed the crowds last year, will give a recital Aug. 24. It is expected that the large enclosed tabernacle seating nearly 1,000 will be filled as it was last season. Each of these groups will also sing at all services, the Sunday following their recital.

The great surprise in connection with the music is that Justin Laurie, who has been engaged to direct the large camp chorus for the entire week, with his family will reside on the grounds. Mrs. Laurie is a highly accomplished pianist.

Several young preachers on the Norwich district will conduct the hour from 8:15-9 a. m. when the campers meet with God.

Prof. W. C. Chanter of Wesleyan university, will speak each week day at 11 a. m. on Christ's Way of Life.

Dr. Harvey Reeves Calkins, known as the Father of Modern Stewardship, will speak for six mornings on Property and Personality.

The junior assembly, an entirely new feature for the children, will be directed by Rev. J. Scott Pennepacker, for ten years a leader in young people's work in Montana, Chicago and New England, assisted by Mrs. G. W. Potter and Miss Marjorie Stephens. Three groups will meet each day from 9 to 12 a. m., for stories, singing, games and handwork. At 3 p. m. each day, those over 15 years of age will meet as a discussion group on Questions of Youth. Each night, following the evening program, the young people will gather for a Good Night Sing.

The Woman's Missionary societies will have Monday and Tuesday as usual. A tri-county W. C. T. U. gold medal contest is arranged for Wednesday; and sermons for Thursday, Friday and Saturday are planned, by excellent preachers.

In addition to the two great recitals on Saturday, Dr. Leopold A. Niles, superintendent of the Springfield district and a close friend of District Superintendent Genter, will bring warm evangelical messages on Monday, Tuesday, Wednesday and Thursday nights. It is expected that a thrilling moving picture, The Transgressor, will be shown Friday night.

The play hour for each day will be from 4 to 5 p. m. New grounds for quoits and jitney golf have been made. Tennis, volley ball, croquet and archery will be used, so popular last year. Boy Scouts under supervision of the Rev. G. W. Potter will be present the latter part of the week to serve in various ways, especially as guides, and will be at the office, conducted so well last year by Mrs. W. J. Stephens.

YACHT RAN AGROUND NEAR STATE HOSPITAL

A flag-trimmed yacht which was here for the Yale-Harvard regatta and attempted to make passage to this city ran aground about 2:30 Friday afternoon at a point well out in the middle of the Thames river and opposite the Norwich state hospital grounds. Several young men comprised the crew on the craft and were apparently unfamiliar with the river channel so that they got into a shallow spot.

Along about 5:30, when the tide had risen, the boat got afloat and went on its way towards New London so that it was doubtless in time to see the varsity event in the early evening.

HIGHWAY BRIDGE DRAW WAS STUCK 7 HOURS

The extreme heat of Wednesday so expanded the steel work at the Thames river highway bridge, that the draw on the bridge was stuck for 7 hours, from 3 to 10 p. m. At the hottest part of the day the thermometer registered 93 but by night the temperature had dropped enough to allow the steel to contract and the draw could be operated to allow boats to go through the bridge.

Some time ago when the draw became stuck in this way some steel was cut from the ends of the draw in an attempt to prevent further tieups of river traffic due to expansion.

The committee in charge, is planning to have at some future time at the Congregational church, a repetition of the inspirational music by the Salvation Army band of South Manchester, during the hour of worship, some Sunday morning. This band has come to Norwich Town for the past few years once during the summer and is always cordially welcomed by members of this parish.

Mrs. Herbert I. Sanderson of Willimantic was in Norwich Town Thursday, to attend the graduation exercises at Samuel Huntington school, where her sister, Miss Marion Buckley was a member of the 1929 class. The lecture Sunday evening will be on the subject, "Among the Thatched Huts of Rhodesia". When Cecil Rhodes practically gave a whole town to Bishop Hartzell of the Methodist Episcopal church, an important mission field was opened.

The lecture tells of this town. Owing to the daylight time the service will begin one half hour later than usual, beginning at 7.45.

Over 50 colored slides will be shown. The stereopticon machine will be operated by Ralph Smith.

Mr. and Mrs. W. M. Wilson return today (Saturday) to their home in Pittsburgh, Pa., following a few days' visit as guests of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Gilman at Lowthorpe.

How the cooking tests were conducted

Slowly, carefully tasting as they went

WOMEN of the United States will be interested in knowing how the new famous cooking tests were recently conducted in New York by four famous cooking experts.

Vegetable foods were chosen and cooked in many ways, because vegetables are so important to the balanced diet. The experts were experienced in discriminating shades of flavor. Not more than three vegetables were cooked and tested at one time in order that the sense of taste should not be blunted. This explains why the tests had to be carried over such a long period of time.

In every case, vegetables cooked in little water with the addition of a dash of sugar won unanimously.

This, at first, might strike some as surprising, but it must be remembered that it is not the purpose of the small amount of sugar to make the vegetables taste sweet. Sugar is used here as a seasoning, and it is perhaps the greatest seasoning of all. It develops the natural, delicate flavors of the vegetables just as it does of fruits, cereals, meats, gravies and soups.

Encourage variety and you encourage health for every member of your family. Serve at least two cooked vegetables a day in addition to a raw vegetable salad. Serve at least two fruits a day. Serve milk desserts. Then make the balanced diet so attractive that everyone will welcome it. Good food promotes good health. The Sugar Institute.

CATHOLICS OF MEXICO GIVE VENT TO RELIGIOUS FERVOR

Historic Old Church of the Virgin of Guadalupe Was Thronged With Mexicans to Offer Prayers For the Resumption of Religious Services Throughout the Republic—Tens of Thousands Visited the Shrine in Mexico City—There Were No Official Services, as the Priests Have Not Yet Returned to Their Pulpits—Touching Scenes Were Enacted in the Interior of the Edifice.

MEXICO CITY, June 23.— (AP) — Scenes unprecedented in Mexican history were enacted at the historic old church of the Virgin of Guadalupe today as tens of thousands of Mexicans of all caste gathered to offer thanksgiving prayers for the approaching resumption of religious services in churches throughout their republic.

The breaking of dawn found the procession to the country's national shrine, situated in the northeastern part of Mexico City, under way with private cars, busses and street cars discharging thousands hourly. Through the great central doorway of the church, which never have been closed to worshippers, the faithful entered sometimes eight abreast and when finished with their devotions streamed from two side doors to make room for the new arrivals. There was no official ceremonies as priests have not yet returned to the pulpits but rather the proceedings took the form of spontaneous demonstrations with many floral offerings being placed upon the altars.

The population had only short time to prepare for today's pilgrimage as the accord between church and state was reached only Friday afternoon and not generally known throughout the city until Saturday morning.

Touching scenes were enacted in the interior of the great church where for three years the faithful have worshipped without benefit of clergy. The low steady hum of thousands of whispered prayers throughout the central chapel as the worshippers advanced slowly upon their knees down the wide central aisle to bring their candle and entreaty before the shrine of the Virgin.

The thousands of flickering candles cast an arch of light in the lower reaches of the lofty ceiling like fireflies myriad illuminating a hot murky summer night. Tables on either side of the central altar where worshippers deposited their candles were constantly crowded despite the fact that attendants were continually clearing them off.

Several attendants on the altar were kept busy receiving floral offerings and it appeared in no time that the altar, despite its great size, would have to be cleared of the flowers before nightfall in order to receive more bouquets. A half score smaller chapels opening off the central basilica witnessed scenes similar to that in the great chamber but it was in this body, two and a half century ago old shrine that the great body of worshippers offered their entreaties.

Scores of other churches throughout Mexico City were not deserted by their communicants and were visited throughout the day by the faithful who came and departed in endless procession.

President Emilio Portes Gil, who settled the religious question in behalf of the government, accompanied by Secretary of War Amaro, left the capital for San Luis Potosi Saturday night and will be gone several days. When he arrived at his office after announcement of the accord had been made, a tremendous throng of Catholics and admirers had gathered outside the entrance and cheered him vigorously.

Military airplanes dropped printed announcements of the church-state accord over the state of Jalisco and other regions where cristero, rebels are still in arms, at the same time notifying the insurgents that they will be granted safe conduct to their homes if they surrender at once, otherwise they will be relentlessly pursued.

The "cristeros," a name applied to the religious insurgents by the government, have been reduced to scattering bands as a result of vigorous drives by federal troops and disintegration following the fatal wounding in battle of their leader, General Enrique Gorostieta.

Vito Alessio Robles, president of the anti-reelectionist party ,second strongest political organization in Mexico, has issued a statement to the press lauding the settlement of the religious question but asserting that the stand of President Gil was not sufficiently clear. The statement asked directly if the government, "lacking courage to derogate the existing religious laws," had not decided to violate them. The statement asserted emphatically that if the laws were unsatisfactory they should be repealed, not violated, and concluded by asking the Mexican executive to tell what native or foreign influence was the deciding factor in the "compromise."

LONDON, June 23—(AP)—The new parliament, which formally assembles July 2, will have the unusual experience of hearing the king's speech from the throne without any ceremonial state opening. The last such occasion was in 1906, when the conservatives were returned triumphant after the "khaki election" on the South African war issue, and the formal opening was performed by the commissioners on behalf of Queen Victoria.

STOLEN MAIL POUCHES RECOVERED; AN ARREST MADE

ANSONIA, June 23—(AP)—Two United States postoffice inspectors from Boston tonight arrested Esko C. Burgess, Ansonia mail messenger on a charge of having stole a package of money containing $60,000 which was consigned to the Ansonia National bank from the Federal Reserve bank of Boston. Another pouch has not been recovered.

The pouch, with $60,000 which was taken Wednesday, was found in a wooded section in the northeast part of the city. The inspectors said that Burgess would be taken to New Haven tomorrow morning and arraigned before the commissioner in the U. S. court. The money, which was untouched when found was returned to the postoffice.

The second pouch containing mail and in which was a number of checks, has not been found although the two inspectors said tonight that they knew where it was and would get it tomorrow.

Burgess was questioned after the missing pouch was found and taken to police headquarters. When the discovery was made that the consignment which was scheduled to arrive at Ansonia Wednesday, was missing, officials of the Ansonia National bank ordered an investigation. Burgess, who has the contract for carrying the mail to and from the trains, at that time disclaimed knowledge of receiving the package.

The mail messenger after making his delivery from the train had to take another mail pouch with mail matter to the depot to put aboard the train due from Waterbury but while he claimed he made the delivery the baggage master stated that he did not receive it.

The discrepancies of the statements made by Burgess and the railroad employes puzzled officials and the inspectors were sent for. Burgess was grilled Thursday for some time after which he was allowed to continue his duties.

Authorities believe that he delivered three of the four pouches he took off the train to the post office and allowed the one containing the $60,000 to remain in the automobile used in the transfer. While making the trip to hide the money, the authorities are of the opinion that he was unable to get to the depot in time to put the pouch consigned on the train due from Waterbury and took it with him.

Burgess enlisted in the World war and was in the 102nd regiment. He came here several years ago from the south. He has a wife and two children.

Next Sunday Will Be Loyalty Sunday

Anti-Saloon League to Open Educational Campaign For Obedience of All Laws.

WASHINGTON, June 23— (AP) — Educational campaigns on a nation-wide scale in support of President Hoover's plea for obedience to all laws are to be undertaken by the Anti-Saloon league through the churches and by the federal government itself through the public schools.

While stressing observance of all laws, these movements will be designed particularly to inculcate in the minds of young and old alike obedience to the eighteenth amendment and the laws enacted under it.

F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon league, announced that next Sunday, June 30, would be "loyalty Sunday" and that a call had been issued to pastors and Sunday school teachers "to teach and preach the patriotic lessons of loyalty and respect for law" on that day.

The federal government campaign conducted by the prohibition unit under an appropriation authorized by congress, will be much broader in scope and will be launched on June 28 at the meeting of the National Education association at Atlanta, Ga.

This campaign will be under the direction of Miss Anna B. Sutter, chief of the division of education and statistics in the enforcement agency. The object is to place the message about prohibition before the 20,000,000 children and young people in the public schools.

Miss Sutter says the campaign is to be a dignified one without ballyhoo or sensational statement or spectacular methods "because, in the long run, we don't think they are necessary."

In his statement regarding "loyalty Sunday," Mr. McBride said President Hoover's statements regarding law observance would be read in the churches and Sunday schools next Sunday, adding that it was "appropriate that his declarations urging citizens and officials to support the law should be presented in schools and churches in preparation for the celebration of our country's birthday's."

"The liquor traffic continues to be the chief center and source of lawlessness defying laws against itself and directly or indirectly causing countless crimes," Mr. McBride said. "The eighteenth amendment duly adopted by regular process of government, sustained by the courts, supported by congress, and endorsed by decisive majorities of the people is a declaration of war against the liquor traffic.

"So long as prohibition laws are under special attack they must be given special defense and support by every law-abiding citizen and every oath observing official."

SEN. BINGHAM WOULD NOT EXEMPT SOLONS FROM LIBEL

WASHINGTON, June 23—(AP)—Senator Bingham, republican, Connecticut, plans to propose at the next session of congress an amendment to the constitution that would strip from members of congress immunity from prosecution for libel.

In making this announcement today, the senator declared much harm is often done by untrue and ill-founded statements upon the floors of the house and the senate where they are protected by the constitutional clause providing that "any speech or debate in either house shall not be questioned in any other place."

"If the immunity were taken away," he asserted, "many attacks upon private citizens, corporations, religious sects and churches would never be heard."

The liberalization of the senate rules to permit discussion of executive nominations in open session was seen by Senator Bingham as an urgent reason for curbing the remark of his colleagues citing that practically all discussions of nominations will now be held in open session. He said "in order to protect the names and reputations of all citizens of high or low degree and with the view of deterring senators and representatives from irresponsible repetition of reports, rumors, heresay evidence, derogatory statements and aspersions under cover of the immunity heretofore shielding them from consequences of such remarks when made in congress, it is my purpose to endeavor to abolish immunity."

"It is entirely possible," he continued, "at the present time to attack in the open any race of people or their leaders or representatives under the shield of immunity. Our forefathers never intended that this should be. It was their idea that we should consider in open forum such subjects as liberty and the conduct of our government."

The senator would reserve the immunity safeguard to permit criticism of the president, cabinet officers or other government officials or employes, asserting the belief that this was one of the important functions of congress."

SNOOK TO BE ARRAIGNED FOR FIRST DEGREE MURDER

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 23.—(AP)—Dr. James H. Snook, 49, deposed professor of Ohio State university, will be arraigned in common pleas court here tomorrow for the first degree murder of Miss Theora K. Hix, his 25-year old co-ed paramour.

Snook was indicted several days ago after confessing that he slashed the girl's throat after beating her with a hammer during an altercation at a rifle range north of the city.

Dr. Snook's attorneys, John F. Seidel and E. O. Picketts said they will enter a "not guilty" plea in his behalf.

A report of three alienists on Dr. Snook's mental condition is expected Tuesday. The alienists were called by Prosecutor John J. Chester Jr., yesterday to forestall an insanity plea which he feared the defense attorneys might attempt.

The alienists, Dr. William H. Pritchard, superintendent of the Columbus State hospital for the insane and Doctors E. E. Garver and Robert Tarbell, operators of private sanitoriums near Columbus, asked Chester to permit them time to examine statements made to them by Dr. Snook yesterday and the results of blood and reactionary tests they made behind closed doors in the prosecutor's office.

A deed transferring the Snook home in the university district to Mrs. Snook was placed on file here yesterday. The deed was dated March 1928 but no reason for the delay in filing was given.

Honor Medals Given 15 Heroic Boy Scouts

The Scouts Had Risked Their Lives to Save the Lives of Others.

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)—Fifteen Boy Scouts who risked their lives to save the lives of others have been rewarded with gold honor medals, the highest award of the Boy Scouts of America, an announcement today said.

The medals were conferred by the national court of honor, of which Daniel Carter Beard is chairman. Those to whom they were awarded are:

Sidney Hershowitz, Washington, D. C.; Lawrence Bee, Provoo, Utah; William Bennet, Dobbs Ferry, N. Y.; William G. Holford, Jr., Portland, Ore.; Willie Evans Rockwood, Tenn.; Thomas Messader, Brooklyn, N. Y.; Marlow White, Pensacola, Fla.; John Lasoriehak, Sharon, Pa.; Ted Derrick, Rockwood, Tenn.; William David Jordan, Park Ridge, Ill.; J. C. Acuff, Middlesboro, Ky.; William J. Martin, Brookfield, Mo.; James Lucas, Macon, Ga.; A. Wilson Schooley, Mercer, Wis.

In addition a gold honor medal will be sent to the parents of Scoutmaster James Tarwater Wright, on Rockwood, Tenn., who gave his own life to save a number of the boys in his troop from drowning during the Tennessee and Alabama floods in the early spring. Willie Evans, Ted Derrick, and J. C. Acuff also played parts in these recues.

Wright and Acuff were in charge of 20 younger scouts who were camping in a cabin on the shore of White's Creek, near Rockwood, Tenn., when the creek suddenly overflowed in the night and threw the cabin and its occupants into 40 feet of water.

Acuff was awarded a medal for his rescue of one scout, who was injured. Foohouk, the report stated, waded and swam around with the smaller boy on his shoulders. Evans and Derrick each rescued two of their companions.

William J. Martin saved his friend Harry Schoch, 15, from being suffocated, December 29, 1928. The boys were skating and had gone into an empty ice plant. Schoch tripped over an ammonia pipe and broke it. The fumes got into his eyes and lungs. Martin dragged him out into the open air, carried him to a nearby house, and sent for a doctor, in the meantime preventing the pain crazed boy from rubbing his eyes and face. The doctors said this undoubtedly saved Schoch's eyesight. Schoch was badly burned but recovered.

All the other medals were awarded to scouts who had rescued persons from drowning.

The story of 15-year-old Tom Messader of Brooklyn is unique, in that he made two rescues of young boys on successive days from Prospect Park lake, Brooklyn.

Wilson Schooley, 16, a tenderfoot scout of Mercer, Wis., rescued his assistant scoutmaster, who fell through the ice while skating.

MONUMENT UNVEILED ON VERDUN BATTLE FIELD

VERDUN, France, June 23—(AP)—The battle of Verdun influenced the United States to side with France in the World war, Premier Raymond Poincare said today at the unveiling ceremonies of a monument erected to commemorate the final battle that ended assault upon the fortress by the Germans.

"When the United States took her place at our side," the premier said, "the submarine war was without a doubt the principal reason but opinions that had been given of France by combattees in the battle of the Marne, Artois, Somme and Verdun were not without influence on her determination—a determination on which was to depend, in a great part, the outcome of the war."

The premier touched on the recently completed reparations accord in conclusion. "The people of Lorraine," he said, "will be satisfied and will remain in the front ranks of workers for peace provided treaties are respected and our reparations paid under conditions the government outlined and which the experts have just put into precise form."

The monument unveiled today was designed by the sculptor Jean Boucher, who was in the front line trenches when the last German assault broke in front of Souville, July 23, 1916. The monument is erected in a breach made by German shells in an old rampart.

REBELLION BY ALIENS AWAITING DEPORTATION

NEW YORK, June 23—(AP)—The New York Daily News tomorrow will say that police reserves were called today to quell a rebellion of 65 aliens awaiting deportation at Ellis Island.

Although government officials were silent, reports of the disturbance said that the aliens, who had been placed in a detention hall, rushed several armed guards who entered the hall in an attempt to keep them quiet.

While the guards stood in the corner menacing the aliens with guns, Night Superintendant Harvey Snyder attempted to persuade the prisoners to desist. Meanwhile a call was sent for marine police, who helped the guards to restore order.

Several of the aliens were placed in solitary confinement. Among those who took part in the disturbance were several men sent here recently from the west and described as gangsters.

MANIFESTATION BY FORMER FRENCH SERVICE MEN

PARIS, June 23—(AP)—A widely advertised manifestation of former service men against ratification of the Mellon-Berenger debt settlement today melted down to a small gathering. Approximately two thousand out of a million members of the organization got in line and marched to the Arch De Triomphe without important incident.

The police department declared there were only 2300 men in the line of march and of those half were royalists of the L'Action Franciase group.

FORMER NICARAGUAN REBEL LEADER IN HONDURAS

TEGUCICALPA, Honduras, June 22—(AP)—Augustino Sandino, former rebel and outlaw leader in Nicaragua who had waged war against American marine forces for months, arrived here secretly and under military escort on Friday and left soon after for San Salvador, still under guard. The government kept his movements as closely guarded as possible and would not permit the few who learned of his presence to interview Sandino.

ANXIETY FELT FOR SPANISH PLANE ON ATLANTIC FLIGHT

There Has Been No Definite News of the San Maguel—No News Has Been Received From the Four Spanish Aviators Since Last Friday, When They Took Off at Cartagena, Spain, For New York—Portuguese Gunboat is Searching For the Aviators.

(By The Associated Press)

Lack of news of the four Spanish aviators, who left Cartagena, Spain, on Friday for New York last night caused growing fears for their safety.

The Spanish government which had announced receipt of a radio message stating that they had landed on San Miguel Island, the Azores, early Saturday morning had no further word of their movements.

This message was confirmed from no other source. Horta, the communications center of the Azores, was unable to trace them and Ponta Delgada, the chief port of San Miguel, reported no trace of them there.

So far as could be learned the Portuguese gunboat Zaire which had put out from Ponta Delgada yesterday was the only craft engaged in search for the aviators, it had not reported since sailing.

In Madrid the semi official newspaper Naticas Des Lunes received a message from Paris saying that Major Ramon Franco had resumed his flight, but the source of the information and details were lacking. Neither radio stations, air fields or the Aero club of Spain had received any direct word of the airplane for 48 hours. This silence was attributed at Madrid chiefly to lack of communications with the Azores.

Anxiety over the fate of the four men rose rapidly yesterday although some believed that mechanical difficulties might have held them at some smaller island of the Azores with which communication could be had only by boat.

REPORT OF LANDING OF PLANE UNFOUNDED

LONDON, June 23—(AP)—The Madrid bureau of Reuters tonight said that the official report last night of the landing of the Spanish trans-Atlantic plane at San Maguel has proven unfounded. There was no definite news and anxiety was increasing.

"FLARE OF LIGHT" WAS SEEN FROM FREIGHTER

NEW YORK, June 23—(AP)—The Radio Marine corporation tonight reported it had picked up a message from the freighter Buffalo Bridge stating that at 5:40 a. m., Greenwich time, June 21, in latitude 40:04 north, longitude 50:57 west, it had observed a "flare of light bearing six degrees true at an altitude of 10 degrees." The radiogram added the object was "apparently an airplane."

The position given by the freighter Buffalo Bridge is approximately 400 miles south and slightly east of Cape Race, N. S. Observers here knew of no airplane in that vicinity and pointed out that it would have been impossible for the object to have been the plane of the Spanish flyers, as they did not leave Cartagena, Spain, until Friday afternoon.

IMPORTANCE ATTACHED TO GIBSON'S VISIT TO DAWES

LONDON, June 23—(AP)—The high importance of the visit to London tomorrow of Hugh S. Gibson, American ambassador to Belgium, although he is expected to stay only a few days, lies according to authoritative quarters in the evidence it provides that from the American side at least disarmament seeking will not be allowed to merely simmer.

Ever since the famous Forres meeting between Ambassador Charles G. Dawes and Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald curiosity as to the next step in the movement to relieve the naval burden of the English speaking peoples has been lively.

The supposition now is that Mr. Gibson in his talk with General Dawes will have as the chief purpose to determine upon, from the Washington standpoint, the best methods of procedure to set in motion the desired machinery for bringing about the next conference of the powers.

Ever since the failure of the tri-partite conference at Geneva it has been realized here that the failure was more due to inefficient preparation than to any other cause. Anxiety therefore exists that the same mistake shall not be repeated but that once the conference is called nothing shall be wanting that human foresight can provide to promote its success.

The British labor government, new to office, looks naturally to America for help in this matter of effective preparation. It cordially welcomes Ambassador Gibson with his full experience in previous efforts.

The full force of the contention of Ambassador Dawes at the Pilgrims dinner that no attempt should be made to present to other powers concerned a cut and dried British-American agreement for acceptance is admitted in official circles, but at the same time is left the probability that no progress is possible without a previous agreement on general principles between Washington and London.

Hence, although apparently nothing is yet decided about the date of the proposed visit to Premier MacDonald to the United States, it is felt that such a visit would be more helpful than anything else in dissipating any remaining difficulties between the two governments.

HUGE SLIDE OF LAND INTO GAILLARD CUT

BALBOA, Panama Canal Zone, June 23—(AP)—A huge slide into Gaillard cut of about 250,000 cubic feet of material was officially reported today. The movement began on Friday evening from the east bank and spread over almost 700 feet of the canal bottom reducing the depth at the center from 40 to 35 feet.

Two large dredges went to work as soon as the momentum of the movement slowed down. Although it was estimated that a month would be needed to clear away the debris it has not caused any interruption of traffic. The slide occurred just north of the old Culebra slide which in 1926 completely closed the canal.

PLANE WAS DAMAGED IN ATTEMPT AT TAKE-OFF

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 23—(AP)—A telephone message received here late today from Lee Shoenhair announced that he had landed at Du Bois, Pa., because of bad weather and in an attempted takeoff later when the weather cleared, damaged the fuselage of his plane and was slightly injured.

Schoenhair said that he was unable to continue the flight today and was stopping at a Dubois hotel.

The flier took off for Roosevelt field today from Cleveland, Ohio, where he landed last night in his attempt to make a non-stop flight from Los Angeles to New York.

ARRESTED FOR DRUNKEN DRIVING AFTER ACCIDENT

Mr. and Mrs. Emil Lindstrom, 26 Fairview avenue, Hamden, were the other occupants of the machine which after turning over went off an embankment. Mrs. Lindstrom was slightly hurt.

ABANDONS PLAN FOR LONG NON-STOP FLIGHT

LOS ANGELES, June 23—(AP)—Captain Frank Hawks, holder of the east-east transcontinental non-stop record of 18 hours, 21 minutes 10 seconds, said today that he has given up the idea of his plan to hop off from New York Monday in an attempt to lower the record. Instead, Hawks announced he will go to New York by easy stages and attempt to lower both the east-west and west-east records with a round trip flight starting from New York.

Captain Hawks said he hoped to take off from New York next Tuesday or Wednesday, make the trip to Los Angeles dawn to dusk, set his plane down at Metropolitan airport long enough for servicing—three or four hours—and return immediately to New York.

He planned to lease Los Angeles for an eastward trip in easy stages some time tomorrow.

Captain Hawks explained that the New York-Los Angeles and return trip had been his original plan, which he laid aside when it appeared that Lee Shoenhair might reak the west-east record. Schoenhair's flight failed when that flier landed at Cleveland last night.

In the combined west-east and east-west flight, Captain Hawks will endeavor to make the circuit in the total elapsed time of 38 hours, including time spent in Los Angeles servicing his plane for the return trip. In so doing he would better the New York-Los Angeles record of 24 hours, 51 minutes, established last year by Harry Tucker and Captain C. B. D. Collyer, and his Los Angeles-New York mark.

DRESS REHEARSAL FOR OCEAN-TO-OCEAN TRIP

WASHINGTON, June 23—(AP)—Ernest I. Lewis, chairman of the interstate commerce commission, who "pioneered" the first trans-continental automobile route, left Washington tonight to make the preliminary "dress-rehearsal" ocean-to-ocean trip of the rail-and-air line laid out by Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh.

He is due in Columbus, Ohio, tomorrow at 8.15 a. m. There he will transfer to a Transcontinental Air Transport plane which, with stops scheduled at Indianapolis, St. Louis, Kansas City, and Wichita, is due at Weneka, on the Oklahoma-Kansas line, at 6.30 p. m.

The Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe railroad will transport him to Clevis, New Mexico, overnight and then he will take to the air again, arriving at Los Angeles at 5.55 p. m.

YOUNG MAN KILLED IN MOTORCYCLE ACCIDENT

SUFFIELD, June 23—(AP)—Raymond Plancon, 20, was instantly killed late today and his brother, Albert, is not expected to live as a result of their motorcycle colliding with an automobile after it had skidded on a curve of the road. Paul Duval, who was following the Plancon brothers on his motorcycle was unable to avoid striking the wreck and he received a fractured leg. The three were among a party of 25 members of a Springfield Motorcycle club and were on their way home.

Duval and Albert Plancon were taken to the Weston hospital, the latter suffering from a fractured skull and internal injuries. Slight hope is held for his recovery. The machine was owned and operated by Anthony Markot, of Bristol. He was uninjured.

LONDON TO BROADCAST THE "SUANEE RIVER"

LONDON, June 23—(AP)—Just before the chimes of Big Ben sing out London's noon hour on Monday to listeners-in in the United States, an American girl will sing "Suanee River" for her homefolks 3,000 miles away.

Edna Thomas, whose concert and radio programs of Negro spirituals has caused her to be dubbed the "Lady From Louisiana," will take up five minutes of the precious 20 that the British broadcasting corporation devotes to its program sent to America every week.

After her notes of the old southern song have died away, there will be a silence until the clock on the tower of the house of commons rings forth the melancholy peal at noon, closing the program.

SHOT HIS ESTRANGED WIFE, HER SUITOR AND POLICEMAN

LONG BEACH, Cal., June 23.—(AP)—John Keller, 45, who yesterday shot and killed his estranged wife, Ruth Keller, 25, and seriously wounded her alleged suitor and a policeman, upon returning to his home early today was shot by officers and probably fatally wounded. Shortly before daylight the maid returned to the house, in which Officers Holt and Claussen had been secreted. He climbed through a window, into the room in which the policemen were waiting. They ordered him to surrender, and, when he attempted to reach his pistol, shot him.

Keller was reported in a dying condition at the Emergency hospital. George Finck, the suitor who was shot through the chest, was said by surgeons to be in a critical condition, while Policeman J. W. Bullard was reported recovering. He was shot through the abdomen and leg.

Jeller, a pipefitter, unexpectedly appeared at home yesterday after an absence of several months, to discover his wife, mother of the six Keller children, with Winck, also a pipefitter who had been a frequent visitor at the house. Seizing two guns the enraged husband followed Finck out of door and shot him before a group of neighbors in the front yard.

Officer Bullard, who with two newspapermen answered an emergency call telephoned to police headquarters by Mrs. Keller, arrived and attempted to arrest Keller. The man shot his wife, killing her instantly, and fired two bullets into the policeman's body as the latter attempted to draw his gun.

Keller seized the officer's pistol and fled.

DROWNED WITHIN SIGHT OF WIFE AND CHILDREN

EAST HAMPTON, June 23.—(AP)—Within sight of his wife and two children with whom he came here to spend the day, Peter Salvador, aged about 26, of 13 Locust street, Meriden, was drowned late today in the Connecticut river. His body was found an hour later in eight feet of water.

Salvador went swimming off Hurd's Park with hundreds of other bathers. He disappeared from sight as his wife was watching him and despite rescue efforts his body failed to re-appear. Two river men grappled with irons and located the body in a hole in eight feet of water. The body was removed to Meriden.

THREE PERSONS BURNED TO DEATH IN AIRPLANE

CINCINNATI, Ohio, June 23—(AP)—Three persons burned to death in an airplane that crashed at Lancett airport at Harrison, Ohio, near here today. Joe Hite, parachute jumper, of Louisville had made one leap from an altitude of 2,600 feet and had decided to make another from higher up. Homer Nasior, the pilot, and Harold Biddle a passenger.

Spectators said the plane apparently was being maneuvered for a landing when it went into a nose dive. It crashed in a cornfield and turned over, then burst into flames.

Before rescuers could reach it with fire extinguishers the occupants were burned almost beyond recognition.

PRESIDENT HOOVER SPENT QUIET SUNDAY

WASHINGTON, June 23.—(AP)—Secluded in his fishing camp on the banks of the Rapidan river near here, President Hoover spent a quiet Sabbath and planned to depart for the white house with his party shortly after sunrise tomorrow morning so as to be at his desk by the usual time.

Arriving at the camp, which had been completed since his last visit, the president enjoyed his most extended vacation from the capital since his inauguration and tomorrow is expected to return with two prizes: A string of mountain trout caught by himself in the cool streams of his reservation and a rather definite idea of who will compose the federal farm board for the stabilization of agriculture.

Secretary Hyde of the agriculture department was a member of the party and it was believed that he and the president would sift through those names still under consideration and that some if not all of the final selections would be announced early in the week. More than 400 names have been recommended by members of congress, farm organizations and individuals for these positions and much speculation has centered upon the appointments. However, the president has gone forward quietly with his investigations of the various nominees and no definite intimations have been forthcoming of his intentions.

With Mrs. Hoover, Mark Sullivan, a writer, and Lawrence Richey, one of his secretaries, the chief executive found welcome relief from the heat of Washington at his retreat which lies in the foothills of the Blue Ridge mountains.

TO BE EXTRADICTED ON CHARGE OF MURDER

OCCILA, Ga., June 23.—(AP)— With Harry K. Sligh in custody here on a murder warrant, the state today awaited the result of extradition proceedings in Daytona Beach, Fla., against Aubrey Carlyl Hoover, 24, also held on a murder charge, before proceeding further toward solution of the mysterious disappearance more than two years ago of Harry Loving of Fitzgerald, Ga., on a warrant charging murder of Loving and Hoover was arrested in Daytona Beach on the same charge. Loving, according to the authorities, has not been seen since a night in 1926 when he was with Hoover in Sligh's home here. The home burned that night and Sligh disappeared, being located several months later in California. Meanwhile, it is alleged, claim was made for the $50,000 double indemnity policy on Sligh's life, but it was not paid.

A body found in the ruins of the house was identified as that of Sligh and buried in Seneca, S. C. After Sligh was found alive he returned here and was tried for arson, being acquitted last November.

According to Solicitor General Robert S. Foy, the body in Seneca will soon be disinterred in belief it is that of Loving.

OBSTRUCTIONISTS WILL ATTACK THE TARIFF BILL

WASHINGTON, June 23—(AP)—Another democratic and republican independent assault was directed at the house tariff bill today as four senate finance sub-committees laid plans to continue hearings tomorrow on the measure.

Senator Brookhart, republican, Iowa, who will help lead the drive of the republican-independent group to incorporate the controversial export debenture plan in the bill after it comes before the senate August 19, declared in a statement that an analysis of the measure disclosed little hope of the farmer obtaining relief through the tariff.

"Agriculture for the ninety-ninth time," said a statement by Representative Hull, of Tennessee, former chairman of the democratic national committee, "is to be hoodwinked and humbugged by prolific promises of effective tariffs that are a fraud and a swindle, save as to certain minor specialties."

Both Hull and Brookhart agreed that few agricultural tariffs are effective.

22 CONVALESCENT NUNS RESCUED BY FIREMEN

MONTREAL, Que., June 23—(AP)—Twenty-two convalescent nuns were carried through smoke to safety tonight when lightning struck and set fire to the convent of the Sacred Heart at Sault au Recollet. Two members of the Montreal fire brigade were overcome and sent to a hospital.

The building was valued at $1,000,000. One hundred feet of the roof of the east wing and a small central pinnacle collapsed and part of the walls became so weakened that firemen fighting the blaze were forced to remove their ladders.

The convent was struck during a heavy storm.

ST. JEAN DE BAPTISTE DAY OBSERVED AT ST. MARY'S

WILLIMANTIC, June 23—St. Jean de Baptiste day was celebrated here today with a solemn high mass at St. Mary's church at 10:30 in the forenoon and an entertainment and play in the afternoon and evening. Members of the St. Jean de Baptiste society attended the mass in a body, wearing the regalia of the organization.

The afternoon entertainment which was for children, was sponsored by the choir boys of the church and was held in St. Mary's hall. This event, which was largely attended, was in charge of Choir Director Joseph F. Gaudreau. Several vaudeville acts designed especially for the amusement of children were staged. The proceeds are to be for the benefit of the school.

Nearly 400 people attended the four-act comedy, Le Petit Canadian, which was presented at St. Mary's hall this evening by the Troupe Nationale of Woonsocket, R. I. The production was under local auspices for the benefit of a fund for improvements to St. Mary's school yard. The Troupe Nationale, which has made several previous successful appearances in the city, scored again in most approving manner in the delightful comedy.

The Gideon Christian Commercial Travelers' association held a Bible dedication at St. Paul's Episcopal church this afternoon at 2 o'clock with a public service. Bibles were dedicated for use in the guest rooms of the two local hotels, the Nathan Hale and Hotel Hooker, several of the resident clergymen assisting Rev. F. C. Williams, rector, in carrying out the unique service. The address of the afternoon was delivered by Samuel W. Raymond of the Hartford Bible House, his subject being, The One Book. Arrangements for the services were made by Francis H. Peabody of Hartford, president of the state organization of Gideons. The exercises opened with spiritual songs in which local vocalists took part.

What for a time looked like a stolen car mystery turned to be nothing more than an unfortunate motorists run out of gasoline Saturday. About 9 o'clock in the morning a young man brought an Oakland touring car to a stop on Columbia avenue, near the Mulligan gravel and sand pit. He got out of the car and walked toward this city. At 2:30 o'clock in the afternoon he had not returned and persons who had seen him leave the machine notified the police. Officer Arthur Hurley went to the scene and searched the machine but failed to find any registration certificate or any other mark of positive identification. The car bore the Massachusetts registry number, 562-146. Working on the theory that the car had been stolen the police communicated with the Massachusetts authorities and succeeded in establishing the fact that the car came from Springfield. During the evening the young man was seen to return to the machine carrying a container of gasoline which he emptied into the tank and then drove away. The police cannot declare a machine as abandoned on the highway until after the expiration of 24 hours, thus accounting for the fact that the car was left on Columbia avenue.

The annual memorial exercises of Natchaug lodge, No. 22, Knights of Pythias was held in Odd Fellows' hall this afternoon at 2:30 o'clock. The oration was delivered by Captain Frank P. Fenton. Gates and Ernest Higgins and Chancellor Philip Bachert.

JEWETT CITY

REV. J. J. M'CABE OBSERVES HIS 25TH ANNIVERSARY

(Special to The Bulletin)

JEWETT CITY, June 23—The 25th anniversary of Rev. John J. McCabe's ordination to the priesthood was commemorated on Sunday by the celebration of a solemn high mass in St. Mary's church. The officiating priests were Rev. J. J. McCabe, celebrant; Rev. S. A. Iclek, deacon; Rev. Francis P. Keough, chancellor of the diocese. Seated in the sanctuary were Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May of Norwich, Rev. W. C. Fitzsimons, New London, Rev. Dr. F. J. McCormick of the Catholic university, Washington, D. C., and Rev. William Keefe, Norwich.

Rt. Rev. Msgr. M. H. May of St. Patrick's church, Norwich, delivered the eloquent sermon on Eternal Priesthood, and paid a glowing tribute of friendship to Father McCabe. The musical program was very elaborate and beautifully rendered under the direction of the chorister and organist, James Olson. The soloists were Mrs. Noel Garand, Mrs. Aglae Sarazin and William McGovern. The program included:

Organ numbers, Adagio (Godard); Festival Overture (Lemairge); violin and organ Kamennoi Ostrow, Op 10, No 23 (Rubinstein); violin, Peter Cooper; organ, James Olsen; Asperges Me, Choir; Kyrie Mass in D (Peters); Gloria (Peters); Credo Mass in F (Conconi); offertory, O Salutaris, duet, Mrs. Noel Garand and Mrs. Aglae Sarazin; Sanctus (Conconi); Benedictus (C. Gounod); Agnus Dei (Conconi; benediction, O Salutaris (Blum); Tantum Ergo (Blum); Divine Praises (Elliott); Te Deum, plain chant. The service concluded with solemn benediction and the blessed sacrament.

Rev. Father McCabe came to Jewett City first in 1906, remaining two years as curate under Rev. J. H. Fitzsmaurice, and later as pastor of the parish in 1914, being assigned here originally to minister to the needs of the Polish residents, their number having been more than doubled during his pastorate.

Father McCabe was born in New Britain in 1879, the son of John and Rose Fitzsimons McCabe. His elementary education was received in St. Mary's school in that city. His collegiate studies were pursued in Holy Cross in Worcester. His philosophical studies were taken in St. Cyril and Methodius seminary, (Polish seminary), in Detroit, Mich., and his theological course was in the University of Lwow (Leopol) Poland. He was ordained in Kochowina, Poland, by the Most Reverend Archbishop Joseph Weber, who was auxiliary bishop of Lwow. In 1910 he received the honorary degree of master of arts from his alma mater, Holy Cross.

Father McCabe has served ourselves in New Milford, Thompsonville, New London and Jewett City, before coming here fifteen years ago. When the cornerstone of the new Catholic church was laid, he preached the sermon in Polish and in the years that have followed, has liquidated the parish debt on the church. He acquired the valuable Driscoll property adjacent to the church and began the collecting of the funds for a new parochial school. In 1928 the work of the erection of the new school of twelve rooms and convent was begun, and has been completed, dedicated, and occupied by the pupils and sisters. The new home for the sisters is a commodious building of colonial type, and with thirty rooms will accommodate all future needs. The people of the parish, under his leadership showed remarkable generosity and appreciation of the labors of the sisters by refurnishing the entire convent and chapel. Plans are being made for the erecting of an assembly hall in connection with the school.

During the World war and in every patriotic occasion since, Father McCabe has always been one of the leaders in the community. In his years here he has manifested a spirit of kindliness and friendship in his parish which is unique, as it is composed of several nationalities, and has been always harmonious. He has many friends outside his parish, who are congratulating him on his successful completion of 25 years in the priesthood.

St. John's Day Service.

The regular attendance at the First Congregational church in Pachaug, Sunday morning, was supplemented by the St. John's day visitation of Mt. Vernon lodge of Masons from Jewett City. The representation included Clarence E. Whitaker, master, and 42 members of the craft. Seldom has the local lodge been accorded a more cordial welcome or been privileged to listen to a finer address than that given by the pastor, Rev. Harold L. Arnold, a member of the order.

As introductory to the sermon the speaker said that this service was being held in an edifice erected to God and dedicated to him in the year 1836. As the visiting fraternity stood in formation on the church green, in the shadow of the great historic oaks, the ancient bell was tolled in their honor. Daniel L. Phillips' history declares that this bell was hung in 1838. The terms of this gift to the church were that it should be rung for all church services.

On the death of a parishioner the sexton rang the bell to call the attention of the parish, then after an interval one stroke of the bell told the listeners that the deceased was a male and two strokes a female. After another interval the age of the departed was tolled, one stroke for each year.

From the subject, "Temples of God", the speaker told the story of the building of King Solomon's temple, with many lessons of benefit and profit, drawn from its spacious and grand specifications. "Know ye not" said he, "that ye are the temples of God, and that the spirit dwelleth in you". The musical service was admirably presented by a male quartette. Messrs. A. J. Reynolds, W. B. Montgomery, Frank Palmer and Harold F. Geer. The beautiful floral decorations included roses, peonies, sweet william, spirea, pansies and a beautiful bouquet of Canterbury bells.

Each of the visitors wore an American beauty rose a gift from the arbors of W. C. Harrison, junior deacon of Mt. Vernon.

Roman Jarosz, with an average of 87.1 per cent, was given the medal. The Lincoln medal was given for a number of years to that member of the graduating class who wrote the best essay on Abraham Lincoln. This year the Illinois Watch company discontinued the award but Miss Violette, head of the English department, felt the award should not lapse, and offered a medal to take its place. Three judges, Miss Julia Brazee of Middletown high school, Miss Ada Seabury of New York city schools and Miss Abbie Keith of Putnam high school decided Norma Day as the winner. DANIELSON

MANY ARRESTS MADE OVER THE WEEK END

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 23.—There will be a small grist of business for the town courts of Killingly and Plainfield Monday morning, when cases accumulated over the week end will be heard. Joseph Russell of West Warwick, R. I., will appear in the local court to answer to a charge of reckless driving. Russell was arrested near the barracks on North Main street last night while state officers were checking passing cars on headlights and equipment. It was found that he had six persons in a Ford coupe, and that fact that such a number of persons in such a small machine made it difficult for him to operate with required efficiency led to his being ordered into court on the charge mentioned.

Another arrest while the checking was going on was that of Russell Ide of Academy street. He will be charged with operating a car while under the influence of an intoxicant. He was confined at the barracks over night.

Adelard Beaupre, 269 School street, was arrested near Killingly Center and will be charged with intoxication and breach of the peace. Beaupre was passing a bottle about containing something to drink and making a disturbance at the time of his arrest.

At Moosup pond last night George Berger, Adolph E. LaFlamme, Marshal Hinckley, Joseph Burton and Albert Melen, all of the town of Plainfield, were placed under arrest by Sergeant G. L. Gardner and State Officer Donald J. Geddes of the local barracks. Later they were released under bonds of $25 each for appearance in the Plainfield town court on Monday. The group were out in a boat when Deputy Game Warden C. L. Colburn of Canterbury called to them to come in for inspection, as to having fish. This they refused to do and after directing some rather torrid language at the official continued to remain out on the water. Deputy Colburn then sent in a call for the state officers.

State Officer John Murphy made a trip to Olneyville Saturday to bring back to the Children's home in Putnam three boys that ran away from the institution Saturday. The boys—James Evergates, Walter Kench and Everett Greene—were picked up by the police at Olneyville.

At the annual meeting of the Westfield Cemetery association held last evening Kent A. Darbie was elected president, Sidney H. Perry, vice president; Nathan D. Prince, treasurer; Miss Myra M. Codding, assistant treasurer, and Attorney A. G. Bill, secretary. A. F. Wood, Luther Pilling and George E. Guild were elected directors. The meeting voted to purchase from James Danielson a lot at the northwest corner of the south section of the cemetery at North and Maple streets. This lot adjoins the south section of the cemetery and will be developed as time goes on. Reports showed the association's trust funds to be increasing.

Action was taken by the board of directors of the Windham County National bank at a meeting on Saturday to increase the rate of dividend to be paid its savings department depositors. It is announced by the bank that the dividend to be paid December 1st, will be at the rate of 5 per cent per annum. This is the fourth time this bank has increased the dividend to the basis of 5 per cent per annum. The Windham County National bank was incorporated in 1822, and is now in the 107th year of continuous business.

WEDDING

Behrens-Passmore

There were about 250 in attendance at the wedding of Mrs. Rose Passmore and William Behrens on the spacious lawn at the Mason homestead in East Killingly Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock. Rev. Chester J. Armstrong of the Danielson Baptist church performed the ceremony, the bridal couple standing under an arch and in a veritable setting of roses. The attendants were Miss Christina Major, and Arthur Elfgren. Sayles' orchestra played during the ceremony. The bride was gowned in blue and wore a hat to match. Her bouquet was of American Beauty roses. The bridesmaid wore a peach colored gown and carried pale pink roses. The bride was given in marriage by W. E. Mason of Providence, owner of the Mason homestead, where Mr. Behrens has been manager of the property for a long term of years. Delicious refreshments were served by a Providence caterer. The bride received a grat variety and a great number of gifts. Guests at the wedding represented a goodly percentage of the residents of East Killingly. Motion pictures of the wedding were taken by Louis M. Ream, formerly of Thompson, and son-in-law of Mr. Mason.

In the interest of their own safety persons are urged, at the suggestion of officials here, to use the safety lanes in crossing through the heavy traffic of Main street. It is noted that an increasing number of persons cross the street at any point and that many making diagonal crossing, increasing the danger of being run down by a car.

Monday morning the church vacation school will hold its first session, with one group at the Baptist church, another at the Westfield Congregational church and another at the Methodist Episcopal church. The groups are the beginnings, primary and junior. Sessions of the school will continue until July 12, making a period of three weeks. The course will provide not only valuable instruction, but also plenty of fun for the little people.

This evening the union service under the auspices of the Danieson Federation of churches was held at the eWstfield Congregational church. Rev. Albert Abbott of the Methodist Episcopal church was the preacher. These union services are to continue on Sunday evenings through July and August.

Old Killingly pond was the Mecca today for several hundred people from Danielson and other places in this vicinity. Bathing was the attraction for a large number of the visitors there, while others went to be at their summer cottages or as guests of those that have cottages at the pretty resort.

There is no prospect, it was said today, of construction of a state highway from the state line at East Killingly to Dayville Four corners and from near Goodyear to connect up with the Willimantic-Putnam highway in Pomfret being undertaken this year. The route was surveyed several years ago and when built will link up with one to be built from North Scituate through North Foster by the state of Rhode Island to the Rhode Island Connecticut line. This is an old Providence-Hartford stage coach route.

Mrs. Elodie Normandin of Broad street is to leave the early part of the week to visit with relatives in Montreal.

Raymond A. Preston of New York is visiting with his parents, Town Clerk and Mrs. Frank T. Preston.

Announcement is made of the engagement of Miss Sadie Jennie Mc-

PUTNAM

POLICE INVESTIGATING CAUSE OF MYSTERIOUS FIRE

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 23—Officers of Danielson state police barracks and police of Southbridge, Mass., have commenced an investigation of the mysterious fire which destroyed the farm house in North Woodstock last Thursday morning, known as the Ide place. While nothing as yet has been unearthed in the charred ruins of the country home to ascertain that the fire was caused by incendiarism, police of Southbridge have an inkling that a fire "bug" is active in the summer colony in North Woodstock.

The Ide place is owned by Mary Livernois of Southbridge and has been vacant for some months. On last Thursday morning a passerby observed columns of smoke pouring from windows in the two story dwelling house. He investigated but before help could be summoned the structure was enveloped in flames and levelled to the ground in less than an hour. In reporting the incident to the police in Southbridge, the discoverer said that he had seen oiled soaked papers on the kitchen floor of the house, which ignited and burned rapidly once fire had touched them. He reported that he had seen no one in the vicinity at the time, but felt certain the destruction of the house by fire was the result of carefully executed plans of a fire "bug."

The burning of the Ide farm house is the second mysterious fire in North Woodstock within a fortnight. The first was the blaze that destroyed the Stackpole place two weeks ago, the cause of which has not as yet been determined but is said to have been incendiary.

After an investigation Saturday police were reticent in revealing the preliminary developments regarding the case.

Three weddings of Putnam couples will take place Monday morning in St. Mary's church, according to announcements made at all the masses today. The first ceremony will be solemnized at 6.30 o'clock, followed by a second marriage at eight o'clock and a third at 9.

Fred Cournoyer of Franklin, Mass., injured Friday morning near East Thompson when a boom fell from a railroad wrecking crane and struck him in the back, was reported as somewhat improved by the authorities at the Day Kimball hospital today. Cournoyer sustained a compound fracture of the left leg, a fracture of the right limb, a fracture of the jaw and severe body bruises. Bones in his left leg were so badly splintered that amputation of the leg was necessary to save his life.

A Gideon rally and Bible dedication was held Sunday evening at the Congregational church together with a union service in which all members of the Protestant clergy of the city were represented. The occasion was the placing of 65 bibles in the rooms of the Putnam inn, an act sponsored by the Gideons, an organization of travelling men, one of its purposes being to place copies of the bible in every guest room of hotels, the world over.

The feature of the service was the address, "The One Book" by Samuel W. Raymond of Hartford, secretary of the Connecticut Bible society. The placing of the bibles in the Putnam inn and the arrangement of the rally was arranged by Francis H. Peabody of Hartford, president of the Connecticut Gideons and assistant field secretary of the Gideons for New England. The service was well attended.

The class of 1929 Putnam high school entered into the annals of the school and joined the alumni Friday evening at the close of the programme of the senior reception—the finale of commencement. The social event was marked by a beautiful parade of marching couples about the large company drill shed at the state armory. Class President Philip Arnold accompanied by Miss Dorothy Woodis, class vice president led the march in which fifty couples participated. The procession was featured by a colorful array of gorgeous gowns worn by the girls of the school, while their boy escorts lended a harmonizing touch; each one uniformily attired in white flannel trousers and blue coats. Music for the dancing was furnished by a well known dance team of musicians from Rockville.

UNABLE TO LOCATE MISSING HOTEL CLERK

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 23—The whereabouts of Gordon Cox, hotel clerk at the Putnam inn, who disappeared about a week ago with the sum of $400, part of which was the property of Earl C. Rogers proprietor of the inn and the balance constituted a month's sale of bus tickets, has not been discovered yet according to police today. The clerk was on duty Friday evening June 14, working a midnight until morning trick. Shortly before midnight he was driven to Webster by a local taxi driver and from there took a cab to Worcester, where he was last seen. The following morning the cash shortage was discovered by the relieving clerk and was at once reported to the management. It was surmised that Cox had departed immediately after balancing receipts for the day.

It has been stated that police, in their efforts to track down Cox have concentrated their efforts upon a Webster woman in whom the hotel clerk is alleged to have been interested, but this was discouraged with a report today from the authorities that more recently appearing clues to Cox's whereabouts have been unearthed and are now being tracked down.

The New London-Worcester morning train carrying mails between these two points chugged into Putnam Saturday morning about one hour and a half late. The delay was in no way the fault of the train crew, but was attributed to a "split" rail encountered in the vicinity of Jewett City. Mail and newspapers were late in arriving at destination points all along the line. Local railroad authorities said this morning, Saturday's detention at Jewett City broke a long record for punctuality for the New London-Worcester mail train.

The third degree of the order was conferred upon a large class of candidates this afternoon by the Cargill council, Knights of Columbus. The fraternal gathering took place in St. John's hall on Providence street and was attended by nearly three hundred members of the order, many of whom came from surrounding towns.

Robert Bruce, son of Mr. and Mrs. Edward S. Bruce of Walnut street, was among the large class of students to be graduated from Northeastern university in Boston at commencement exercises which closed Saturday. Mr. Bruce graduated in the engineering course and will enter the employ of City Engineer George W. Perry, upon his return to Putnam.

Among the girls of the class of '29, Putnam high school, who are to enter hospital training schools to prepare for degrees of registered nurses are Miss Ann McDonnell of Pomfret who will study at St. Francis' hospital in Hartford; Miss Sadie Simon, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. Simon of School street who will train at the Beth Israel hospital in New York city; and Miss Doris Smith of Putnam who will prepare at a New York hospital.

Kayren H. Cotter, past exalted ruler of the Putnam Lodge of Elks, No. 874, and delegate to the Grand lodge convention to be held in Los Angeles early in July, left for the Pacific coast city Sunday evening. He will be gone about a month.

Funeral services for Isaac Champeau, who died following a short illness Thursday in Hartford, were held Saturday morning at 9 o'clock in St. Mary's church. A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated. The church service was largely attended by Putnam business men. Burial was in the family lot in St. Mary's cemetery. Rev. Ernest J. Boileau, curate at St. Mary's, officiated at the committal service at the cemetery.

Rev. U. O. Bellerose, pastor of St. Mary's church returned to Putnam, Saturday evening, after a brief vacation.

Thomas and Henry Arnold, sons of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Arnold of Pomfret returned to Hartford Sunday following a week end visit with their parents.

A taxi cab owned by the Providence street taxi and driven by Wilfred Auger was in collision with a Chevrolet sedan owned and operated by Searess Matti of Southbridge at noon today. The mishap occurred on Church street in front of the Perkins-Strongman mills. Both drivers attempted to avoid the accident which was inevitable because of two cars parked opposite each other on the highway. The Southbridge car was badly damaged but neither the driver nor the occupants were injured as the result of the crash. Auger escaped personal injuries and his car received only a slight damage. Captain of Police Jarvis and Officer Benoni Durand checked up the accident but made no arrests.

EIGHT HURT IN CRASH AT LITTLE REST HILL

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 23.—Eight persons were injured, some of them seriously enough to require hospital treatment, when two cars operated by Abraham Diamond of Danielson, and George W. Getshell of Salem, Mass., chauffeur for Mrs. F. Elizabeth Babbige of 12 Fairfield street, Salem, were in collision this afternoon at the foot of Little Rest hill on the Providence road. Mr. Diamond received a very bad cut in the scalp. His mother, Mrs. Jennie Goodman, was cut about the face, his half sister, Florence Goodman, aged 5, suffered a broken leg, and his sister, Miss Sarah Diamond, had scalp wounds. All were taken to the Day Kimball hospital at Putnam.

In the Babbige car Mrs. Babbige suffered an injury to her right knee, Mrs. Harry Peterson suffered bruises and Vincent Peterson had a minor injury on his right knee. Also riding in the car was Mrs. Frank Wetmore also of Salem, who had injuries to her right arm and right leg.

The accident was caused by the break of the knuckle on the steering arm of the Diamond car. Mr. Diamond tried to pull the car to the right of the road but it swung in the opposite direction causing the crash, which was investigated by State Officer Donald J. Geddes. The Diamond car was almost totally wrecked and the Babbige car, a Cadillac sedan, sustained considerable damage to the left front side.

Three cars were in an accident on lower Dyer street this morning and all were damaged but there were no personal injuries. A car, owned by Herbert Socquet of Dyer street, was parked on the right hand side of the road, and Mr. Socquet just about to drive away when a machine owned by Francis M. Keenedy of Moosup, going south, and another owned by Malcolm M. Hutchinson of Plainfield travelling north, came along. When the three cars were abreast, the Hutchinson car in the center, there was a crash that damaged all three machines and tore the left front wheel off the Hutchinson roadster. The cars were in such a tangle that they completely blocked the highway and within a few minutes, from 150 to 200 cars were tied up, either side of the wreck. State Officer Royal Scranton, who checked the accident, was prompt to order a wrecker, to have the road cleared for traffic.

ENTERTAINING OUR VISITORS.

Two million automobile tourists mean a considerable number. That is the estimate of the number that will come into New England this summer. That means that if they do come they must be entertained in some way. This entertainment may be at private homes, hotels, resorts, but while they are here, in one way and another, they are going to spend considerable able sums of money. The idea is not only to see that they have a good time while they are here but to entertain them in such a way that they will want to come again and that they will act as advertising agents for Connecticut and New England.

New England is always the objective point of a large number of tourists. This year it is expected that the number will be larger because of the advertising that has been done by the various states separately and collectively. Such advertising ought to be good for more than the present summer and it will be if the effort is continued.

Each state and each section of a state should be anxious to set forth the particular advantages which it has to offer. There are the good roads, there are the natural attractions, the scenery, the shore resorts, the ponds, the lakes, the mountains, the delightful country. There are also the unusual features, the points of historical interest, the parks and the freaks of nature and any section that isn't setting these forth and keeping them to the front is neglecting its opportunity.

Furthermore there is to be remembered the fact that in the entertaining of visitors it is well to keep something else in mind than their pocketbooks. The visitors expect to pay their way, and one estimate has it that the 2,000,000 expected visitors will spend somewhere in the neighborhood of $150,000,000 in New England this summer, and they will expect fair treatment. They will ask a countless number of questions which should be answered as carefully as possible and politely. They will look for courteous treatment as they go through cities where they are necessarily strangers and cannot be expected to be in touch with regulations and rules. They will welcome that kind of treatment which carries with it an invitation to come again whether it is verbally extended or not. It is in fact the time for the full display of New England hospitality. Make them feel at home.

GETTING REACTIONS.

While the success of the further reduction in naval armament doesn't rest upon Japan, it is nevertheless pleasing to note that that country is favorably inclined and it is ready to lend its cooperation in the movement which has been set in motion by the discussions between this country and Great Britain through Ambassador Dawes and Prime Minister MacDonald.

Japan is a party to the Washington agreement. That country has recognized the benefits attached to that understanding. It knows that it has saved money because of it and it has made it evident at other times that it would like to see the process continued to include other ships. Thus the idea that has been discussed and which it is hoped can be put into effect strikes it most favorably. Without any definite plan being thus far set forth it is an enthusiastic supporter.

Japan is as desirous as other countries to save money. Perhaps it is a bit more anxious than some and it realizes that there is no better way in which to do it than by stopping the huge amount that is going into naval vessels. The cost of naval construction has always been large, but it is now at its peak. Any kind of a vessel today means the appropriation of a large sum and if it is going to be a case of keeping up with the leader the outlay will be tremendous and steady. This has been fully demonstrated from the trial given the Washington agreement. Though capital ships are involved there it also shows what might be accomplished if other classes were similarly restricted.

It isn't probable that any agreement would be made that would involve only three nations. There must be consideration given to the others, and that would come at the expected conference if it doesn't come before. There are France and Italy that have always had an influence upon the course that the British take. It will be interesting to note how they feel. It will be important to see what reaction comes from those countries, for all countries are wanted in the agreement and not just two or three.

PENALIZING STUDENTS.

Possibly those who took part in the disturbance in Providence precipitated by students of Brown university were surprised at the action of the faculty in dealing with them, and it may have come as an unexpected development to the whole undergraduate body, but there can be no question but what it is a disciplinary move that was justified and made necessary by the circumstances.

When any group of students undertakes to control conditions in a city and insists upon having its own way regardless of law and order it must be expected there will be suppression. There can be no halfway measures about it and the college authorities made that clear when 25 of the participants were dropped.

It was a celebration by the freshmen and they had gained the idea that they owned Providence. Somehow they apparently thought that being students they could do as they pleased. It is a fact that they are tolerated in their celebrations to a broad degree and would have been in the freshman parade three weeks ago but they went far over the line. It was a case where the university could not be expected to plead in their behalf. The institution made no effort to do so. It recognized that it was time for it to act. It made an inquiry, obtained such facts as it could and came to the conclusion that 25 undergraduates ought to get their higher education elsewhere and communicated its decision to them and to the student body, with the additional fact that the entire freshman class will be under strict discipline next year.

Should such an affair be overlooked by the university it would be taken as meaning that there could be repetitions without any punishment. It would be possible to take the view that the institution tolerated it, believed that the students could do no wrong and therefore encouraged them in such clashes with the police. Such would not be in accord with the institution's policies, and its action in dismissing the students not only makes that clear but serves notice upon the others that they can expect the same treatment if they are so thoughtless as to have no respect for law and order in the future.

A COMMON FIGHT.

There are localities where the gypsy moth is raising havoc with the trees. This means that unless there is a determined effort to check them in their raids on the foliage trees will be devastated and many of them killed. It will also mean that they will lay their eggs and the crop next year will be greater than ever. It is because of the neglect of such conditions that such a pest gets a start and sweeps a state in a surprisingly short space of time.

Where such infestations are disclosed there is the place for action. Such work is efficiently directed by department of agriculture officials. They understand the importance of early opposition and through the spraying of the trees are able to place an effective check upon them. But in the fight of the gypsy moth like the fight against the tent caterpillar the more who participate the greater the benefit accomplished and the shorter the fight.

Those who are directly concerned in checking the progress of the gypsy moths, or those who may be threatened with the effects of their work, should be anxious to lend a helping hand in the fight. It is no time to sit idly by and sing that old refrain, "Let George Do It". Such an attitude is most discouraging to those who are engaged in the work of eradication. It is the policy that lends comfort and encouragement to the moths and makes the work of resistance harder and longer.

It makes little difference what the pest is, the more that enlist in the war upon it the harder the fight and the better is the assurance for an early and successful outcome. Those who undertake the work of killing the caterpillars on their own land are providing personal protection and furnishing a certain amount of protection to their neighbors. All should enlist in the common fight.

EASY WITH FRANCE.

Even though this country is desirous of effecting a war debt settlement with France, it is not disposed to make collections that will be disturbing to the French government.

On the first of August there will be due this country from France the sum of $400,000,000 for war supplies which this country had on hand at the conclusion of the war and which were purchased by France. On this sum France has been paying interest, but it is set forth in the negotiations for the funding of the war debt that this might be included therewith and paid over a long term of years.

France it is understood has the money with which to settle the bill, but it is not desirous of parting with such a large sum at one time. There would have been no way out of it when the first of August came had congress not taken action before its recent adjournment for a recess and provided for an extension of nine months.

This action was taken in order to give France a long time in which to decide what it is going to do in regard to the Mellon-Berenger settlement which it has not as yet ratified. France while withholding approval has nevertheless been making payments in accord with its terms. The $400,000,000 which it has could be employed for debt adjustment under the agreement if it so desired but that will be possible only if it ratifies the agreement if it so desired, but that that the French government will take action within the coming months and complete the understanding between the nations regarding the war debt. It has been declared by Premier Poincare that he believes that better terms could have been obtained at the time the agreement was reached, though he doesn't go into details in regard to it, but he has further said that there is no chance for anything better at the present time. This seems to be an effort to discredit the French representative in the negotiations, but it is not an opinion that is shared on this side of the water. France has not been harshly treated.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: As long as there's the Golden Rule there is no need of a special rule against double parking.

If all the good advice that is given in commencement addresses is followed, this year's graduates will become especially conspicuous.

The college president who advised his graduates not to be afraid of grease and grime understood the personal attention that can be given the auto.

WOMAN IN LIFE AND IN THE KITCHEN

SUGGESTIONS FOR THE HOUSEWIFE

Flavor fresh peach pie with a little lemon extract.

Use unsalted cooking fat for greasing cake pans.

It is better to serve but one fried food at a meal.

Cold pork, dusted with powdered sage is delicious.

When pineapple juice is used in gelatine 1 1-2 times as much gelatine is required.

Dainty dotted Swiss makes an attractive lamp shade for the summer bedroom.

A stepladder cannot slip if pieces of rubber are tacked on the bottom of the legs.

An old stocking leg makes a fine cover for a metal hot water bag.

To clean tapestry upholstered furniture rub with hot bran as soon as it becomes cool.

Pack silver in dry flour when packing it and it will not tarnish.

A diced cucumber improves potato salad which is served very cold.

Use tomatoes, celery and peaches for a salad and serve with French dressing.

When making jelly use about three-fourths of a cup of sugar to one cup of fruit juice.

Stained window glass may be thoroughly cleaned by using a cleanser dissolved in vinegar.

To frost a cake, cover the top with marshmallows and let stand in the oven melted.

Keep the old broom for cellar, porch and yard use, saving the new for cleaner work.

A dish of crystallized ginger is never amiss on the luncheon table. It is surprising how many people are fond of it.

When having boiled rice as a vegetable, boil an extra quantity and a day or so later serve it en casserole with tomatoes, cheese and peppers as the main dish for your meatless dinner.

PAN FOR SCRAPS

Keep a pan on the back of the stove to hold leftover scraps of bread and crumbs. The bread will dry and may be crushed with little effort and used in recipes calling for crumbs. Leftover toast is especially desirable as it possesses a good flavor.

HOW TO BROIL A STEAK

The first requirement of a good broiled steak lies in the selection of the meat. A choice porterhouse or sirloin should have bright red, lean, fine-grained and somewhat marbled with fat, and the outside fat should be creamy white. A cut for broiling should be more than an inch thick. True, broiled steak is cooked over red hot coals or in a broiler under gas flame or electric coils. The meat is placed near enough to the fire to sear a crust quickly, care being taken that it does not burn. As soon as one side is thoroughly seared the steak is turned between two knives or spatulas so as not to pierce the crust.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY

Be kind and make sunshine for others. Forget yourself.

Beauty, we have long since learned, is more than skin deep. But conversely, good health may begin at the skin and go deeper. There is a meaning for personal pride.

After the pores have been opened by the heat they may be freed of deposits of face powder and oily secretions that are clogging their openings by washing with soap and warm water. Rinse very thoroughly in clean, warm water to remove all soap particles. Now bathe your face in cold water for several minutes and dry well.

The sparing use of meat and abstinence from tea, coffee and other stimulating drinks are among the features of diets described by the physical education department of a woman's college as ideal for the physical health and well-being of its students. The ideal diet offered by the department consists of fruits, cereals, soups, plenty of vegetables and milk for a total of 2650 calories. For the overweight girl, 2200 calories are prescribed. On this diet, bread and butter is cut down and soups and meats eliminated. Desserts are not featured in these menus with the exception of ice cream and fruit for the normal girl and fruit only for the overweight girl.

PILLOWS AND STOOLS

Pillows and stools have come into their own once more. Not, of course, the pillows that made hideous the parlars and "dens" of the naughty '90s, but pillows that express in their designs the frank, direct and somewhat mathematical spirit of our modern times, as well as those which revive—with a sincerity which the '90s never knew—the best designs of other epochs of decoration.

CAT GREENS

If you can not get grass for your pet house cat plant some oats in a flower pot and let the cat nibble as soon as the blades grow a few inches. Grass, catnip or some other green is essential to a cat's health and happiness.

XMAS AFTERTHOUGHT

Now is an excellent time to pick up many desirable Christmas presents, inexpensively. Such things as dressing table accessories, fancy closet equipment, linens, decorative vases, lampshades, book-ends, small bits of furniture, simple lingerie, hosiery and so on can be had, often, for negligible prices. Now is the time to start Santa Claus' hope chest!

WATER SPOTS

There are various methods for removing water spots from tables and all varnished wood. Rubbing with a cloth or feather moistened with spirits of camphor is good; so is paraffin melted in a little olive oil and applied to spots; then, after a while, polishing the surface. Rubing well with a damp cloth on which a few drops of ammonia have been sprinkled will take away water spots, if dried with a clean cloth, then polished in the usual way.

VEGETABLES

Vegetables that are to be eaten raw should be dipped very quickly into boiling water to destroy the germs and then put in a cheesecloth bag or wrapping and placed directly on the ice to make them crisp.

DICTATES OF FASHION

Excellent for travel is a tailored glove in suntan beige kidskin, with beige and brown embroidery.

Separate blouses and jackets are potent factors in varying the travel wardrobe.

Negligees make a fetish of unusual sleeves. A Vionnet pink crepe satin one has wide flaring sleeves that dip in points like the skirt.

Pastel colored silk net, over flowered taffeta makes stunning bridesmaids' frocks for a formal wedding. Hats of horsehair braid match the silk net.

Red, white and blue is a combination whose chic is unrivaled for midsummer—and many are the harmonies which may be developed from this theme.

Tucked bands from the finish of the cardigan of a catawba wool crepe suit. Tucked bands form the cuffs and the front closing of a purply pink blouse that goes with it.

Hats are growing lighter every day, especially the large ones. The horsehair hats are popular, and as transparent and becoming as usual to certain types.

Tiers and flounces are posed lower on skirts than they were. A leaf print in beige, navy blue and orange has its circular flounce from the knee. The frock has severe princess lines, with flaring cuffs and collar.

Big, splashy floral patterns prevail in these evening chiffons, and if they have a dark background they are usually made up over foundations of flesh color or ivory, which brings out the design.

To take the place of the bandanna kerchief is a turbanne made of wool and visca straw with the silk kerchief effect attached at the side. It closely resembles the bandanna in appearance.

Chartreuse green is one of the leading fashion colors of the moment. And it is equally happy in combination with black, navy, almond green or brown or with prints which combine two or more of these shades.

We have had printed chiffon frocks galore but the fashion of using printed silks for evening is decidedly of this season. The silks are precisely like those used for daytime frocks, and the result is extraordinarily smart.

LAUNDRY NOTES.

In ironing all colored materials beware of getting your iron too hot. This will fade your clothes, even though it may not attain the scorching point. Of course, the new automatic electric irons practically eliminate this danger, anyway.

Press wash dresses while they are still quite damp, having linen things very damp indeed. After pressing them, hang them on hangers to thoroughly dry and air.

If your frock boasts trimmings of buttons place the buttons face down to a Turkish towel and press the garment on the wrong side. This avoids difficult ironing between and around the buttons.

To look your ultimate best in your wash frocks, press them after every wearing, whether or not they need tubbing. Half the charm of these dresses is their air of chic immaculateness.

HOW TO LAUNDER RAYON.

Laundering does not detract from the beauty of rayon. If the right methods are used, the fabric seems to improve each time it is washed. Plenty of soapsuds and water of an even lukewarm temperature are essential throughout the process of washing and rinsing articles made of rayon. The fabric should never be wrung or squeezed but should be plunged in and out of the soapy lather until all signs of soil have disappeared.

After several rinsings, the water should be pressed out gently and the article rolled in a towel to dry. As rayon is more often injured in the ironing than in the washing, care should be taken to keep the iron from becoming too hot. It is advisable to press the article on the wrong side while it is still quite damp.

DEFEATING MR. MOTH.

All woolen goods or clothing should be carefully brushed, cleaned and if possible placed in the sun before it is stored in sealed paper bags containing naphthalene flakes or naphthalene moth balls.

Ordinary wrapping paper or newspaper will serve as well as expensive paper bags, provided several thicknesses are used so that no holes are left for the entrance of moths.

Camphor is not nearly so effective as naphthalene and such substances as lavender flowers, cayenne pepper, alspice, black pepper, salt, borax, red cedar leaves and the worthless.

Tests made by the bureau of entomology, United States department of agriculture, show that spraying with any of the moth-proofing solutions now on the market gives only partial protection.

Well-made cedar chests give protection to clothing if it has been carefully brushed and is entirely free from moths.

SUMMER CARE.

Draperies and rugs should be carefully cleaned now and put away until autumn. Slip covers for furniture can be made inexpensively. Patterns nowadays fit practically all kinds of chairs and davenports.

CONCERNING WOMEN.

Women are now employed as policemen in Moscow by the Soviet government of Russia.

Mlle. Aimee Pfanner, a 22-year-old French girl, recently crossed the English Channel on a hydrocycle in nine hours and ten minutes.

Miss Jean Van Coover, a native of Pennsylvania, who recently arrived in Washington, D. C., is the first American woman to penetrate the wilderness of Afghanistan to its distant and usually inaccessible capital. She speaks five languages.

Mlle. Fernande Copin, noted French scientist, is conducting a series of experiments to determine the relation between the brains of monkeys and the brains of humans.

Miss Venetia J. M. Stephenson is the first woman barrister to defend a murder trial at Old Baily, London, and was the second woman lawyer ever to appear in those precincts, formerly sacred to man.

ORGANDY-TAFFETA

A yellow organdy frock, made over matching taffeta, has a tiny white organdy yoke that runs down the shoulders to make tiny caps over bare arms. White organdy also ties like a child's sash in the back, after circling the frock.

THREE GLUES

Chic and attractive is a little sports suit of silk flannel and georgette in three blues. Medium dark blue silk pleats to make the skirt, the jacket is of flannel in a lighter, smoky blue and the tuck-in blouse is of georgette in powder blue, banded in dark.

PRINTED NET

This is a new material, which is threatening the prestige of chiffon for evening frocks. One can use yards and yards of it without giving the effect of clumsiness and its slimy delicacy makes it one of the loveliest as well as the most practical materials for summer evening frocks.

EGGS.

Eggs that are stored in water glass need not be put down all at once time; they may be added as convenient.

GLASS SUPPORTS.

Glass supports under the legs of the stove or kitchen cabinet will keep them from cutting the linoleum.

RECIPES

Strawberry Jam: Wash four quarts of strawberries thoroughly, drain, cap and pick out the largest. Take about one quart of the smaller fruit, crush it, then add three pounds of sugar. Cook this rapidly in an enameled saucepan and stir until the sugar is dissolved and a thick sirup is formed. Add the remainder of the fruit and continue the rapid cooking, stirring frequently to prevent scorching. An asbestos mat should be placed under the pan as a precaution. Cook for about an hour, or until fairly thick, then add three tablespoons of lemon juice. The jam should then have a brilliant red color and come of the fresh flavor of the fruit. The jam thickens when cold and should not be cooked down too much. Place in sterilized jars, seal and store.

Hashed Brown Potatoes: Chop three cups of cold, boiled potatoes into small cubes. Salt and pepper to taste. Heat one-fourth cup of fat in a small frying pan, add the potatoes and mix and stir them until the fat and potatoes are hot and well blended. Press and smooth down with a knife over half of the bottom of the pan. Let stand until well browned underneath, then loosen with a broad knife. Cover the pan and invert so that the potatoes will rest on the cover without disturbing the shape. Add more butter to the pan, slip the potatoes from the cover to the pan with the uncooked side turned down, and let remain until brown on this side. Turn out as you would an omelet.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 22—The administration farm measure will have a time accomplishing its purpose, if one can take as an augury what was said as the measure was launched from the legislative ways and sent to the white house.

Democrats and irregular republicans now usually referred to, by kindness of Senator Fess, as 'pseudos,' or, kindness of Senator Allen, as "nonformists," vied in predictions of failure and political disaster.

The most cynical remark about the amount of farm relief the bill will provide is credited to Senator Peter Norbeck of South Dakota, who stuck to his guns to the last and voted with seven other senators against the measure in its final parliamentary stage.

As passed, a farm board of 12 members, the senate provision, is included instead of the original house project of a six-man board.

That being the case, the Hon. Peter affirmed, the senate plan was twice as good as the house plan because it would relieve twice as many farmers, 12 instead of of six.

Vote, Then Denounce

On that day the senate gave an exhibition unusual even for the senate. It spent four hours denouncing a measure for which it then voted, 74 to 8, and most of the denouncers were numbered among the 74 ayes.

Meanwhile the house kicked its heels in idleness waiting for the senate to act so that Speaker Longworth could join Vice President Curtis in signing the enrolled bill and send it to President Hoover for the last scene in the eight-year farm relief drama—that is, the last scene until the bye-elections next year.

If the senators who took part in the anti-administration free for all are to be accepted as political prophets, a lot more will be heard about this bill and about presidential insistence on elimination of the debenture plan.

Rocks Ahead of Hoover

Just how serious the rift on the republican side of the senate is going to prove is any man's guess. It certainly has the makings of trouble for Mr. Hoover's leadership, and probably the battered farm bill will prove the proof of the pudding.

And Norbeck challenged the senate to show "that a single senator in this chamber has claimed for this bill that it would establish equality for agriculture according to the republican platform."

Senator Norbeck also read his own record for republican regularity "when the Bryan fallacy of free silver swept over the west," "when the populist movement ran away with Kansas," "when Nebraska, Kansas, Wyoming, Colorado and even Ohio went democratic in 1916."

"I was a republican in 1918 when Herbert Hoover issued a statement indorsing the election of a democratic congress," Norbeck said. "I was not called a 'pseudo republican' in those days, but times change."

YOUR HEALTH

"Why All This Suffering Humanity?"
By M. J. Mandelbaum, M. D., New York City.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute.)

Have you ever passed a hospital for cripples and noticed not only grown-ups but many children ranging in age from the tiniest infants up to adolescents with casts upon their arms, legs or body, partly and in some instances entirely encased in plaster of Paris from head to foot? Have you noticed them strapped in frames or with braces, splints and other sorts of apparatuses of the most fantastic types holding limbs in various bizarre and seemingly distorted postures? Have you not at such times wondered "Why all this suffering humanity?"

Behind all of this lies an age-old story. As in nature, also in disease, "nothing just happens." And so with every deformed spine, joint, arm, hand, leg or foot, "something has happened," either in the life of the individual or in the lives of his parents, grandparents or even great-grandparents; which stigma has been transmitted down the racial line, visiting its unfortunate victim with the dire results of deformities or joint diseases of either temporary or permanent nature.

Consanguinity, intermarriage among members of the same family, constitutional diseases, such as syphilis and tuberculosis; accidents; improper feeding in infancy, producing such an important bone-affecting disease as rickets—all of these play their part in the causation of these afflictions.

While it is true that there are hereditary diseases causing bone and joint affections, there are also the so-called congenital deformities, as clubbed feet, clubbed hands, cleft palate and hare lip, which latter two, while not joint diseases, may be mentioned in this relation inasmuch as they frequently involve the bony structures and also are not infrequently known to be similar in character. All of the latter named groups are amenable to the mastery of modern orthopedic science. Many acute or recently acquired joint diseases of either tubercular or syphilitic nature may, under proper modern conditions, be eradicated or at least ameliorated. Indeed, as the years roll by, many bone and joint diseases and deformities, previously considered hopeless, are becoming amenable to advanced methods of treatment.

There is a type of bone and joint disease which unfortunately is often permitted to go beyond the hope of cure because of lack of prompt or early care. It is a severe and not infrequently fatal type, coming under the causative name of "acute streptococcic joint infection," or "acute osteo-myelitis" (acute septic disease), of the bone and its marrow.

One might say at this point that these diseases are being relieved in increasing numbers. Their causes are frequently such that, through lack of early and prompt attention, not only do they produce permanent deformities but even terminate fatally.

Having broadly classified most causes of bone and joint diseases, there remains a large group of cases which at their onset manifest themselves in a similar manner. Their causes vary greatly, however, as do their termination.

In these cases there are excessive deposits of calcium and uric acid salts in and about the joints which are thus rendered partly or completely immovable. This latter group comes under the classification of chronic arthritis (inflammation of the joints). Here while neither accident nor acute disease plays a causative part, these unfortunates are none the less crippled, and the affliction may affect but a single joint or almost every joint in the body.

Here the causes are frequently ascribed to a primary infection in some region of the body other than the joint involved; for example, infected nasal sinuses, tonsils, teeth, gall bladder, large intestine, genital organs, etc. These infections may be unknown to the individual, and an insidious but none the less disastrous joint involvement may take place ultimately causing a helpless, incurable cripple. Under this heading may also be placed one other joint disease due to an uncured local venereal disease, gonorrhea. Certain diseases may indirectly affect the muscles, bones and joints. Prominent among them is infantile paralysis; and the virus of other diseases such as scarlet fever. Or poisons such as phosphorus and radium, to which workers in some industrial fields are exposed, may also cause necrosis of bone and damage the muscle and other tissues.

Thus, prompt attention to diseases of organs other than the bones and joints themselves may prevent serious future trouble. While acute diseases of such organs as above mentioned may sharply call one's attention to their potential dangers as causes of joint diseases, the above-mentioned insidious type of chronically infected organs, commonly known as a "focal infection," can only be brought to light as the result of a very careful periodic health examination. Such an examination may and very often does bring to light these hidden dangers.

Doctor at 83 Found People Preferred His Prescription

The basis of treating sickness has not changed since Dr. Caldwell left Medical College in 1875, nor since he placed on the market the laxative prescription he had used in his practice, known to druggists and the public since 1892 as Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin.

Then, the treatment of constipation, biliousness, headaches, mental depression, indigestion, sour stomach and other indispositions that result from constipation was entirely by means of simple vegetable laxatives, herbs and roots. These are still the basis of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, which is a combination of senna and other mild laxative herbs, with pepsin.

Dr. Caldwell did not approve of drastic physics and purges. He did not believe they were good for human beings to put into their system. If grown people want to use them no one can deny them the privilege, but they should never be given to children.

The simpler the remedy for constipation, the safer for the child and for you, and the better for the general health of all. And as you can get results in a mild and safe way by using Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, why take chances with strong drugs? All drug stores have the generous bottles

AT AGE 83

Many is the family today that makes it a rule always to have a bottle of this perfect preparation in the house. Keep it handy and observe these three simple rules of health: keep the head cool, the feet warm, and the bowels open.

Why not try Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin today?

NEXT STATE REGISTER TO HAVE ILLUSTRATIONS

Noteworthy additions to the state register and manual will appear in the 1929 issue, which is expected from the press soon after August 1, Deputy Secretary of State Elmer H. Lounsbury announced Saturday. At the suggestion of Secretary of State William L. Higgins three full-page colored plates and statistics on Connecticut roads will be contained in this next volume.

The colored plates will be of the state flag, the state seal and the state flower—the laurel. Never before has the manual, commonly referred to as "the red book," had a colored picture, and never before has it contained any photograph or drawing of the state seal or flag or flower, except for the small seal stamped on the front cover. It is Dr. Higgins' belief that the state manual should of all books contain pictures of these emblems for reference and educational purposes.

This spring Dr. Higgins, Mr. Lounsbury and photographers have gone out to Nathan Hale's birthplace in Coventry and taken photographs of the magnificent laral there. Plates have also been made of fine laurel growths in other parts of the state, and under the supervision of Mr. Lounsbury an oil painting of a bunch of laurel is to be made from these plates, the painting to bring out the most effective and true colors of the flower. From the painting the colored plate will be made for the manual.

The road statistics to be found in the book for the first time will give information as to all the roads in each of the 169 towns of the state, showing the state highways and the town roads. This information has been compiled by and is now ready in the state highway department offices.

The 1929 manual will have the same familiar and traditional red cover and binding with gilt lettering, although there was some talk this winter of changing the color.

There will be little change in the size of the volume. It is now about 730 pages. The two maps of the state, one showing the counties, congressional and senatorial districts, the other showing details of the state such as roads, towns, railways, post offices and state parks and forests, will be in the forthcoming volume as usual.

WON THREE CUPS AT MOOSEHEART LEGION MEET

Three cups were won by Norwich chapter, No. 124, at the first state meeting of the Women of the Mooseheart Legion of Connecticut held Friday and Saturday at New Haven. The local chapter had an attendance of 32 Legionnaires, who in company with members of Loyal Order of Moose, No. 950 and of Mooseheart Junior Legion, No. 92, paraded in the city before leaving.

The chapter was led by Senior Regent Emma Beaver, who carried the banner and Past Regent Minnie Smith as color bearer. Then followed the degree team in their natty uniforms of royal purple and white satin, with white satin hats and purple shoes and carrying red and purple canes. The degree team was led by Mrs. Irene Burns and Mrs. Martha Wunderlich.

The Mooseheart Junior legion in charge of Assistant Governess Irene Burns was also in line, headed by Marianne Maecione carrying the legion's banner, John Watters and Andrew Connell were the color bearers, the president, Mildred Hoelck leading the lines of boys in their white sailor suits and girls in their red and white satin dresses with red tams.

Arriving in New Haven they took part in the parade with Senior Regent Emma Beaver carrying the banner and Capt. Ethel Hoelck, color bearer, in drill work at the field the Norwich team won a cup for the best appearing drill team; also a cup for second prize for drilling. The local chapter has every reason for being proud of its degree team as this is only the second public appearance the team has made, it having been organized last year, by Past Regent Teresa Watters, its first captain.

The team on Saturday did very nice work with Mrs. Irene Burns as leader, Ethel M. Hoelck, captain and Mrs. Ethel Caughey and Mrs. Mary Lasch, as color bearers. The chapter won a cup and the Mooseheart Juniors a cup for the best appearing in the line. Norwich lodge, No. 950, was awarded three cups.

NEW YORK PREACHER AT CENTRAL BAPTIST CHURCH

Rev. Edwin S. Holloway of New York city, a brother of Joseph P. Holloway of this city, was the preacher at the morning and evening services at the Central Baptist church Sunday. At the evening service Rev. Mr. Holloway delivered an interesting sermon, speaking upon the great love of God. The preacher said that human life was the cheapest thing when God gave a gift to the world, his only begotten son, so that we might have an abundant life, an eternal life. God is watching the lawlessness and crime of the present day. He loves the world still. I suppose the worst character of the world was Nero, who left behind him a great trail of crime when he died. There were many people who rejoiced in his death. With all his sinfulness and crime there were some who loved him and almost daily went to his grave with flowers. God gave us love so that we might break up the barrier which exists between us and the wicked people.

A contest for positions of officers for the ensuing year is expected to bring a large attendance at the annual meeting of the First School district of Groton, which has been called for Tuesday night.

LYME ARTISTS HOLDING THEIR ANNUAL EXHIBITION

An arresting collection of pictures comprising the fifth annual exhibition of water colors, pastels, etchings and lithographs opened last week with a private showing in the gallery of the Lyme Art association at Old Lyme.

The work of 17 artists, members of the association, has been effectively arranged by the exhibition committee of which Henry Bill Selden of Connecticut college is chairman.

The water colors and a few pastels are hung in the north and south galleries, while the etchings and lithographs occupy the west wing.

Variety of Subjects

The variety of subject matter is interesting. Edward Volkert's rural subjects, sympathetically reproduced, present the hardy contentment of the New England farmer at his homely chores. Exotic studies of Bermuda in the vivid, almost incredible brilliance of sea and sky, are shown by Will Howe Foote and Harry L. Hoffman.

Wilson Irvine is exhibiting several paintings done abroad, which attracted much favorable comment. Two of his water colors, one entitled Brides at Ronda, Spain, and the other Martigue, France, were purchased yesterday.

A water color entitled Deserted, painted by Henry Bill Selden, is one of the notable pictures in the collection. The subject is the same as that of an oil painting which was awarded a prize at the annual exhibition of the Connecticut academy this year. The picture is of a dilapidated homestead, empty of forlorn, in a flood of sunshine.

Several of Mr. Selden's pictures attracted attention. Among them is a striking water color of New London Light. Others of his which elicited admiring comment were Early May, an old house of unpainted clapboards and covered well, The Sea Captain's House, the Fish House, and October, all of which were interpreted with pleasing vitality.

The work of Carleton Wiggins appealed to many of the visitors. His Egypt Road, Southampton, was sold most interesting of the water colors, most interesting of the water colors, he has painted a woman in the attire of half a century ago, standing alone by the sand dunes at the shore facing the sea. This picture, although not a new one, was singled out as particularly fine.

Platt Hubbard has contributed some excellent work to the exhibit. Grape Vines, A Winter Maple and An Old House were numbered among the worthwhile paintings in the exhibit.

The flower groups by Paul Saling were attractive in their artistic arrangement.

Marine Paintings

Among the marine paintings are several by Thomas Watson Ball and Mary Roberts Ebert. The Aurora, by Mr. Ball, striking in its unusual phenomena, is considered good. Mrs. Ebert's subjects include seashore effects of interesting subject matter, one of which is called Tide Pool and the other Pool Above the Sea.

Early Morning in the Grand Canal by Frank A. Bicknell was purchased as was one of his group of Sketchbook watercolors which were small paintings of waterfront scenes at Noank.

Charles Ebert is showing many beautiful pictures, the greater number of which are scenes in rural New England.

Two pastels by Elinor Lathrop Sears were loaned for the exhibition. They are pictures of children and are the only portraits in the exhibition.

Charming landscapes by William Chadwick were noted favorably.

Etchings and Lithographs

Notable among the score or more of etchings and lithographs in the west room are Edward Volkert's lithograph Barnyard, in which the artist by intelligent use of light and shadow has created a forceful and vital picture of farm workers at their tasks, and an etching entitled "The Pool," by Ernest F. Peck.

Here there are examples of the work of Caroline Weir Ely, Wilson Irvine, Platt Hubbard, William S. Robinson, Henry Bill Seden, Eugene Higgins, Guy Wiggins, as well as those by Mr. Peck and Mr. Volkert.

The work is of excellent quality and indicative of the high degree of talent among the artists of Lyme who have for years formed an important center in the world of American art.

The exhibition committee in charge of the arrangement of the pictures consisted of Mr. Selden, chairman; Mr. Foote, Mr. Irvine, Mr. Hoffman and Mr. Robinson.

Tea was served in the west wing during the afternoon by Mrs. Hermon M. Hubbard, Mrs. Clifford Grayson, Mrs. William Goodwin, Mrs. Hoffman and Mrs. Selden.

Pottery jars containing yellow lilies and larkspur stood on the tea table and lent a delightful note of color in the room in which hung only the black and white of etching and lithographs against the almost colorless walls of the gallery.

BACKUS HOSPITAL AUXILIARY

When June comes and one looks back on things accomplished during the past year, every woman who had a part in the "Hospital Week" in March must feel satisfied that her efforts were well worth while. During that week, hundreds of women gathered together to play bridge or enjoy a social cup of tea. "Hospital talk" increased real interest in our own health center while the money which came in from these parties really amounted to a very gratifying amount. $1,114.75, the receipts of that week of of work and fun, have been spent by the auxiliary's finance committee in such a way as to bring to the hospital some equipment most needed. A diathermy apparatus was bought and has been used with fine result in cases of pneumonia, malnutrition and other troubles; a stereoscopic plate changer has been added to the equipment of the X-ray room, making the work of that ever growing and necessary part of the hospital more adequate and perfect. Besides these two expensive pieces of apparatus, there was still enough money to buy five adjustable wheel chairs, one of which is for child's use, thus adding to the "fleet" of chairs which can bring the sick and convalescent out onto the pleasant roof porches where the sun and air can do their curative work. The finance committee of the auxiliary feel that every woman who was interested in "hospital week" in March will be glad to know what needs were realized by the money raised so pleasantly and easily in the spring.

The auxiliary showed their interest in the nurses at graduation time. The flower committee decorated the hall at the Samuel Huntington school; the nurses' recreation committee provided a beautiful basket of flowers for the banquet table, thus bringing to the girls at this festival occasion the best wishes of every member of the auxiliary; and the following friends of the hospital loaned their cars for the nurses' use: Mr. H. F. Dawley, Mr. Walter Lester, Mr. Don Houghton, Mr. Flint Brayton, Mr. C. A. Gager, Mr. Oliver J. Johnson, Mr. Shepard Palmer, Mr. Rollin Jones, Mrs. Archibald Mitchell, Jr., Mrs. Davenport Wallace, Dr. Robert Agnew, Judge Allyn Brown, Mr. Roy Judd, Mr. Charles Saxton and Mr. Russell Smith.

Summers are weary times for the nurses. Realizing this fact, the nurses' recreation committee, of which Mrs. J. J. Donohue is chairman, has planned diversions for the girls. Two double bathhouses at Ocean Beach have been secured for their use. On afternoons off or in the long summer evenings, the cares and worries attendant on hot days spent by wearisome beds of sickness can be forgotten in a refreshing dip in the sea and the nurse will return invigorated to take up her round once more. The committee wish to express their thanks to Mr. Unger, manager of the Palace theatre, who, for the two past weeks has been a generous host to the nurses, making it possible for all the girls to see a good show. This courtesy made a happy change in the nurses' routine and refreshments which a thoughtful committee made possible to "top off" the parties were enjoyed as well. One afternoon this month, thirty of the nurses were guests of Mrs. Harry Higgins at a delightful "wiener roast" at her summer home at the shore.

The standing committees of the auxiliary are carrying on as usual. The flower committee desires to keep flowers in the wards during the summer. Those who have to be in bed need bright colors and fragrance of the out of doors brought to them and Mrs. David Sussler will be glad to call for flowers if anyone cares to share her garden in this way will call her on the telephone. The recent magazines are carried to the wards each Friday by members of the literature committee. There is a need for current books and if anyone who is willing to part with new books will communicate with Mrs. John Rogers, she will see that they are carried to the hospital. The call for old cotton and linen, made lately through the newspapers, brought gratifying results but the need is ever constant. Any old soft pieces of cloth, large or small is valuable to the hospital. If a postcard is sent to Mrs. Charles Saxton, Washington street, she will be glad to call for the bundles and take them to the hospital, for her care is to see that the linen cupboard shelves are always full of old cloth.

Not only is this cloth used constantly at the hospital for bandages, wipes and other ways, but the need is increased by the fine work done by the women of the various churches who meet every Thursday at the Central Baptist church to make dressings under the guidance of the production committee of the auxiliary. Large amounts of cloth is required for "packageing" and many an old sheet or towel or pillow slip can be torn into pieces to make the "completes," so needed in the hospital. Even small pieces can be used to fine advantage. Miss Mary Paddock, the chairman, reports a large amount of work done by the women of the Congregational churches, the First, Greeneville, Taftville, United, and the Christ Episcopal church, who have worked two Thursdays each since the first of April. The splendid work done includes 673 completes, 3,793 small gauze pads, 12 surgical handkerchieves, and 98 dish towels, 66 diapers and 52 tray clothes hemmed. The Third Baptist church women began work June 13th and the following churches will do hospital dressings during the summer: Trinity M. E. church, Norwich Town M. E. church, Church of the Good Shepherd, Brothers of Joseph Synagogue and A. M. Zion church. Much interest is shown. The women have a good time, doing work both pleasant and worth while. Often luncheon is brought and the workers stay all day. The hospital, too, is enthusiastic over this real assistance.

The holiday committee has remembered all gala days in their usual thoughtful and charming way. Decoration day brought special napkins on the trays and Flag day was celebrated by little silk flags which flew gaily from the dinner trays—to remind patients that friends were thinking of them and to bring to their minds something besides hospital rooms.

Donations have been received in the past two months of linen, cloth, jars, magazines, books, flowers, seven potted Easter lilies for the wards, broth, Sunday newspapers, baby bands, and two dolls and nine scrap books for the children's ward. The names of the donors follow: Mrs. Flint Brayton, Miss Mary McConnell, Mrs. V. Perkowsky, Jr., Mr. Henry C. Lane, Mothers and Daughters banquet committee, Mrs. William Young, Miss Jane Aiken, Mrs. George Howard, Mrs. Clark Hommell, Mrs. George Upton, Mrs. M. E. Carpenter, the Misses Trumbull, Mrs. A. H. ATHLETICS TAKE ODD GAME OF SERIES WITH NEW YORK YANKEES

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP) — The Athletics finally increased their lead over the world champion New York Yankees to eight and one half games by winning the last of the season's first crucial series, 7 to 4. The winners outhit the losers by a bare margin of one but the A's blows were far more robust than those of the Yankees. The visitors nine hits were good for 22 bases while the home club's eight ran a total of only 18. Simmons, Foxx and Haas hit home runs for Connie Mack while Lou Gehrig drove one into the right-field stands for the Yanks, making his season's total an even score. The attendance was only about 55,000, more than 10,000 less than either of the past two days.

Manager Miller Huggins for the third time in the series started a left hander and for the third time saw him driven to cover. Ed Wells was the victim today, retiring for a pinch hitter in the seventh. Manager Mack, too, had to wave frantically to the far away left field bull pen in the eighth to summon George Earnshaw to come to the rescue of Howard Ehmke, who until next to the last inning had completely baffled the Yankee sharpshooters.

Ehmke contributed to his own downfall with a wild throw in the eighth and Haas did not help the cause any when he permitted Gehrig's single to roll so far through him that Columbia Lou was able to circle the bases before the ball could be returned.

Earnshaw stopped the rally, with the assistance of a sparkling one-handed catch by Bishop of an apparent safe hit from Meusel and retired his opposition in order in the ninth. Mickey Cochrane doing yeoman chere for him when he plunged into the home team's dug-out to grab and hold a foul fly from the bat of Pinch Hitter Koenig.

The Athletics set out with stern determination to win the odd game of the series. The leaders and runners-up went into play with two victories each to their credit and they started a fast pace. Al Simmons, who was hit at a terrific pace in the series, opened the second inning with a long triple and scored when Foxx flied deep to Combs. Simmons single-handed furnished the next Mackmen run when he drove the ball into the left field stands for his fourth home run of the series and 18th of the season. Foxx sent the ball in almost the same spot a minute later, Gehrig got one of them back with his homer in the sixth, the blow being the Yankees third hit from Ehmke and second hard hit blow, one safety being a scratchy affair. The A's increased their lead in the seventh Foxx walked and rode home on Miller's triple, Bing running his record of consecutive games in which he had hit safely to 23. Boley's single sent Miller in.

With Tom Zachary pitching in the eighth the leaders made two more. After Bishop missed a third strike Mule Haas hit far over Combs' head to deepest center field and made a home run inside the playing field. Cochrane followed with a double to left, raced to third when Simmons flied to Combs and counted on a single by Foxx.

The Yankees arranged a rally of a sort in the eighth. It was just enough to force Ehmke out of active participation. Combs bunted and beat it and when Ehmke threw far into right field he ran all the way to third. Robertson lined to Boley but Gehrig's single scored the Kentucky colonel and when Haas let the ball slude his grasp, Gehrig came in, too. Ruth singled to left and scored when Lazzeri's hard hit to left carromed from the stands outside the reach of Simmons, and was good for a triple. Earnshaw then took charge. Bishop made a circus catch of Meusel's hit and Dickey flied to Simmons.

The ninth inning was eventful only for Cochrane' courageous catch and a play "for the book" by Dickey and Earnshaw. A third strike was called on the Athletic pitcher and he started toward his glove, preparatory to pitching the last inning as the catcher dropped the ball. Dickey followed him a few steps to touch him and then abandoned the effort and started the other way to the Yankee bench Earnshaw strolled toward the Athletic dug out and then started running, reaching first without an effort to stop him. The umpires naturally declared he was entitled to the base. The net result of this episode was to charge Max Bishop with an extra time at bat as he came up and rolled to Lazzeri.

Sunday at the Uncasville diamond the Shyma club of Taftville handed the Uncasville-Shelton team of the Montville Industrial league a 16 to 6 trimming. Pete Lucier held the Shelton club to eight hits which with the exception of the seventh inning were well scattered. MILLER TIES FOR ELEVENTH IN N. Y. OPEN Massie B. Miller, professional at the Norwich Golf club, finished in a tie with three others for eleventh place in the New York state open tournament at the Westchester-Biltmore course at Rye, N. Y., Saturday. Miller had a card of 297 for the 72 hole competition and was tied with Mike Turnesa, George Voight and Wiffey Cox. He finished one stroke in back of Willie Klein and ten strokes behind Billy Burke of Westport who won with 287. Finishing behind Miller was Gene Sarazen, Johnny Farrell, Eddie Held, Roland Hancock and many other noted players.

At the completion of the third round Miller was in third place with 219 while Burke was first with 213 and George Christ second with 215. Miller in the morning round had shot a brilliant round of 72 to place himself well in the running. However a 78 in the afternoon dropped him to a tie for eleventh place. The scores of the first eleven places follow:

Billie Burke, Westport ...213 74—287
George Christ, Rochester .218 73—291
Henry Ciuci, Stratford ...222 72—294
Tony Manero, unattached 222 73—295
Harry Cooper, Buffalo ..220—75 295
Joe Turnesa, Elmsford ...221 74—295
Mike Brady, Winged Foot 222 72—295
Macdonald Smith, Lakeville 222 73—295
Herman Barron, Tamarack 222 74—295
William Klein, Wheatley Hills 222 74—296
Mike Turnesa, Elmsford ..223 74—297
Wiffy Cox, Brooklyn ....223 74—297
Massie Miller, Norwich ..219 78—297
George Voight, North Hills 222 74—297

Miller leaves today or tomorrow for the Winged Foot course at Mamaroneck, N. Y., where he will get in several practice rounds in preparation for the national open which starts on Thursday. With the showing Miller made in the New York state open it is safe to predict that he will be well up among the leaders. The local youngster is playing brilliant golf this year and even the experts are beginning to take notice of him for when he is finishing ahead of such stars as Sarazen and Farrell, present national titleholder, he is playing some golf.

It is expected that when he starts his quest for the national title next Thursday that he will have quite some gallery of local golfing enthusiasts. If Miller finishes within the first 60 at the end of the first two rounds, and there is little doubt but that he will, many more Norwich people intend to go to Mamaroneck for the final 36 holes on Saturday.

Susie Says

All roads lead to the beaches over the week ends.

And what funny sights we see as we drive along in the old flivver as we ourselves mote toward the shore for a lungful of salt air.

There's Farmer Jones and his litter of youngsters packed into the truck like sardines. Farmer Jones has his linen duster on and his straw skimmer and smoked glasses. He ain't taking no chances ruining his eye-sight on them bathing girls—and besides with them smoked glasses Ma Jones can't tell just where he's looking.

There's Tony the fruit man chugging along with Marie beside him on the front seat while in back are the rest of the family and all of Marie's relatives. Tony's got the side curtains on the truck so it can be used as a bath house later in the day.

There goes Johnny, the soda clerk, in his new Ford. Top and windshield down and hat off. Johnny's girl friend is snuggled up close beside him. Johnny'll spend all his dough on hot dogs, ice cream, pop corn and anything else his girl can get. Johnny'll leave the car in the garage for the next week so he can catch up on the cash.

Then there goes Mrs. Neuveau Riche with her chauffeur and her husband. She'll eat at the hotel and tell John not to eat with his knife, and not drink out of the finger bowls. John wishes he was home on the back porch in his stocking feet and the old corn cob pipe between his teeth.

There's Miss Jennie, the school teacher on the bus. She's got her lunch with her but at first glance you'd think it was a camera. She'll sneak off behind some rock and eat her lunch so's the folks won't see her.

There's Mr. and Mrs. Tightwad. See that package they have? Well that contains sandwiches. They'll go into the restaurant and sit down at the table and order two cups of coffee, and then bring out the sandwiches.

See those two in the tricky roadster. Yep, those two fellers with the tricky mustaches and the white flannels and red neckties. They think they're the answer to a maiden's prayer. They'll don their snappy bathing suits and cavort in the sand but it's a ten to one bet neither one can swim a stroke. But they won't drown if they go in the water, their heads are too light.

And so it goes. What funny things we see on the road to the beach.

NATIONAL OPEN GOLF TOURNEY IS THIS WEEK'S SPORT FEATURE

NEW YORK, June 23.—(AP)—Despite the Schmeling-Paulino fight and the Poughkeepsie regatta, golf will rule the sports world this week. Two of the game's most important competitions—the intercollegiates and the national open—are to be held in the metropolitan district during the next six days.

The intercollegiates, starting at the Hollywood Golf club at Deal, N. J., tomorrow and continuing through Friday, will serve as an appetizer for the national open, blue ribbon event of world golf, which will be played at the Winged Foot Country club, Mamaroneck, N. Y., Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

Eighty-six youngsters from 22 colleges are entered in the intercollegiates in which Maurice J. McCarthy, Jr., of Georgetown, is the defending individual title-holder and Princeton the defending team champion.

At Winged Foot, 153 of the country's leading professionals and amateurs are in the battle for the open crown won by Johnny Farrell last year after a play-off with the greatest amateur of them all, Bobby Jones.

Despite Jones' protests that he is sadly off his game, the Atlanta attorney, as usual, has been made a favorite by such professional stars as Farrell, Walter Hagen, Horton Smith, Leo Diegel, Wild Bill Mehlhorn, Gene Sarazen, MacDonald Smith, Joe Turnesa and Harry Cooper, and his fellow-amateurs, George Von Elm and George Voigt.

The open is a medal competition of 72 holes. Eighteen holes are to be played Thursday, and 18 on Friday. Then all contestants returning scores higher than the first 60 and ties will be eliminated. The balance of the field will play the final 36 holes on Saturday. In the event of a tie at the end of the 72 holes, the play-off will be held on Sunday, 36 holes of medal play.

The Winged Foot course is considered one of the most difficult in the country. It is 6,786 yards long and well trapped. Experts believe that a 72 hole score of 296 will be good enough to win and some have predicted that not one of the field will break 300. That may or may not be true. Jones' feat of turning in rounds of 69 and 70 on successive days in practice rounds last week indicated that the winning score may be much lower than the experts believe. Par for the course is 72—36 out and 36 in.

For the intercollegiates, McCarthy has been made a heavy favorite to repeat his victory of last year. The Georgetown star has been playing great golf this year, winning the metropolitan amateur title some days ago. His chief opposition is expected to come from Al Brodbeck, of Pennsylvania; Phillips Finlay of Harvard, Lester Bolstad of Minnesota; C. F. Sheldon of Lehigh and C. D. Hunter of Washington. Representatives will compete as well from Hamilton, Illinois, Lafayette, Brown, New York university, Massachusetts Institute of Technology; Tulanne, Dartmouth, Yale, Ohio State, Detroit, Bowdoin, Penn State, Princeton, Williams and Virginia.

The qualifying round of 36 holes will be played Monday and Tuesday, 18 holes each day, the low 32 to qualify for match play.

In the team championship, the team having the lowest total score for its four best men in the qualifying round will capture the title. In this competition, Harvard, Dartmouth, Penn., Yale, Georgetown, Ohio State, Detroit Bowdoin, Penn State, Princeton and Williams have entered teams.

GRAY WINS 11TH GAME BEATING THE WHITE SOX

ST. LOUIS, June 23—(AP)—Sam Gray chalked up his 11th victory of the season as the St. Louis Browns defeated Chicago, 6 to 5, today, in the final game of the series. Gray held Chicago to five hits while the Browns were collecting 14 off Adkins and Blankenship. Blankenship was effective, however, keening the five hits he allowed well scattered in the last three and one third innings and the Browns did not score on him. Score:

PLAINFIELD BEATS SMOKE SHOP IN ELEVEN INNINGS

At Plainfield Saturday afternoon, the Plainfield Red Stars won from the Smoke Shop team of Norwich 8 to 7 in the 11th inning. The Smoke Shop team had a comfortable 7 to 3 lead at the first of the ninth but Plainfield staged a last minute rally in the ninth and tied the score. Marriott was sent to the mound in the 10th and retired the side by striking out three men. Again in the eleventh the Smokers were retired without threatening. Plainfield's first two batters singled and an error filled the bags. A long fly to the outfield scored the winning run.

He has stolen two bases per game this season and has fielded for an average of .896. He plays in the outfield or catches.

BRAVES WIN BOTH GAMES FROM PHILLIES

BOSTON, June 23—(AP)—The Braves won a double-header from the Phillies here today, 5-1, and 7-5, before a crowd of 20,000. A heavy batting attack in the sixth inning of the second game gave the Boston team seven runs before a man was retired.

Phil Collins, Philadelphia pitcher, hit a home run with the bases full in the second inning of the second game. Selbold held the visitors to six hits in the first contest. The second game was called in the first of the seventh to comply with the Massachusetts Sunday sports law. Score:

RECORD BREAKING TRAFFIC FOR THIS SEASON OF THE YEAR IS REPORTED

NEW YORK, June 23—(AP)—Business enters the last week of the half year with productivity of the basic industries at a high rate, and no signs of any general business depression. In fact, the seasonal recessions, particularly in steel, have been much less pronounced than usual, and corporation profits in the first half of the year are expected to set a new high level.

Retail distribution, particularly in summer goods, received considerable stimulus last week from the excessive heat wave. Warm weather also benefited most of the leading crops.

While federal reserve officials insisted there had been no change in its credit policy, supporting the assertion by calling attention to a further reduction in holding of bills and government securities, there were nevertheless signs of a definite relaxation in credit conditions.

Time money eased to 7 3-4 per cent, the lowest rate in three months, and call money held steady at 7 per cent all day with the heavy mid-year payments only a week away. This may have been due to heavy imports of gold from England and the Argentine, and also to the accumulation of funds here in anticipation of the mid-year disbursements.

Some bankers believe that the federal reserve will be forced to loosen up on its policy next month in order to facilitate the half vesting movement and storage of crops.

The steel industry continued at an unusually swift pace, automobile production showed a falling off, and there were indications of a further recession in building activities in some sections of the country. This was offset by the increased demand for steel from manufacturers of railroad and electrical equipment, and harvesting machinery. The demand for copper continued at a high rate, with the price of the red metal apparently stabilized.

Record breaking freight traffic for this season of the year, despite the steadily increasing competition of motor trucks and other lines of transport, indicated that goods were moving into consumption at a high rate. Bank clearings fell off somewhat from the levels of a year ago, but this may have been due to the slackening in securities speculation.

Government figures indicated a sharp increase in tobacco consumption in May. Electric output also shows a rapid expansion. The wool business was quiet, with buyers seeking price concessions. Rubber consumption broke all records in May, with middle western tire factories reported operating at capacity.

Heavy imports in May, creating the first import balance in three years, were attributed to the desire of foreign shippers to get their products to this country before the proposed increase in tariff rates became effective.

Adjournment of congress after the passing of the farm relief bill without the debenture clause, was widely hailed as a construed development in trade circles. Postponement of tariff revision until fall, was received with mixed feelings.

More mergers were announced during the week. J. P. Morgan and company connected the formation of their third public utility holding company, and then announced a merger of the Fleischmann, Royal Baking Powder and E. W. Gillett companies into a mass food concern, which may eventually embrace other companies, plans for the consolidation of the Chase National and National Park banks, in New York, also were announced during the week.

WESTERLY

THREE YOUNG CHINAMEN WERE TAKEN TO BOSTON

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, June 23—The three Chinamen, Lo Sun, Long Kee, Cho Chen, as they gave their names to Westerly chief of police, Thomas E. Brown, following their being held as suspicious persons on Thursday and Friday at the Westerly police station, took the 6.39 p. m. express back to Boston on Saturday. They were accompanied by Chinese Immigration Inspector John A. Carney of the Boston Immigration Bureau in East Boston and his interpreter, Ng Dek Foon, who came to Westerly for investigation by the Westerly police authorities. The inspector classed them as stowaways and, as possible seamen, had some rights under U. S. immigration laws which were to be more thoroughly gone into in Boston. These young Chinese were the occupants of the back seat of a Nash coach, owned by Hudson Lee, 8 Chyliest street, New York, driven by a New York Chinatown taxi driver, Ricardo Flurez, a Mexican, of 125 Roosevelt street, New York. The coach collided with a Ford car owned and driven by William J. Hartley, 9 Union street, on Thursday night on the Boston post road, while returning from Boston to New York. Motorcycle Patrolman George L. Madison on visiting the scene took all the occupants to the Westerly police station where they were given a preliminary questioning by Lieutenant George H. Champlin.

The head of the party, John Sam, a Filipino Chinese, gave his address as 125 Roosevelt street, New York, and with him as an occupant of the front seat was Miss Susie Murphy, 23, who stated that she was one of 50 girls at the "Smart Set Ballroom," 68th street and Broadway, New York, and resided at 73 McCullen Place, Astoria, N. Y. On invitation of the taxi driver, she had taken the Boston trip. Police Lieut. Champlin decided to hold all at the station and Westerly police authorities assisted the immigration officials in the 3-hour grilling of the party on Friday and its continuance on Saturday until 3 p. m.

Miss Murphy was escorted by Officer Madison to the Westerly railroad station on Saturday night to return to New York on the 6.09 express with the understanding that she would return if the authorities needed her for a witness.

John Sam left the Westerly police station at 4.45 p. m. Saturday by auto with Deputy United States Marshal Waldo D. Rouviere of Providence, who came to Westerly for him with a warrant which charged the Filipino-Chinese resident of Brooklyn, N. Y., "did violate the act of May 5, 1922, that he was not in possession of a certificate of residence" as required by federal law. The warrant was signed by William M. Clark, United States immigration inspector, customs house at Providence. The marshal said that Sam would be arraigned Monday morning in United States district court before Judge Ira Lloyd Letts. It is understood that later charges of smuggling and even conspiracy may be brought against him in connection with alleged plots to smuggle Chinese into the country and transport them from Boston to New York. In the number of varying stories told by him, that he was "doing them a favor" by taking them to New York to work as dish washers in a restaurant and in the vague statement that they "came off a boat" name and destination unknown, in their Boston arrival, the federal officials have much work to be done before all stories can be checked up.

Ricardo Flurez, the Mexican taximan, continued to be held on Sunday at the Westerly police station as he was unable to raise the $200 required in a civil action brought by Hartley for damages to his auto. When it was apparent late Saturday night that he would pass another day in Westerly the auto driver declared that he would have to find another taxi stand outside of New York Chinatown, as he feared violence after his present experience.

Ernest H. Ring and wife (Ruth V. Davis) returned to Westerly on Saturday from a motor wedding trip to Quebec, Canada.

Section men of the New Haven railroad the past week end filled the many holes worn by autos in the approach drives to the waiting station and placed a top dressing of trap rock. Monday morning the first Seashore Special or Monday morning weekly express train for New York will make its first run of the season.

Hope Senate, No. 2, Sublime Order, American Mechanics, held its annual summer initiation in Westerly on Saturday afternoon. Capt. Shelby C. Nicholas was the marshal of the parade.

Ritualistic work of the order and the conferring of the sublime degree on a class of nearly 75 candidates occupied the afternoon, Grand Senator Nathan Culver presided, assisted by Degree Master George Pendleton and suite. At 6 o'clock a recess was taken for supper. In the evening an entertainment was presented in Mechanics' hall. In the evening Providence Senate attended and members of the order at the afternoon's session were those of Hope Valley, Ashaway, Shannock, Westerly, Stonington, Mystic and New London. The committee in charge of the day's program comprised James Tefft and Edward Blackler of Westerly, Isaac Belknap of Wakefield, John A. Bentley of Noank and John Demico of Stonington.

Westerly's next candidate for military instruction at West Point Military Academy is William J. Ledward, son of Mr. and Mrs. William H. Ledward, of 43 Ledward avenue. Ledward received his appointment last April upon recommendation of United States Representative Richard S. Aldrich. He will be 21 next month.

A graduate of the Westerly high school in 1925, Ledward immediately matriculated at the Rhode Island state college, Kingston, where he continued until this spring, when his West Point appointment was announced. He then left college for a few weeks at home before he started on the long grind of a plebe.

The bride's bouquet was of white rosebuds and baby's breath. The groom was attended by Edward Howard Nichols, Jr., brother of the bride.

MAN AND WOMAN HEAVILY FINED FOR LIQUOR LAW VIOLATIONS

(Special to The Bulletin)

NEW LONDON, June 22—Marty and Anna Russell, 8 Cross street, were presented in the police court Saturday charged on two counts, each, conducting a disorderly house and keeping liquor with intent to sell. The man and woman pleaded guilty and a fine of $100 was imposed on the first and a fine of $100 was meted out on the second count. Altogether with costs, the court treasury was enriched about $650 by the contribution of the Russells. Russell and his wife were arrested last Tuesday night when the police raided their home after five men had been seen to enter the house by an officer who had been detailed to watch the house for it had been long known as a place resorted to for drinking and female company, principally by fishermen and sailors. When the arrests were made five men found in the house, were also arrested on a charge of frequenting. All forfeited their bonds, excepting a sailor, whose charge was nolled.

Curtis A. Hendley, 5 Terrace avenue, Taftville; John Lake, 824 Bank street and Alfred Gladhue, Willow Point, West Mystic, were charged with speeding on Williams street and each was fined $10 and costs. Moten was driving on North Bank street Friday night and his car sideswiped a parked auto of Arthur Wolensky. Instead of stopping to determine the extent of the damage Moten drove on, but he was held up and arrested a block away by Patrolman Thomas Lyden, who had witnessed the crash from the distance. Both automobiles were damaged.

Thieves operated beat race night as usual, the crooks stealing anything and everything that they could. At the Hotel Griswold the thieves gave especial attention to personal effects found in automobiles besides stealing one auto. The Ford car of James G. Woods, Norwich, carrying Connecticut registration, L-2529, was the auto stolen. Charles R. Helm, Fairfield, reported the theft from his auto of a brown bag, containing evening clothing and other wearing apparel. George G. Smith, Rutland, Vt., reported the theft of two bags, each of which contained wearing apparel. A. D. Rockwell reported the theft from its moorings at the municipal pier, of a yacht tender. The boat is 10 feet in length and carries the name, "Midget". Lieut. Bannerman, submarine base reported the theft of his Ford auto from Huntington street, but the car was later recovered and placed in a garage where it was claimed by Bannerman.

Twenty-eight cases await presentation in the police court Monday but none of the accused are charged with a flagrant violation of the law.

Henry June, 39, former city employe, residing at 28 Ann street, was arrested shortly after Saturday midnight charged with conducting a disorderly house. He was held in bail of $150 for trial. The arrests were made by a squad of police consisting of Sergeant Samuel Hick and Patrolmen Dennis Murphy, Thomas Cavanaugh, William Riordan and Louis Wheeler. NORWICH MEN ARRESTED FOR FIGHTING AT BEACH

Rubin Hyman, 36, of 109 West Main street, Norwich; Benjamin Mandell, 37, of 104 1-2 Washington street, Norwich and James Guardacosta, 20, real estate agent of 5 Easterly place, Ocean beach, were arrested this afternoon, the Norwich men being charged with breach of the peace and Guardacosta charged with breach of the peace and carrying a concealed weapon. All three men, who were arrested as a result of a fight at the shore resort, were released upon furnishing bonds for their appearance in the police court tomorrow. Hyman was injured about the head and was attended by a physician.

The fight occurred about 5 o'clock over an alleged lease of part of the cottage of which Guardacosta is the agent. From the story told the police, Guardacosta leased one floor of the building to the Norwich men and when Hyman and Mandell went to the cottage this afternoon they were informed that they could not become tenants there because of the cottage having been rented to another party. When this information was given the Norwich men then demanded a return of $200, which had been given Guardacosta as payment for use of the cottage.

When the money was not returned harsh words were exchanged it is said and during the controversy, Guardacosta went to his apartment where he got a .38 calibre revolver it is claimed. Returning to the floor below, Guardacosta attacked Hyman with the butt of the revolver, dealing the Norwich man several blows on the head. The force of the blows lacerated Hyman's scalp so extensively that he lost considerable blood. Mandell took a hand in the fight and as he did so, other Norwich men went to Bentley avenue and notified the police of the fight. Sergeant John Courtney, Motorcycle Officer George Cockell and Patrolman Arthur Feeley responded, but when the officers arrived at the house the fight had ended.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Sells Floto Circus

Since the days of ancient Rome, when the first circuses exhibited feats of horsemanship in an enclosed field or building, the circus has attracted children and their elders, and has provided them with an entertainment that they can look back upon with delight. This season Sells Floto will bring with them to Willimantic, Wednesday, June 26, and New London, Thursday, June 27, the world's greatest circus attraction, Tom Mix, himself, and his equally famous horse, Tony, together with his cowboys and cowgirls. The famous Tom and Tony will positively appear at every performance in the two cities.

In the big circus program there will be many new features including the great European sensation, Cliff Aeros, known throughout Europe as the Human Cannon Ball. In this thriller, a man is hurled from a 3,700 pound naval cannon into space—defying death in every performance.

Other famous circus acts include the one and only "Poodles" Hannaford and his family of riders; the brilliant Clarksonians and the Three Thrillers; flying acts, extraordinary; Terrell's 36 Liberty horses, and, of course, plenty of clowns and five herds of elephants.

Palace Theatre

After two tremendously successful engagements on Broadway, first as a stage play and more recently as a talking movie, "The Squall" blew into Norwich last night and landed at the Palace theater. It is another distinct triumph for the talking picture and is everything that the management of the Palace claimed it to be.

Judged purely from a sound and dialogue standpoint "The Squall" ranks high from any angle it is viewed. The voices have been recorded dramatically and naturally, the music has been synchronized adeptly and the general effect one of realism and authenticity. Interesting customs and manners of Hungarian middle-class people and picturesque gypsy bands has been transplanted in shadow and sound making an ensemble of perfect action and audible entertainment.

A ghost scare story, replete with chills and thrills, "Cold Shivers," is furnishing the laughter spot on the program at the Palace theatre. It is a short feature all-talking comedy, the latest in the series of Jack White talking comedies being made at the Educational Studios.

Other short features on this program include a Pathe Sound News which gives in scene and sound the latest events of the world, the latest Grantland Rice "Sportlight" the vim and pep of our youth and Pathe Sound Revue the wonder reel of filmland.

Something entirely new in the matter of murder mystery stories comes to the all-talking screen in "Thru Different Eyes," Fox Movetone production, directed by John G. Blystone.

"Thru Different Eyes," based on the story by Milton Gropper, who also wrote the dialogue, in conjunction with Tom Barry, is expected to be the most important all-dialog drama of 1929 and is the forthcoming attraction at the Palace theatre.

Mary Duncan and Warner Baxter are co-featured with the supporting cast a very formidable one, including Gavin Gordon, recent recruit from the Broadway legitimate stage; Natalie Moore-head, another stage recruit; Donald Gallaher, Sylvia Sydney and Florence Lake.

Broadway Theatre

Eddie Dowling, "Broadway's Favorite Son," who is credited by his friends with never having been associated with a "flop" production on the stage, seems to have carried this personal tradition to the silver-sheet, for his first all-talking venture at the Broadway theatre last night was received with more than ordinary enthusiasm.

"The Rainbow Man," his initial attempt in the movies, is the kind of audible-screen material that the public likes. It has romance, pathos, comedy, action; and sparkling catchy melodies which are intelligently played and sung as part of the plot.

Dowling wrote the story which forms the basis for the plot, wrote the lyrics for James Hanley's melodies, and performed the leading role. The film therefore, is not only all-talking, but it is nearly all all-Dowling.

The plot has to do with a small-time minstrel man who meets a little girl in a southern town and falls in love with her. He loses his job through a misunderstanding, and goes to New York, penniless, to hunt for work. After many heart-breaks he finds a job, returns to the southern town with his minstrel troupe again, and one day sees the girl he had deserted in the audience. He stops in the middle of the song and pleads for the girl's love while the audience thinks it is part of the act. The ending is a happy one.

Marian Nixon as the girl and Frankie Darro as the little orphan whom he adopts, are Dowling's main supports in the film. Sam Hardy and Lloyd Ingraham contribute some intelligent acting in their minor roles.

S. B. PALMER TAKES LEADERSHIP IN SALVATION ARMY BUDGET APPEAL

Captain Horace Weatherly, who for six years has been connected with Salvation army headquarters at Boston, came to this city at the middle of last week to make arrangements for the annual appeal in Norwich for $5,000, which the organization needs to take care of the local worthy poor and needy, and also to continue its religious and other charitable activities in Norwich during the coming year. Captain Weatherly has seen a number of prominent citizens, who are friends of the Salvation army and who yearly enlist in helping to raise the fund the organization needs to carry on its worthy activities in Norwich, and they assured him that they will give him most hearty co-operation in the coming appeal.

Shepard B. Palmer, who for years has been a steady friend and supporter of Salvation army and a believer in the faithful service which it renders, accepted the chairmanship of the appeal. Captain Weatherly was highly gratified with Mr. Palmer's sincerity and interest and with his promise that he will do everything in his power to help make the appeal a success, and that he will enlist all of his friends to help in the campaign. Mr. Palmer expressed his confidence that a large number of people know the value of the service rendered by the Salvation army and are earnest in their support of the organization; Mr. Palmer thereon based the hope that the $5,000 needed to continue the Salvation army service during the year can be raised by an appeal through the mail without placing the burden of intensive personal solicitation upon a few citizens who are ever prominently engaged in the promoting the civic and charitable activities in the city. The mail campaign form of appeal had been tried in a number of cities in New England and was found to give satisfaction. An outstanding feature of the mail campaign was that it reached a considerable number of people who were unable to make large contributions, but who nevertheless desired to make a small contribution to help along the valuable service rendered by the organization. These contributions would not have been reached by personal solicitation due to the large organization it would have entailed to cover all the small donations.

Enlisted with Mr. Palmer in the coming campaign are a large committee of charitable citizens of Norwich who will function as an advisory committee to help in putting the appeal over the top. Captain Weatherly also received a tentative promise from a prominent citizen connected with a local bank to serve as treasurer during the appeal and to take care of fund of the Salvation army during the entire year. The names of the advisory committee and the treasurer will be made public in the next few days.

In accepting the chairmanship Mr. Palmer said in part: "While the work in the office has a claim upon every minute of my time, I nevertheless could not stay away from answering the call of the Salvation army, and I shall give up all my spare time to help in this worthwhile work. The Salvation army is asking the people of Norwich and vicinity to support a service rendered to the worthy poor, to the sick and needy, and to the stranger who finds himself stranded in Norwich without any means of support and without a friend to whom to turn for a friendly helping hand. The Salvation army performs a service which no other organization in the city is equipped to render, and it is recognized as a friend of the unfortunates who are in need of sympathy and advice, and a kind helping hand without feeling humiliated in their unfortunate circumstances. These sufferers usually come to the Salvation army worker and confide their trouble and misfortunes and are met with Christian kindness, with friendly advice and with material help. This humanitarian service brings to the unfortunate renewed hope and courage to continue in the struggle of life in the hour of their adversity. In my interest in the work done by the Salvation army in Norwich and vicinity I have learned that its workers have made a large number of contacts during last year, some of which are as follows: Persons assisted in one way or another, 139; garments given to people who were in need of clothes, 219; shoes provided for women and children, 49 pairs; groceries provided for various periods, to 385 families; meals were provided to 42 transient strangers and some of them were placed in the factories in the city and vicinity, others were helped until they could find ways of leaving the city, or were given transportation to neighboring places. In the services of attending the sick, Captain and Mrs. Day visited 1040 homes and spent 936 hours in various services to the sufferers. The religious services conducted by the Salvattion army during last year consisted of 371 meetings attended by 8,615 adults. There were also held 252 junior meetings with an attendance of 3,520; and at the open air meeting the people who attended is estimated to have numbered 18,597. With such a record of service the Salvation army has earned the good will and the support of all charitable people in Norwich and vicinity, irrespective of race, creed and nationality. The service of the Salvation army is entirely non-sectarian and its servants are ever ready to minister to the needs of every unfortunate irrespective of his or her denomination or affiliation."

By the end of the week Captain Weatherly expects to tabulate the names of all people who contributed to the Salvation army in former years and to have the letter of appeal ready to be mailed. The appeal will begin on Monday, July 1, and will continue for two weeks. A number of churches in Norwich and vicinity promised to enlist the interest of their members in behalf of the appeal and Captain Weatherly looks forth for material support to come from the factory workers and the school children in Norwich and neighboring schools. In the experience of the Salvation army in Norwich in former years it was found that the contributions of the factory workers and the enthusiasm of the school children to be of service during the drive was of material support in raising the amount for which the organization appealed.

TWO DRASTIC MEASURES IN INSURANCE LEGISLATION

A review of the legislation affecting insurance passed by the 1929 session of the Connecticut legislature includes two drastic measures, one aimed at unauthorized insurance companies and the other at insurance "twisting."

By the passage of the former bill the Connecticut insurance department was given an effective weapon in its campaign against unauthorized insurance, the so-called bootleg insurance evil. Under an existing law agents are forbidden to place insurance with companies not licensed to do business in Connecticut, the penalty being a fine and jail sentence. The new law provides penalties for aiding "any corporation, association or person not authorized to do business in this state in soliciting such business from residents of this state, by means of advertisements published in this state or by any other means." In other words, newspapers and periodicals which aid unauthorized companies in seeking business in Connecticut by publishing their advertisements and radio stations which broadcast their advertisements for business violate the law.

The law against insurance "twisting" provides a penalty for misrepresenting or making incomplete comparisons of an insurance policy for the purpose of inducing an insured to surrender his policy and to replace it with another. It prohibits any agent from misrepresenting in any way the conditions and settlements contained in any contract of fire, life, casualty, or other class of insurance. The practice of twisting insurance policies, once merely considered poor ethics by insurance agents, is thus made punishable as a misdemeanor.

Another new law authorizes fire insurance companies to insure "against intentional or other damage to, or loss of, property of any kind, real or personal." The purpose of this bill is to legalize the so-called "fine arts" coverage, which is an insurance extensively written by fire insurance companies on celebrated paintings and other works of art. It authorizes fire insurance companies to insure against loss or injury resulting from their storage as well as in transportation. It also legalizes various forms of property damage insurance.

Corporations insuring or guaranteeing titles to real estate situated in Connecticut are brought under the jurisdiction of the insurance laws and under the supervision of the insurance commissioner, by the passage of a bill to that effect.

Legislation was passed changing the expiration date of the license year of fraternal benefit societies from April 1st to May 1st to conform with the license year of other types of insurance companies.

Special acts were passed amending the charters of domestic insurance corporations. These acts involved mainly increases in capital stock authorizations and reductions in authorized par value of stock.

STANKEWICZ IN JAIL TO AWAIT TRIAL FOR ARSON

Probable cause being found Steve Stankewicz, 55, of Hallville, who was presented before Justice of the Peace Walter Tarbox at Preston Saturday morning on the charge of arson, was bound over to the next criminal term of the superior court in September. Failing to produce surety on his bond of $5,000 Stankewicz was locked up in the Norwich jail.

Stankewicz succeeded Thursday evening in burning down a shed and a barn, but failed in his attempt to destroy his former home at Preston, which he fired three times. At the time Stankewicz was under the influence of liquor and following his actions disappeared into the woods, where a search for him was conducted by state and local police. He was found and arrested in a stall at the barn of Arthur Eilai, Preston, on Friday morning.

In court the only statement Stankewicz made was that "I was crazy drunk and forgot everything."

NORWICH AERO CLUB TO TRY TO SECURE PLANE

A meeting of the Norwich Aero club was held last week in the armory. All officers were present. The constitution of the club, which has been reviewed by the American Society for Promotion of Aviation of New York, was returned with the seal and signatures of the president and secretary of the society attached. Activities to promote local interest in aviation were discussed. A ways and means committee, of three men, was appointed to investigate methods of raising funds for the purchase of a plane. The committee will report their finding at the next meeting. It has been definitely settled, it is stated, that the club would have no difficulty in obtaining the approval of Commissioner Knox for a club flying field.

TAFTVILLE

WEDDING

Greene-Heap

A pretty June wedding took place Saturday afternoon at 3 o'clock, at the residence of Mr. and Mrs Lee Heap of South Second avenue, when their daughter, Miss Elsie Heap became the bride of Harry Arnold Greene, the ceremony being performed by Rev. William Penner, pastor of the Taftville Congregational church, in the presence of the immediate families of the bride and groom. The house was attractively decorated with early summer flowers, and the living room, where the ceremony took place, was banked roses, peonies and ferns. The double ring service was used.

Mendelsohn's wedding march was played by James Ringland, of New London, the bride's cousin, on the violin; and Miss Edith Louise Heap, sister of the bride at the piano. The maid of honor was Miss Flossie M. Meyer, and the best man was Harry Baldwin of Plainfield, a cousin of the bride.

The bride wore a gown of white crepe chiffon and carried a bouquet of white roses, carnations, snapdargon and lilies-of-the valley. Miss Meyer was gowned in rose crepe chiffon and carried a sheaf of pink and yellow gladioli and snapdragon.

Following the marriage service, a buffet luncheon was served; and during the afternoon the newly married couple left for a motor trip to Niagara Falls. Upon their return they are to reside in a newly furnished home at 20 South Second avenue. The bride for a travelling costume wore a tan silk ensemble with hand painted hat to match.

Mr. Greene is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. John Greene of Centerville, R. I., and is second hand in the No. 2 carding department of the Ponemah mills. His bride, who was the recipient of many beautiful and useful gifts, has always made her home in the village, and has been employed in the office of the same company.

Funeral services for Joseph Kramiscz were held Saturday morning at his late home on South Third avenue, followed by prayers for the dead at Sacred Heart church, read by Rev. Francis X. Chicoine. The bearers were Victoria Sydlo, Mary Walusiak, Mary Ulewiscz and Helen Wanczsk. Burial was in the Sacred Heart cemetery on the Old Canterbury turnpike. Undertaker George G. Grant was in charge of the funeral arrangements.

Mr. and Mrs. James Broughton entertained a number of friends Saturday evening in honor of their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Rennard who were recently married and are residing on Bushnell road. During the evening there were humorous recitations by Mr. Broughton, and Mrs. John Hargreaves; songs by Joseph Bibby, Mrs. Bibby and John W. Mather; and piano selections by Russell McNeeley. A mock marriage was performed by Mrs. Arthur Oddie as justice-of-the-peace; the contracting parties being Mrs. Fred Laycock as the groom and Mrs. Frank Hargreaves as the bride. Arthur Oddie was best man and Mrs. William Shaw bridesmaid. Consternation developed however, when it was discovered that through error, the justice had married the bride to the best man. Refreshments of sandwiches, cake, fancy cookies, ice cream and punch were served. About 40 were present.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold Heap and their little daughter Joan Lee Heap of Adams, who were in town for the Greene-Heap wedding, have returned to their home.

Mr. and Mrs. Harold M. Pingree and little son Harold M. Jr., of Goodyear, were Sunday guests of Mr. Pingree's parents, Mr. and Mrs. A. E. Pingree and family of North C street.

Over the weekend Mr. and Mrs. Wilfred Smith of North B street have been entertaining Mrs. Smith's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Laramie of Plainfield.

Miss Hazel Greene who has been the guest of her brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. John F. Greene and family of South Second avenue, to attend the Greene-Heap wedding on Saturday, has returned to her home in Providence, R. I.

Remember the Sabbath Day was the theme and text used by Rev. George Warren Potter at the morning service in the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church yesterday. The junior choir under the direction of Doris Rose sang an anthem. Doris Rose was the organist in the absence of Mrs. Lewis E. Aldrich.

The stereopticon lecture "Among the Thatched Huts of Rhodesia" was given by Rev. Mr. Potter at the evening service. About 60 hand colored slides were shown by Ralph Smith who operated the stereopticon machine.

Wolf Cub Picnic

The Wolf Cub Pack of Scouts connected with the Norwich Town Methodist Episcopal church enjoyed an outing Saturday afternoon at Wood's picnic grove on the New London turnpike.

The cubs hiked to the grove from their meeting place and after a rest period, games and races were enjoyed.

A large fire was then made and each cub cooked his own lunch by roasting hot dogs which were greatly enjoyed. After a sing while seated in the grove the return hike was made. The cubs were in charge of the cubmaster, Rev. George Warren Potter.

At the Boy Scouts hike and dog roast held by Troop 3 at Edward Howe's farm, Lewis E. Aldrich had charge of the songs around the campfire and Walter D. Kelley, a member of the troop committee, also accompanied the scouts and did his bit by story telling at the camp fire.

There was a large attendance at the annual cradle roll party of the First Congregational church held Saturday afternoon on the spacious lawn at the southerly side of the church. The invitations extended to the little tots and their mothers, brought together a company of more than 50 small children, which with the adults present numbered nearly 70.

Under the direction of the leader, Miss Bernice Underwood, the children were delightfully entertained from three to five o'clock. Miss Underwood had the assistance of three young women of the church, Misses Rose Durr, Lucille Browning and Louise Sterry, who saw to it, that every child had a good time. Those children who were old enough to run around, indulged in several out-of-door games. This cool and shady spot afforded an excellent place for this gathering which included several infants.

The first feature of the programme was when the mite boxes (small cardbord cradles) were opened by the little folks, revealing a total of about $8. There are yet more cradles to be turned in by those unable to be present, thus making a much larger amount. The latter part of the afternoon, Miss Underwood and her assistants Misses Durr, Browning and Sterry, served everyone present ice cream and fancy wafers.

As a special gift Miss Underwood presented each child a candy doll which brought the party to a close.

Several boys and girls of the Sunday school rendered valuable assistance in carrying a large number of chairs from the chapel to the church lawn, and again returning them to their proper place.

Miss nderwood was assisted in covering expenses by the Troop-to-class and the Men's class, connected with the Sunday school, as well as a few friends who gave personal contributions. This party is looked forward to each year by those children whose ages range from infants in their mother's arms to about eight years of age. Miss Underwood who takes much interest in the children has been the efficient leader for the past four years.

POETRY

Lord, Take Away Pain

A Poem Said to Have Been Found on the Wall of a Denver Hospital.

The cry of man's anguish went up unto God,
"Lord, take away pain!
The shadow that darkens the world
Thou hast made—
The close-clinging chain
That strangles the heart; the burden that weighs
On wings that would soar—
Lord, take away pain from the world
Thou hast made—
That is love—then the more!"

Then answered the Lord to the cry of His world:
"Shall I take away pain,
And with it the power of the soul to endure,
Made strong by its strain?
Shall I take away pity, that knits near to heart,
And sacrifice sight?
Will ye lose all your heroes that lift from the fire
White brows to the sky?
Shall I take away love, that redeems with a price,
And smiles at its loss?
Can ye spare from your lives that would climb unto mine
The Christ on His cross?"

Fruit Gladness

Strawberries creeping over the waking earth,
Currants ripening on bushes shortly after,
Cherries shaking their trees with mirth
Blue grapes climbing, climbing in autumn laughter.

Flushed waxed pears, melons with tough
ened hide,
Plums with smooth jackets and purple cheeks,
Plumed pineapples that wisely choose to ride
In southern fields when snows have claimed the peaks.

Oranges and grapefruit, poised golden spheres,
And round, juicy apples of pleasant taste.
What prayer pattern from the swift spinning years,
What more luscious girdle for the world's half waist?

Everything had been all right until one of the women decided to give her love bird a bath. The love bird was then found to be an English sparrow. The other women who had bought the love birds tried the bath experiment at once and in every case the result was the same. NO TIDINGS OF SPANISH AVIATORS ON OCEAN FLIGHT

Naval Craft and Airplanes Are Scouring the Seas in the Vicinity of the Azores—If the Plane Has Been Wrecked It Will Bring to 25 the Number of Lives Sacrificed in Attempted Transatlantic Flights in the Last Three Years—It Would Be the Eighth Plane to Start Out Across the Atlantic Never to Be Seen Again.

MADRID, June 24—(AP)—Naval craft and airplanes tonight were scouring the seas in the vicinity of the Azores for trace of the four Spanish aviators of whom there had been no definite word for almost three days.

An unconfirmed report that wreckage, with no trace of life about it, had been sighted in these waters by a British freighter gave the only ray of hope in the gloomy situation. Four Spanish destroyers sped from Ferrol in an attempt to verify this report while the Portuguese gunboat Zaire was refueling at Horta to continue the search it had begun on Saturday.

Premier Primo de Rivera, who unwittingly had given false hope to Spain on Saturday by authorizing the publication of a message then supposed to have come from Major Ramon Franco, leader of the flight, today appeared most anxious when he entered the cabinet meeting. He said the reports he had were contradictory and that the outlook for the safety of the four fliers was discouraging.

British Charge d'Affaires Ramsey at the request of the government asked that aritish airplane carrier be sent from Gibraltar with planes to search from the Portuguese coast where the plane was last definitely reported to the Azores.

Public anxiety was great because Major Franco had been a national hero since his flight in 1926 to South America. On the present flight he was accompanied by one of his old crew, Captain Ruiz de Alda, and by Major Eduardo Gallarza and Sergeant Mechanic Pedro Madariaga.

"There was no end of offers of private aid in the search. Pablo Rada, mechanic who accompanied Major Franco on his 1926 flight, asked for a plane that he might seek his beloved commander. The Italian naval attache here offered the services of a large seaplane at Barcelona and a Spanish aviation officer, Lieutenant Navarro, was immediately assigned to accompany the Italian crew on the search.

The Spanish government requested all merchantmen to keep a sharp lookout while traversing the areas in which the plane may have come down and the steamship Marques de Comillas, en route from New York to Seville, deviated from its course to follow more exactly the supposed route of the aviators.

The four Spanish destroyers which left Ferrol at sight a. m. today under full steam were the Alsedo, Velasco, Juan Lazaga and the Sanchez-Barcaiztegui.

At the cabinet meeting tonight the minister of marine deplored the fact that a false message announcing arrival of the plane at the Azores which was made public by the government had delayed starting a search for 36 hours.

The premier telephoned the bad news to King Alfonso at Paris who had left Spain when it was believed that all was well.

The families of the missing men have had little sleep for two nights as they await some definite report. A brother of Captain de Alda asked The Associated Press and government officials to keep them informed if anything definite was learned.

The meteorological department tonight said that weather between Spain and the Azores was favorable to flights by searching airplanes.

King Alfonso has shown by his frequent telegrams from Paris his intense interest in the search and the premier and other ministers of the state are keeping in close contact with the efforts.

SEVEN PLANES LOST; 21 LIVES SACRIFICED

NEW YORK, June 24—(AP)—If Major Ramon Franco and his three companions are lost, as now seems probable in their attempted flight from Spain to the United States, it will bring to 25 the number of lives sacrificed in attempted transatlantic flights in the last three years.

Franco's plane would be the eighth to start out across the Atlantic ocean, never to be seen again. Other attempted transatlantic flights have ended in failure but the planes either turned back in good time or their pilots and crews were fortunate enough to be saved by ships at sea after being forced down short of their goal.

Two companions of Capt. Rene Fonck were the first to sacrifice their lives in a vain attempt to cross the ocean by air. In taking off from Roosevelt field on September 21, 1927, on a projected flight to Paris their biplane crashed and two men were killed when the gasoline tanks exploded.

Six planes were swallowed up by the sea during 1927, and one early in 1928. A list of the planes and the date of their disappearances follow:

May 5, 1927—Capt. St. Romas and two companions in South Atlantic in attempted flight from Africa to South America.

May 8, 1927—Captain Charles Nungesser and Francois Coli lost in attempted flight from Paris to New York.

Aug. 31, 1927—Princess Lowenstein-Werthein, Capt. Leslie Hamilton and Col. P. F. Minchin lost in attempted flight from Upavon, England, to Canada.

Sept. 6, 1927—Monoplane Old Glory lost in north Atlantic, with crew of Lloyd Bertaud, Philip Payne and J. D. Hill.

Sept. 7, 1927—Monoplane Sir John Carling, Harbor Grace, N. F., to London, lost in north Atlantic, with Capt. Tully and Lieut. Metcalf.

Dec. 13, 1927—The Dawn, from Harbor Grace to Denmark lost with Mrs. Frances Grayson one of four on board.

March 13, 1928—Capt. Walter R. G. Hinchliffe and the Hon. Elsie Mackay lost in attempted flight from England to North America.

LONDON, June 24—(AP)—The second parliament to sit under a labor government in the long history of the United Kingdom reassembles tomorrow, but the only business for the day is the election of a speaker.

LONDON, June 24—(AP)—United States Ambassador Hugh S. Dawes, central figure in the dramatic international developments of the last week.

COASTWISE PASSENGER BOATS DELAYED BY FOG

BOSTON, June 24—(AP)—Heavy fog, which has blanketed most of New England for 72 hours, retreated outside Boston harbor late today just far enough to enable delayed ships to enter and leave although the weather remained thick at sea.

Coast wise passenger boats and liners due in Boston this morning, were delayed an average of six hours at the entrance to the harbor or at Quarantine. They lay at anchor in rather crowded conditions until afternoon, but there were no accidents. By one o'clock the fog had lifted sufficiently to permit the steamer Boston of the Eastern Steamship lines, due here at 8 a. m., to pick her way to her berth. She had been fog-bound at the Cape Cod canal.

The Furness liner, Nova Scotia, from Liverpool and Halifax, N. S., which had been anchored outside all night, came slowly in with several other liners including the Dutch steamer, Blydendyk, from the Orient, and the Leyland liner, Caledonian, bound for Liverpool from Philadelphia and New York. The Fairfax, from Baltimore and Norfolk, did not dock her 85 passengers until 4 p. m., six hours after she was due.

One steamer, the Dorchester, from Philadelphia, with 75 delegates to the National Association of Real Estate Boards convention here, managed to slip through the heavy blanket on schedule. Outgoing steamers were not appreciably delayed late today but the Dorothy Bradford omitted her daily trip to Provincetown, Cape Cod.

CHANGES RECOMMENDED IN THE HOUSE TARIFF BILL

WASHINGTON, June 24—(AP)—Radical changes in the house tariff bill, provisions for termination of the reciprocal trade treaty with Cuba, higher rates on wool, and levying of duties on agricultural imports from the Philippines, were recommended at hearings on the measure today before three senate finance sub-committees.

Chester H. Gray, legislative representative of the American farm bureau federation, suggested abrogation of the Cuban American treaty under which each country grants the other preferential tariff rates on a long list of commodities. He did not detail the reasons, but said he would discuss the subject at a later hearings.

Appearing before the sub-committee on agriculture, Gray said farm products coming into the United States from the Philippines, including sugar, should be dutiable. The house rejected the proposal for tariffs against imports into the United States from its possessions.

Questioned by Senators Smoot, republican, Utah, and Harrison, democrat, Mississippi, Gray said his organization was neither for nor against the debenture plan sponsored by the National Grange as a part of the tariff bill.

GIBSON MAY BE CALLED TO CONFER WITH HOOVER

WASHINGTON, June 24. — (AP) — Hugh S. Gibson, American ambassador to Belgium and head of the American delegation to the league of nations preparatory disarmament commission, may be called back to the United States later this summer for conference with President Hoover and state department officials on naval questions.

While no definite plans have been made for the return of the ambassador, who is now in London conferring with Ambassador Dawes, state department officials said that he probably will be asked to present his views personally to the president on disarmament questions before the next meeting of the preparatory commission which is scheduled for next fall. Personal conferences in Washington, it is believed, would be of greater result than exchanges of cablegrams and diplomatic dispatches between Gibson and the government officials.

LINERS WERE UNABLE TO PENTRATE THE FOG

NEW YORK, June 24—(AP)—Four trans-Atlantic liners were anchored as far out as Sandy Hook and Gravesend Bay tonight unable to penetrate a heavy fog which extended from Nantucket to Quarantine. They were the Franconia, New York, Dresden and Corinthia.

The Minnekahda made her pier tonight when the fog lifted for a time in the lower bay. She was followed closely by the Baltic. The four still outside sent word that they would not attempt the passage to their piers until tomorrow.

The Paris was feeling her way in tonight with the aid of two pilot tugs.

FIRE DESTROYED BARN NEAR WOLCOTT CENTER

WATERBURY, June 24—(AP)—Damage estimated at more than $10,000 was caused early this evening, when flames of an unknown origin totally destroyed a large barn, a portion of the family dwelling and a small outhouse on the farm of W. E. Pritchard, near Wolcott Center. Mr. Pritchard was the only one at home at the time of the discovery of the blaze, his wife at present residing in Plainville.

TO ATTEMPT REFUELING ENDURANCE FLIGHT

ROOSEVELT FIELD, N. Y., June 24—(AP)—Martin Jensen announced tonight that he plans to take off tomorrow afternoon in the monoplane "Three Musketeers" in a new attempt at a refueling endurance record.

Jensen said Mrs. Jensen and William Ulsch will accompany him.

Mayor Frank Hague Of Jersey City Arrested

Charged With Contempt of Legislature For Refusing to Answer Questions.

TRENTON, N. J., June 24—(AP)—Mayor Frank Hague of Jersey City, vice chairman of the national democratic committee, was arrested tonight on a warrant charging contempt of the legislature for refusing to answer questions concerning the acquisition of his reputed wealth. He was given 24 hours in which to obtain a writ of habeas corpus, remaining during that period in the custody of Marine Dewitt, sergeant-at-arms of the state senate.

The arrest was the second Hague experienced in his battle with the law-makers. His first was last fall, when he defeated the subpoena of the case investigating committee. The original body which inquired into charges of political corruption in the mayor's administration and leadership.

Today's action was authorized by chapter 1 of the laws of 1929, an act introduced by Senator Clarence E. Case, chairman of the original committee, after Hague attacked the power of the legislature to cause his arrest last year. The maximum penalty he would face if the legislature votes a conviction, would be six months in jail.

CONFESSED THE THEFT OF TWO MAIL POUCHES

NEW HAVEN, June 24.—(AP)— Asko Burgess, Ansonia mail messenger, under suspicion since last Thursday, when two mail pouches, one containing $69,000, disappeared, confessed this afternoon that he had stolen them. He made his confession to Postal Inspectors J. J. Breslin and T. P. Cronin.

U. S. Commissioner Robert H. Alcorn, before whom he was arraigned, remanded him to New Haven county jail, to await action of the federal grand jury, in default of $7,500 bail.

Burgess' confession led the postal authorities, together with Ansonia police, to make a vain search of a wooded section of Ansonia in an effort to find the pouch which, containing checks, was being sent to the Merchants National bank of New Haven by the Ansonia Electric company, at the time of its disappearance. Burgess had given this wooded section as the hiding place for the check pouch.

The other bag, consigned to the Ansonia National bank by the Federal Reserve bank of Boston and containing $49,000 in $10 bills and $29,000 in one and two dollar bills, was found last night in a wood along the banks of the Housatonic river, near Ansonia. The inspectors, following Burgess, saw him stop momentarily near the spot and then pass on. They followed him further, but when they saw he was wandering aimlessly, they returned to the spot and after a short search, discovered the pouch. The cash was intact.

Burgess is said by the postal authorities to have ascribed the theft to drunkenness but they are inclined to the attitude that he is "making too much of the liquor drinking, as a subterfuge." Postmaster Alfred W. Jeynes said it was true Burgess had been drinking, but "not enough so that he would not know what he is doing."

HOOVER TO CONFER ON FARM BOARD PERSONNEL

WASHINGTON, June 24—(AP)—Refreshed by a week end at his Blue Ridge mountain fishing lodge in Virginia, President Hoover upon his return to Washington today lost no time in getting to his desk to study the governmental problems confronting him.

Foremost among these is the appointment of the federal farm board created by the agricultural relief bill to which he affixed his signature hardly more than a week ago.

Anxious that the farm board should be organized as quickly as possible, Mr. Hoover took with him to his fishing preserve a long list of names recommended for places on it. Secretary Hyde of the agriculture department was his guest on the trip and together they went over the list. How much progress was made in the process of elimination, however, was not revealed.

The president is expected to hold a series of conferences during the next few days, upon the personnel of the farm board. Announcement of its selection is looked for either at the end of this week or sometime next week.

SHEFFIELD, Mass., June 24—(AP)—Three children and a man were killed and four other persons injured here today, when a train struck an automobile truck at a grade crossing. The children were all residents of New York city and were vacationing at a farm here, having been sent by a Jewish charitable organization.

The dead were Ruth Kline, 12, of 197 Burdington street; her sister, Sylvia, 11; Sadie Saigo, 17, of 99 Clinton street and Hyman Melamed, 34, of Asbury Falls, driver of the truck.

Mrs. Ida Finkelstein, 38, of 139 South Fourth street, Brooklyn, N. Y., was dying at the Fairview hospital, Great Barrington. No hope was held for her recovery. Others injured were Mrs. Finkelstein's son, Hyman, 4; Julius Lansbourg, 7, of 2157 Pacific street and his brother Nathan 5, and Jack Kline, 9, a brother of the dead girls.

The children, with Mrs. Finkelstein, had come here yesterday for a two weeks' vacation. Melamed had to go to the railroad station for some baggage this afternoon and invited the party to ride with him. As the truck was crossing the tracks at Walsh's crossing, it was struck by a Pittsfield-to-New York express in charge of Engineer Michael Coffey, of Pittsfield, and Conductor William Stikes of New York city.

Abraham Grass, 12, was standing on a running board of the truck and when he saw the train approaching he leaped to safety. The crossing was but one quarter of a mile from the Melamed farm, where the party had been staying, and other children at the farm saw the accident.

The injuries to those killed at the scene were severe and work of identification was difficult.

Of the hospital patients, Mrs. Finkelstein's condition was the only one which aroused concern although the injuries to the children were painful.

STRESEMANN REPLIES TO NATIONALIST CRITICISM

Defends the Young Plan, Stating That It Makes Germany's Burden Lighter Than the Dawes Plan and Declared That Was the Only Question at Issue—Asserted That the President and Cabinet Resented the Treaty of Versailles, Especially the Clause Acknowledging Germany's Sole Guilt For the War.

BERLIN, June 24.—(AP)—Dr. Gustav Stresemann, German foreign minister, in a vigorous reply to severe nationalist criticism, told the reichstag, today that Germany would not stand for the installation of a commission in the Rhineland as the price of its evacuation.

He answered nationalist objections to the newly evolved Young plan by declaring that the plan made Germany's burden definitely lighter than the Dawes plan and that this was the only question at issue.

Then further to take the wind out of the sails of the nationalists he announced that President Von Hindenburg as well as the cabinet stood behind the manifestations this week against the treaty of Versailles, especially the clause acknowledging Germany's sole guilt for the war.

The foreign minister repeatedly declared to the nationalists that when they were in power they also could not do otherwise than to fulfill Germany's international obligations.

The nationalist policy of first proving that the Dawes plan was unworkable, he said, would have led to the destruction of the industrial middle class and would have been accompanied by consequences as dire as the Ruhr controversy of 1923.

Despite his recent illness, the foreign minister was in excellent condition oratorically and gave no impression of weakness although a secretary, as a precautionary measure, placed a chair near him. He used a manuscript as the basis for his address, but frequently departed from it to reply to questions from the floor.

When the debate was finished for the day the nationalists introduced a motion of no confidence against the foreign minister, declaring his five years in that post had been a failure.

Count Westarp, leader of the nationalists, declared the Young plan would enslave future generations and that what made it worse was the fact that it would be accepted by Germany instead of being forced upon her as he claimed the Dawes plan was. He charged the government parties with absolutist practices in choking off debate although the past months had been full of grave problems such as the minority question, the meeting of the reparations experts and the resignation of Dr. Albert Voegler, one of Germany's chief delegates.

Dr. Stresemann's only reference to the United States, an indirect one, was his answer to the nationalist charge that Germany was becoming a colony of France and England.

"No, we are not a colony of Frenchmen and Englishmen," he said. "To me it seems doubtful whether all Europe is not in danger of becoming a colony of those who are luckier than we. The fact that the colonists sat down together to work out amelioration for each other because others did not give them amelioration—that is something that cannot be removed from the history of the Paris negotiations."

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR GEN. BRAMWELL BOOTH

LONDON, June 24—(AP)—General William Bramwell Booth, second leader of the Salvation Army and its head until last winter, sleeps tonight by the side of the founder, his father, in a flower decked corner of Abney Park cemetery.

The funeral scene today will live in the history of the army as the epitomization of all that that religious social organization represents. There was no evidence of sadness. There was regret, but no sorrow, for as the army phrased it their general had been promoted to glory.

The funeral cortege approached the graveside to the tune of joyous hymns.

A platform covered with bright colors had been erected over the grave while all around was a carpet of summer flowers. Even the grave was lined with sweet peas.

The standard bearers of the procession made a circle around the grave, raising their banners high. Ten thousand voices answered the request of Commissioner Catherine Booth, daughter of the general, to sing the stirring music of the army. Then followed a moment of silence and prayer. Speaker after speaker told of their love for the general and the greatness of his work. There rested on the coffin the peaked army cap and spectacles of the general and a bible open at the place where he had last read.

During the ceremony Mrs. Booth sat motionless, her eyes fixed on the casket. Not until it was being lowered did her courage desert her for a moment, then a tear trickled down her face but she brushed it resolutely away.

YALE PROFESSOR DENIED RIGHT TO CITIZENSHIP

NEW HAVEN, June 24.—(AP)— Because of his conscientious scruples against swearing to a question of taking up arms in the defense of his country, Prof. Douglas C. MacIntosh, Dwight professor of theology at Yale Divinity school, was today refused admission to the citizenship of the United States by Judge Warren B. Burrows, of the naturalization court, in a preliminary hearing, the status of Prof. MacIntosh had been marked as questionable. When he appeared before the naturalization court, this morning, he requested citizenship admission under reservations.

After Prof. MacIntosh was sworn in by the clerk of courts he was asked to answer question on his preliminary naturalization papers, referring to the taking up of arms in defense of the United States, if it became necessary. Prof. MacIntosh replied that he would take up arms with the reservation that the war in which he was asked to serve should be what he considered a just cause. He said he could swear allegiance to the United States as well as he could to any country and following his allegiance he would owe no other country no other duty higher than to this country.

Prof. MacIntosh told Judge Burrows in reply to questioning by the court, as to his willingness to fight for the United States, that he was willing to fight if he considered the cause just, but if he did not consider it just, he would refuse to fight.

Judge Burrows, in refusing Prof. MacIntosh to citizenship, said that the president had invested in him the power to command our fighting units in time of war. At such an emergency as war, he said, he needed absolute power over every citizen, and to allow any citizen the use of his own discretion would open the way to presumption by every citizen as to the justness or unjustness of war, and would leave the president without any power whatever.

Prof. MacIntosh was born in Canada and was graduated from McMasters university in 1903. He joined the faculty of Yale in 1909. During the World war, he saw active service in France as a chaplain in the Canadian army and later as a Y. M. C. A. worker with the A. E. F.

TUNNEY FILES ANSWER IN BREACH OF PROMISE SUIT

BRIDGEPORT, June 24.— (AP) — James J. (Gene) Tunney, retired heavyweight champion, in an answer today to the $500,000 breach of promise suit brought against him by Mrs. Katherine King Fogarty, of Fort Worthy, Tex., and New York city, denied that he had ever asked her to marry him, but said that he had paid her sums exceeding $25,000 to relinquish all claims on him."

The eve of the second Dempsey-Tunney fight, Billy Gibson, the retired champion's manager, paid Mrs. Fogarty $1 to sign a waiver of claims on Tunney, and on the eve of the Tunney-Heeney fight, $35,000 to sign another release according to the answer, the payments being made as "a matter of good business judgment."

All her "claims" at the time, it was further said, were "baseless," but Manager Gibson feared publicity Mrs. Fogarty might give to them would hurt Tunney's prestige and result in lowered gate receipts and would so unnerve the champion as to jeopardize his chances of winning his bouts.

The answer asked that Mrs. Fogarty be compelled to abide by her waivers and that she be forever restrained from further annoying Tunney with law suits. The allegation was made that she has been seeking to exploit her acquaintanceship with Tunney for purposes of personal prestige and financial gain.

No specific mention is made of the alleged marriage proposal or acceptance, but a general denial is made in the legal phraseology of "the defendant denies the truth of the matter in the plaintiff's complaint." Mrs. Fogarty charges Tunney with having proposed in 1925, shortly after her divorce from John S. Fogarty of Fort Worth, and says she accepted him. He then married another person" — Polly Lauder.

Over $150 has so far been contributed, the fire company having given $15, the borough $15, the town $5 and several of the leading merchants have contributed $10 each. Five reasons for sugar in the diet

Scientist talks about this healthful food

ONE OF THE great food scientists of the country told us not long ago, "Sugar not only has an important use in the diet of nearly everyone—it has five distinct uses.

"First of all, it is a great conserver of many foods, especially fruits. In the second place, as a flavoring substance, it is most valuable in making nearly all foods much more appetizing. In this way it leads to the eating of a more balanced diet. The third point I would call to your attention about sugar is its value as a satiation factor. Ending a meal with a sweet gives a sense of satisfaction—of having had just enough.

"Perhaps the best known use of sugar is as a staple fuel for keeping the human body active. Sugar is more rapidly digested than starch, and it ranks with starch as a vital food for every normal person.

"The final point about sugar is its adaptability as an emergency fuel. Sugar is rapidly absorbed in the system."

It is always helpful to get the opinion of a recognized authority on any important subject. In a day when food fads are so much in evidence it is a part of wisdom to discover exactly how important sugar is in the diet of all of us.

The sensible way to well-being is to eat all kinds of healthful fresh and canned fruits and vegetables, sweetened to taste. Remember the value of puddings, ice creams, and cakes for dessert. A bit of sweet makes the meal complete. The Sugar Institute.

DANIELSON

THREE FINED AT SESSION OF TOWN COURT

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 24.—The town court, scheduled to do a lot of business this morning, completed only a necessary of disposition of the cases accumulated over the week end. Anson Maynard of East Killingly was fined $15 for having been intoxicated and $5 for breach of the peace, with costs, a total of $28.50. John Largesse of Putnam was fined $5 and costs, a total of $15.50 for failure to grant the right of way. Mitry Malek, a boy of 15 years of age was in court before Judge W. Fenner Woodward to face charges of operating, as a minor, an uninsured car and with driving without having an operator's license. He was fined $1.00 and costs for not operating with a license to do so. He is residing with his parents on a farm in the district east of here.

Philip Burnham will be before the town court Wednesday morning to answer to a charge that he was operating a car while intoxicated, the arrest by a state officer. Four years ago Burnham, whose people have been prominent in Jewett City for many years, was convicted of a similar charge. A similar charge is now pending against him in the Putnam city court. The case to be heard here Wednesday is the third of the kind in which Burnham as figured. The case pending against him in Putnam is scheduled for a hearing on July 2.

Before Judge George Torrey in the town court of Plainfield this morning the five men arrested at Moosup pond Saturday night after they had disobeyed the order of Deputy Game Warden C. L. Colburn of Canterbury to row the boat in which they were sitting, out on the surface of the lake, ashore that they might be checked up as to the number of fish they might have in their possession were all fined for their indiscretion. The men, Il engineer, of East Killingly. His field, were George Berger, Adolph E. Laflamme, Marshal Hinckley, Joseph Burton and Albert Melen. Each was fined $5 for breach of the peace, and $1.00 each for fishing without a license.

Showers came to grant some relief, but not too much to this section of Windham county today after hours of depressing heat. Plainfield got showers before noon today. Others came to Danielson and other parts of the town of Killingly during the afternoon hours. They were gentle, but quite heavy showers, with a minimum of thunder and lightning and a great booster for the crops that have suffered from lack of rain in this territory all through to present month.

Falling off in attendance that is the big factor in the abandonment of the Danielson twilight league baseball schedule in Danielson is charged by observers to the fact that there are so many competing attractions in the current age, and the automobile is rated by many as the chief cause. The season has been hot, watching a game not too comfortable a pastime with the broad highways of the vicinity inviting. Beginning with tonight, when the newly formed Eastern Connecticut league started its schedule with the Quinebaug Indians playing at Wauregan, Danielson will see less regularly than heretofore exhibitions of the diamond pastime, and for that reason may like the games the more.

There will be attendance from various parts of the county at the 92d annual Ashford Baptist Sunday school convention to be held in the Union Baptist church at East Killingly next Wednesday. The morning session will open at 10:30. Rev. Chester J. Armstrong, pastor of the Danielson Baptist church and also serving the church at East Killingly will conduct the devotional service. Addresses will be made by Rev. George F. Camp of Webster and Rev. Harding W. Gaylord of Danielson. The junior choir will sing and there will be solos by Edward Pinkham. A basket lunch will be enjoyed during the noon recess period. At the afternoon session the opening devotional service will be conducted by Rev. Henry E. Hodge, pastor of the Putnam Baptist church. At this session the principal address will be delivered by Rev. Walter E. Greene of Woodlawn, R. I., formerly pastor at East Killingly. Miss Eleatha Sheldon will sing a solo during the session.

A suggestion along the lines of keeping Danielson a tidy town that is receiving commendation is that sweepings from stores and sidewalks should be placed in refuse cans that have been provided by the borough instead of being swept into the gutter to litter up the street. Some do exercise care in disposing of this waste material, but much of it finds its way into the gutters to be blown about or whisked about by wheels of passing cars, leaving the street less neat than is desired.

Still going good as to making heat records, June ran the mercury up to 95 degrees during early afternoon of today in Danielson.

When Selectmen Charles A. Tillinghast, N. P. Gingras and Alcott B. Sayles assembled at their rooms in the town hall building this morning to open bids for the contract of removing 14 trees on the south side of Dabail residents of the town of Plainfield, them, that of Ivan P. Elfgren, civil park they found only one bid available, was $398, well within the appropriation of $700.

Yesterday, Mr. and Mrs. Everett A. Kimball of East Franklin street entertained Mr. and Mrs. Charles Eames and daughter Mildred, of Worcester, Mrs. Curtis Eames and daughter of Boston, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Moran and daughter Louise, of Brooklyn, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Dubuc of Danielson and Frank Kimball of New Britain. Refreshments of ice cream, sandwiches, cake and soda were served.

Another truck load of large size trout was delivered here today from a state hatchery for release in streams other than state-leased brooks. The releases now being made are stocking for the next year. The present trout fishing season closes next Sunday.

The attendance this morning at the opening sessions of the church vacation schools here indicated widespread interest among the young people.

A death in North Grosvenordale this morning was that of Mrs. Armanda Peterson, wife of Patrick L. Peterson. Mrs. Peterson's death followed a short illness. She was 55 years of age. Mrs. Peterson was a native of Sweden but came to the United States as a young woman and has lived in the village of North Grosvenordale for a number of years. She was active in social circles of the Swedish church of which she was an ardent adherent and through her church affiliations became widely known and held in high esteem by the residents of North Grosvenodale.

The mercury worked various pranks during cooling showers followed by sizzling hot spells of Monday's freakish weather. At noon the silver liquid in the thermometer soared in the vicinity of the 100 mark but took a flooring wallop with the appearance of a downpour of rain lasting for an hour. Old Sol broke through the clouds at two o'clock and again the mercury climbed to its sweltering pinnacle only to remain so for another hour when a second shower toppled it and sent it staggering to a comfortable temperature of 73 degrees.

From the Day Kimball hospital this afternoon came a report that Fred Cournoyer of Franklin, Mass., injured Friday in a railroad work train accident at East Thompson continued to improve today. Four victims of an auto mishap in Killingly Sunday, admitted to the hospital late Sunday afternoon were discharged this morning.

As the voters of the city prepare for another trip to the polls on next Thursday to cast their ballots at a special city meeting called for the appropriation of $65,000 in bonds to be used in financing the reconstruction work of the piping system of the water department and the erection of a one million gallon steel storage tank, many are interested in what the result of the meeting will be. Several have gone so far as to forecast the ultimate outcome, and in each case unanimous approval of the plans by the voters as outlined by the common council, is prophesied. An opinion generally expressed in all circles where the three year old water question is discussed is to the effect that a speedy settlement should be reached. The old forces of opposition, who supported a concrete reservoir of two million gallon capacity in the campaign a year ago have seemingly ceased to exist leaving few or no obstacles to be overcome in Thursday's vote casting by the board of water commissioners.

Earl Scott, member of a small travelling carnival was arrested Sunday evening by Officer Edward Benoit of the local police after he (Scott) had committed a simple assault upon a female member of the entertainers group. In default of his fine Scott was committed to the county jail in Brooklyn to work out the fine.

WESTERLY

MEXICAN TAXI DRIVER RELEASED BY POLICE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., June 24.—Ricardo Flurez, Mexican taxi driver of New York's Chinatown, who was the driver of a coach owned by Hudson Lee, New York Chinaman, of the restaurant at 2 Dyer street and 4 Bowery, New York, which had as passengers four Chinese and a white girl bound to New York, when in a collision Thursday night on the Boston post road with the Ford coupe of William J. Hartley of Westerly, returned to New York on the 1:45 New Haven express Monday afternoon.

Previous to his release from the Westerly police station where he was taken with the other occupants, the Chinese having been taken to Providence and Boston by U. S. immigration authorities and the girl, Miss Susie Murphy, allowed to return to New York on Saturday, Flurez was required to sign a release and also an agreement to make good on a $200 bond required in a civil suit, should the owner, Lee, fail to make good. The automobile continued to remain under attachment in a Westerly garage.

Several efforts were made, unsuccessfully, by the Mexican taxi driver, to telephone New York friends and business associates and up to Monday noon letters and telegrams remained unanswered. While in custody of the Westerly police the Chinatown taxi driver gave much information as to his early Mexican residence. About 1907, when he was only 16 years of age, he said that he had seen seven days and seven nights of fighting in the capital city of Mexico. Leaving the interior of the country he had stolen a ride on a steam train to the seacoast where he had shipped as a seaman on a merchant ship after he had reached New Orleans by water. As he would have to go back to the sea for a livelihood, he declared that he would willingly work hard to pay even $1000 rather than have his New York taxi license suspended and be unable to drive in the city. He also added that he lacked but a few months of securing an American citizenship and would also be unable and unwilling to return to his native country, Mexico.

WEDDING

The First Baptist church was most attractively decorated with green foliage, plants and flowers for the wedding, at 4 o'clock Monday afternoon, of Miss Marion Clara Bentley, daughter of the late Latham N. and Mary C. Hatfield, pastor of the church, using the double ring service, assisted by Rev. John H. Knot of Willimantic. There was an attendance of 130 wedding guests.

Mrs. Raymond Greene of Willimantic played the Bridal Chorus from Lohengrin and Mendelssohn's Wedding March. The bride was given in marriage by her brother, Howard L. Bentley, of White Rock, as the wedding party met at the altar.

Formal complaint was lodged with the Westerly police department that the smoke arising from the blazing dump constituted a nuisance.

THE DEBENTURE CONTEST.

Debenture has charmed the farm bloc quite as much as, if not more than, the equalization fee. Ever since it was proposed it has encountered opposition because it is regarded as unsound legislation. That opposition was sufficient to knock it out of the farm relief legislation, but it remains to be seen what will happen to it in connection with tariff revision.

Ever since it was put forth there have been repeated threats that it would be tacked onto the tariff bill if it failed of adoption as part of the farm relief bill. That is the only course left open to it now and there are those who are urging it, but the situation is quite the same in connection with the tariff as the equalization fee was a part of the farm bill. There are those among the farmers who want it and there are others who do not. The farmers themselves are not united in regard to it, while the opposition to it as a part of the tariff is quite as pronounced as it was in connection with the farm relief legislation.

There are reasons to believe that there will be much the same coalition in the senate for the debenture provision as a tariff bill rider as prevailed during the recent fight over the farm bill. In the house where the members were more than two to one against it there seems to be no reason for believing there will be any change in sentiment. President Hoover has declared his opposition, which it is to be presumed applies to the tariff as well as the farm bill. Thus it would appear that the senate would be pitted against the house on debenture with an uncertainty as to what the outcome will be, for unless the two houses can agree upon a measure there will be no chance of getting it to the president for his approval or disapproval.

If it hinges on debenture, with the senate for it and the house against it, there is the chance that there will be no tariff revision, although it is to be realized that a certain part of the tariff revision provides for relief for the farmers, which would be automatically checked if nothing is done. That would be no different result, however, than has followed the blind insistence of those who pretended they were working for the welfare of the farmers though their efforts prevented any benefits being obtained.

RECKLESS DIVING.

A young man 18 years of age dived from a raft into two feet of water near Quincy, Mass., and fractured his spine. He was old enough to know better. He must have known the peril involved in such a stunt. It might be possible for some to accomplish such a feat but for most persons it involved a serious risk. This the young man realizes by this time and it is possible that it will mean the loss of his life. Such accidents occur too often during the summer time and invariably for the same reason. There are those who undertake stunts of that character just for the plaudits received from the crowd. They intentionally plunge into shallow water from high points in order to make the dive more hair-raising. Sometimes they accomplish it, but not always and when they don't it means concussion of the brain, a fractured spine or a broken neck. The penalty is too severe for the average person to invite.

Again there are those who plunge into water which is deep enough for diving but which is filled with obstructions, the location of which is not ascertained before making the dive. Rocks, submerged spiles and other similar obstructions have caused the death of many simply because they jumped from appearance that the water was of sufficient depth but did not take the precaution to inquire concerning the advisability of diving at that point.

Those who go into the water must realize their responsibility in so guarding their conduct that they will not tempt fate. There is always the possibility of overdoing, being reckless and using poor judgment in the water the same as on land. Taking chances never pays where the stakes are so heavy. Those who undertake the unusual would be sacrificing little if they refrained therefrom, and the unfortunate part of it is that they fail to profit from the experience of others and insist upon personal proof even though they know that it may mean death.

LOW FLYING.

In view of the fact that complaints have been made to the motor vehicle commissioner of New Jersey about low flying, it would appear that that state has been backward in adopting legislation regarding airplanes. When it is declared that one plane flew so low that it frightened occupants of an automobile it is evident that there is opening for complaint.

Establishing regulations do not necessarily mean that low flying will be prevented but it will have its effect upon those who are disposed to obey the law. Connecticut has long since adopted aviation legislation, but none other than the well-known flier, Bert Acosta, decided that it was not necessary to comply with it. He did his stunts and violated the regulations, but he was arrested and brought into court. Through appeals he managed to get out of the state and stay out but he knows that Connecticut has flying laws that mean something and Connecticut is a good place to keep away from if it isn't intended to obey them.

Connecticut undertook the regulation of flying at a time when it was much easier than it will be years hence. It has anticipated trouble and gotten ahead of it. It isn't possible for a policeman to bring in the flier who disregards the regulations immediately after he does it, but through the identification of the guilty party he will be assured of his day in court.

With the development in aviation it is bound to be necessary for each and every state to have its flying regulations. It is desirable, as far as possible, that there should be uniformity in the state laws in order that the situation will not be made more confusing. Perhaps New Jersey will wait for legislative action until some of the low fliers figure in a crash that means the loss of a number of lives, but such a situation ought to be anticipated and guarded against. There is no excuse for tolerating the reckless aviator any more than the reckless driver of a motor vehicle. There are places for the stunts and they should be restricted thereto. However innocent the intentions may be the low fliers should be required to keep at a safe flying height in the interest of public safety.

THE PRESIDENT'S POLICY.

The Coolidge plan of economy was one which captured the country. He was appreciated for the courage displayed in putting it forth and the tenacity with which he adhered to it. It was what the country needed at the time it was adopted and the benefits which accrued from it were many.

Thus when it is declared that it is the purpose of President Hoover to adhere so far as possible to holding the budget to the Coolidge figure it is apparent that he appreciates the good work that was done by his predecessor in this direction and see the desirability of continuing it.

The thought is often expressed that economy cannot be practiced except at the expense of efficiency and progress. During the Coolidge administration it was apparent that there were matters which could wait. It was more desirable that expenditures should be kept down than that there should be an orgy of spending. And yet it doesn't appear but what there can be spending if it is done in the right way and at the right time. Spending doesn't necessarily mean extravagance. It doesn't mean, or shouldn't mean, throwing away money.

Economy and efficiency can work well hand in hand. It has been repeatedly found that expenditures could be cut without interfering seriously with the effective work of the various government departments. If that was true in the past there is good reason for believing that it can be done with good results in the present and future. It is far preferable to the practice of rushing into extravagant outlays solely for political purposes instead of working for the best interests of the government.

The intention of President Hoover to stick by good business practice in the direction of the government will be heartily welcomed throughout the country. He makes no mistake in taking the Coolidge policy as a guide and adjusting it to present day conditions. Greater efficiency in government practices will contribute greatly to the policy of economy.

A DECIDED CONTRAST.

In New York there was a recent change in the police commissioners because of the failure to solve a murder mystery. The mystery hasn't been unraveled to the extent of bringing the person who did the shooting to trial and the situation has shown no change. New York is a large city and while the number of murders vary from year to year they average somewhere in the neighborhood of one a day. The number of convictions comes nowhere near such an average.

In the large cities of the country the homicide rate is not as large as it is in some of the smaller centers, but it is too large. The work of the gangsters contributes to the total and particularly in Chicago the feuds among the gangs result in first one and then another gang taking a life for a previous murder. Convictions through the courts are slow and uncertain.

There is a marked contrast between London and American cities in this respect. Last year in London with its population of 7,000,000 there were but 18 murders. Eleven of those responsible were brought to trial and convicted. The seven others apparently recognized the inevitable outcome and committed suicide. If there was as much certainty of conviction and punishment following the commission of a capital crime in this country as there is in England there might be a better crime record in the big cities of this country. There is good reason for the claim that the small number of murders in London is due to the vigilance of the police and the work of the courts. Not only is there a certainty about the arrest and prosecution but it is carried out speedily. There is not the delay that characterizes court action in this country where conviction is repeatedly made impossible through continuances until important witnesses disappear or die. We have a chance to gain a valuable lesson from the methods applied on the other side of the Atlantic.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

The man on the corner says: With 90 per cent. of auto accidents the fault of the other fellow, watch your step.

Although it is good advice, nothing stirs up resentment during a hot wave much more than the admonition to keep cool.

The return of the stowaway is likely to be accomplished without any popular piece of music being composed in his honor.

With Arthur Schreiber being sent home from France, possibly he has been disillusioned about the popularity of an airplane stowaway.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, June 24—The congressional recess left Connecticut holding the hay note, as it was Floor Leader Tilson who was the determining power in acceding to the demand of the senate that the recess should be agreed upon even though no time was fixed for the vote on the pending tariff revision. At first it was held by the house that a recess would be impracticable in view of the unsettled condition of the tariff, but at last it was decided to yield to the senate and permit the recess while the finance committee worked out a plan by which the measure could be revised in a manner which they hope will meet the approval of the senate and be acceptable to the president. It is well to use the word "hope" instead of a more positive one, for the situation in the senate is extremely grave. The farm bloc are apparently heedless that their wilfulness in attempting to force a debenture or subsidy act as a trailer to the tariff bill, is not unlikely to lose them any farm aid through tariff, as it may result in a measure the president would veto.

The threats made by the insurgents led by Mr. Norris, that unless they get what they demand it may lead to the formation of a third party, are not very frightful in the minds of the more conservative element, for the insurgents are already separated from the main body, as completely as if the knife had already been used in a major operation. But, that the coalition of insurgents and democrats in the senate has apparently the votes to kill a tariff bill that would be acceptable to the president, is a horse of quite another color. They want to place Mr. Hoover in a position to say, "He killed the relief he so glibly promised" alluding to the debenture clause. Of course President Hoover did not promise anything of the nature of debenture, but all the same that claim will be made.

The day congress adjourned Floor Leader John Q. Tilson of New Haven summed up the accomplishments of the extra session and expressed himself well pleased at the outcome—"I regard the extra session thus far as having been distinctly a successful one from the standpoint of the house. We have functioned, we have done our work, we have done it thoroughly and completely. "This statement from the honored leader brought loud applause from the house.

Col. Tilson stated that not over 15 per cent of the existing tariff had been changed at all and in many cases only by a fraction. He believes that to be a good record, and that the bill "as is" will benefit the industries of the country now in need of help.

The senate will begin consideration of the bill August 19th but the house obtained leave to recess until September 23rd when the senate shall have had a month for debate on the tariff as it comes from the finance committee. If work is not waiting there at that time, the house can adjourn three days at a time, until the senate has the measure completed—or the house needed for action on some other measure. No definite plans are made beyond reconvening on September 23rd.

Col. Tilson was successful in getting a favorable action on the indebtedness adjustment resolution concerning the French debt. He reminded congress that our relations with France are of a most friendly nature, as they always have been: said he "Lafayette came to our shores of his own accord; later there came an army under Rochambeau and a fleet under De Grasse; we ran into debt with France in the early days when we sorely needed funds; we were given 60 years to pay and we are now giving France 62 years to pay her debts to us." The resolution passed in the closing hours of the session.

Over in the senate it was Senator Bingham who was one of the most active members of that body in getting necessary legislation through before the recess. He has proved himself one of the most zealous and capable members of the senate and is already regarded as one of its strong leaders.

The Connecticut delegation, with the exception of Senator Bingham, will spend most of the recess in Connecticut at their respective homes. Mr. Bingham will remain in Washington as he is a member of the finance committee now holding hearings and framing the senate's revision of the bill sent to it by the house. There will be so many changes in the bill that it will scarcely be recognizable by its house sponsors, if reports and expressions credited the senate committee, be true.

Representative and Mrs. Fresman were anxiously waiting the recess that they might return to their waterside home at New London. Senator Wolcott and the other members of the house likewise made "going home for the summer" their aim.

The census bureau has made it known that it will, through preliminary plans and specifications, make known to the members of congress from the various states, details as to taking the census in their states. Their tentative plan is to lavout the state into supervisory districts, and the cities indicated for district headquarters. This is done along practically the lines of congressional districts and each will have a headquarters and supervisor of its own. In the general headquarters thus established, there will be a supervisor, two assistant supervisors and clerical assistants, probably a fairly large number of the latter. There will be one enumerator to every 1800 persons in rural districts and one to every 2500 in cities. The supervisors are the highest paid, and will receive about $2,000 for their work. It will take them three months of hard constant work and another two or three months to clear up the odds and ends and complete the job. Assistants will get from $1,200 to $1,500 and the clerical force be well paid. Enumerators expect to receive from $5 to $10 a day, as they are to get ten cents a name in thinly settled sections and four cents a name in cities.

More than 50,000 applicants have been received by the census bureau for positions connected with taking the census.

It is not officially stated how the great army of census takers will be selected, but it seems to be the general opinion that the supervisor will be a person approved by the republican congressman of the district, or other leading men of the party in power, as that is a long standing custom. The selection of others is partly under civil service and partly at the will of the supervisors. The supervisors will be named about the 1st of July.

An effort is being made to start a national republican club here somewhat along the lines of the newly inaugurated democrat club "only more so." The idea is to have a club house and an organization always ready here, to dispense hospitality and information to republicans from all over the country. Just who is fathering it is difficult to ascertain, but its officers are: President, Secretary of Agriculture Jardine; vice president, Mrs. Hert of Kentucky. Its board of managements seems largely of the west and mid-west, although three of the New England states are represented on it. Massachusetts has two places, the only state so honored. They are Mrs. Charles Sumner Bird and Secretary of the Navy Charles F. Adams, Rhode Island, Mrs. Paul Fitzsimmons, Connecticut, Representative John Q. Tilson. Some of the leaders here want to know just where the club trail ends before they go too far. A big club house costs much money both to buy, build or run. Moreover there is a political side to be considered, before a get-together of that sort is made a power. Up to date the idea and a paper list of officers is about all that has materialized, but other things may quickly follow.

The department of labor has recently issued a statement showing that skilled labor is well employed throughout the country, but that unskilled labor finds work very slack. Metal workers are more in demand than textile workers, and automobiles and radio plants are far in the lead of prosperous industries.

New England fish markets have made a notable advance during the past year and the fisheries of the country are on a more stable basis.

The fish industry now employs more than 127,000 commercial fishermen and the annual catch is 3,000,000,000 pounds valued at about $113,000,000. 4,000 persons are employed in transferring the fish from port to port or from port to market.

The bureau of fisheries states that while Boston and Gloucester and Portland are the greatest fish landing ports, other New England ports are doing exceedingly well. It specifically mentions Groton, Connecticut.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
(Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 24—Without question, Washington's army of government employes heartily approves of President Hoover's rule, rigidly enforced since his inauguration, of a five day working week for presidents.

They have managed to obtain a five-and-a-half-day summer dispensation for themselves in the last few years. They ardently hope for an eventual five-day-week, and see promise of a sympathetic attitude toward that desire on the part of a big boss who always takes Sunday and most of Saturdays off himself.

President Coolidge was a consistent week-ender. He could hardly be said not to be working at his job, however, during those sails down the Potomac on the presidential yacht Mayflower, now decommissioned by Hoover flat and in the Philadelphia navy yard.

Mr. Coolidge used the ship for heart-to-heart talks with important folks. When he was anxious to see congress do certain things, you could be reasonably certain that some of the congressional folk of either party supposed to be opposed to his plans would be his week-end guests on the Mayflower.

Just Fishin'

Up to this time, there has been no sign that President Hoover designed his fishing camp in Virginia for similar uses. He did not invite, for instance, any pro-debenture senator to accompany him into the fastnesses of Shenandoah national park.

Nor has he otherwise, so far as the Bystander knows, fished for votes in support of his policy in his week-end off duty hours. When he lays off, Mr. Hoover does a complete job. He seems to desire only the company of his family and intimate personal friends.

Coolidge Saw Results

Mr. Coolidge clearly believed he got good results out of his method of personal contact. It even seems possible that had Mr. Hoover resorted to a similar method he might have avoided his open conflict with the senate over the debenture plan.

Senate votes were perilously close. To have changed a senator or two to his point of view would have meant victory for administration leadership either time.

And take the case of Brookhart of Iowa. He was so belligerently in opposition to the president over the debenture thing that he sounded off on a third-party movement, getting clear off the administration reservation.

The Iowan made much of the fact that while Hoover managers sought his aid in the campaign, Mr. Hoover had never even talked with him about farm relief since election. Could even Brookhart have been won over by personal contact?

HELPING THE BLIND

"But, Aunt Polly, Cousin Constance says——"

"I don't care what Cousin Constance says. He is a stranger. You don't know one thing about him. He may be a villain of some kind for all you know. You can't see him." Aunt Polly clicked her false teeth with decision and Persis Penn, choking back a gulp of disappointment, folded Cousin Constance's letter and subsided upon the old lounge, her place of refuge when life with Aunt Polly went awry.

"I don't ever have any fun," she sniffed. Aunt Polly merely glared over her spectacles and went on mending.

"Other girls have dates——"

"Date! What a word. Where you ever picked up such silly slang is more than I can guess. The idea of calling a gentleman acquaintance a 'date!'" It was Aunt Polly's turn to sniff.

Persis knew further argument would only bring a barrage of indictment on the morals and manners of the younger generation. So she burrowed deeper into the billowy old lounge and drew the crumpled letter from her pocket for another tearful reading.

"Dear little Persis: Kent Armstrong, a good friend of mine, is coming to Woodland on business Thursday. I have told him all about you, but I think it would be nice if you and Aunt Polly asked him to dinner. Perhaps you won't enjoy a blind date, but Kent is such a peach——"

Persis was the fourth child down in the seven-deep family of a conscientious but poverty beset preacher father. Upon the arrival of the seventh child, Great-Aunt Polly took little Persis as her share of the family responsibility. Cousin Constance, after spending a brief vacation in Woodford, went away feeling that she must do something for poor little henpecked Persis Penn. This letter was her first movement in the direction of wakening her little moth-brown cousin to the possibilities of revolt. But she reckoned without Aunt Polly.

Thursday morning dawned and still no relentment. With the long whistle of the 2 o'clock train Persis suddenly buried her head in the cushions of the old lounge.

"Oh, dear," she sobbed, "I just never have any fun." Aunt Polly rose from her chair.

"Stop your nonsense," she thundered. "Give me that letter and don't let me hear another word——"

"But——" wailed Persis.

"Go upstairs," commanded Aunt Polly, and Persis went. For a long time she lay curled in the center of her bed. Below stairs, silence.

Suddenly the stillness was rent by Aunt Polly's piercing telephone voice. "Grand Central hotel?" she boomed. "Mister Armstrong—is he there?"

Persis popped up. Aunt Polly was actually asking him to supper. And oh, wonderful—he was coming. Persis not to question why. Here but to scamper into her prettiest frock and make the most of whatever miracle had befallen.

Kent Armstrong was a person of many charms. Promptly at 5.30 he came, bright of eye and brisk of step, up Aunt Polly's prim front walk. Aunt Polly, quite devastating in her prettiest summer dress, actually went down the steps to meet him. And the complete scrutiny she gave him would have baffled a more timid man.

He looked her over with the same complete frankness, and, holding both her hands in one of his, he said: "So this is the Aunt Polly Connie is always boasting about." And putting her into the most comfortable chair on the porch, he weighted her down with a mammoth box of candy.

After supper in the quaint, dim dining room he hired a car and took them riding.

Even the setting moon, frankly "rubbering" over a chimney top at these two young folk, bidding each other adieu on the vine-shadowed porch, could have told you that to them the miracle had happened—that new, old thrill of finding one another.

And Persis, coming into the sitting room treading on rosy billows of romance, found Aunt Polly, her back to the room, delving frantically into the waste basket. She whirled on the girl accusingly.

"Persis Penn," she cried, "that young man can see as well as I can."

"Why, of course he can, Aunt Polly. Whatever made you think he couldn't?"

"Constance said he was blind. I felt sorry for the poor young man—that's why I asked him to come to supper. Constance said he couldn't see."

"Couldn't see, Aunt Polly? You must have read the letter wrong."

"Didn't," said Aunt Polly. "Look. Right here. 'Perhaps you won't enjoy a blind date——'" Persis giggled.

"But you do like him, don't you, Aunt Polly?"

"He's probably all right—as young men go," conceded Aunt Polly. "But I'll never trust him. He tricked me." And ramming Kent's box of candy under her arm, she stamped off to bed.—Chicago News.

YOUR HEALTH

Self-Dosage Dangerous in Goiter.

By Robert Olesen, M. D., Cincinnati, Ohio.
(From Gorgas Memorial Institute.)

Were it possible to refer persons with goiter to the corner grocery or drug store for an effective remedy, the treatment would be easy. Unfortunately the solution is not so simple. Nevertheless many misguided individuals resort to dangerous self medication or manifestly harmful proprietary preparations. Preliminary mismanagement of goiter often aggravates minor symptoms and severely handicaps subsequent scientific treatment.

If all goiters were benign in character, the treatment of this disease would indeed be simple. However, there are several kinds of goiter, differently caused, manifesting unlike symptoms, and requiring widely dissimilar treatment. There are three principal kinds of goiter, the best known and most frequent being the so-called simple goiter, so frequently seen among adolescent girls. This form of goiter is not ordinarily severe in its manifestations and is frequently relieved by appropriate treatment.

Another type of goiter, less frequent in occurrence than simple goiter, is the so-called jumpy or nodular form, otherwise known as adenoma. Serious illness and damage to vital organs may result when appropriate treatment is withheld. Iodine is especially detrimental to the well-being of a person having this form of goiter.

Still another kind of goiter is that known as exophthalmic goiter. This goiter, often accompanied by protruding eyes, rapid heart action, nervousness and depression, manifests the symptoms of general systemic poisoning. Accurate diagnosis and intelligent treatment are the keynotes in handling these cases.

Because iodine has been useful in preventing simple goiter and in treating certain goitrous conditions, many mistakenly believe that this drug is a sovereign remedy for all goiters. Iodine is a potential poison, and when heedlessly or unskillfully used is capable of inflicting serious damage.

When you have a goiter there is no need for alarm. With proper management under competent medical guidance much can be done to relieve the condition. Avoidance of excitement, fatigue, and worry will greatly aid the physician in obtaining the best results with treatment. Good personal hygiene, not neglecting the mental phase thereof, is of material benefit. The use of iodine, unless constantly supervised by a physician conversant with its action, should be avoided.

CHILD TRAINING

HEALTHY THOUGHT HABITS

Margaret Conn Rhoads

Of course parents are generally desirous of having their children establish good habits. They look with apprehension on any tendency toward forming a bad one. If Billy seems careless with his clothes and extremely slow in learning that they should be hung up and not laid down, special means are taken to teach him this more commendable way of treating his property. If Mary is acquiring a habit of incorrectly handling her fork at table, at once Mother turns her attention to correcting this fault.

Now any visible habit is much easier to detect, and correct even, than is the habit of unhealthy thinking. And yet such a habit in any of our children may lead to much more serious consequences than an undesirable visible habit.

"I was shocked when I finally realized that Lucille was unhappy because she was indulging in a daily habit of self-pity," said her mother as we talked together. "I traced it back to the mistake in her thinking when Jane, her playmate, was given a larger doll for Christmas than she received. She lost the pleasure of her own doll in her pity for herself because she could not have as lovely a doll as Jane's. This way of thinking grew upon her. Another playmate had curly hair. Hers was straight. She wondered why she couldn't have curls, and grieved over it. It went on until this hidden habit became very apparent in her attitude and actions. Our little daughter had to go through a really serious time learning to form entirely new thought habits for herself."

Some children form lazy thoughts habits, and this tendency must be watched for and broken up by teaching them to form active, vigorous thought habits. Take a boy, for instance, who is most willing for you to tell him the why of this and the how of that instead of first thinking out the why and the how for himself as nearly as he can. If you give him a piece of work to do he seldom plans how he can do it in the quickest, best and simplest way, but goes ahead haphazardly. He is not lacking in intelligence, but is mentally lazy.

There are rebellious habits and fear habits that many, many children form. Where does the rebellious habit lead? The small child scorns a very simple home requirement, perhaps next, he balks at the school rules; later he shows dislike of the group decisions; and the habit grows until he resents the laws of his country."

"I can see now that had I begun very early with Marjorie to correct the fear habit I might have saved her much disquietude and nervous strain," confessed a mother the other day when her small daughter was being examined by a nerve specialist. "She has always seemed of a fearful disposition and while I have often told her the things she feared—such as thunder claps, lightning and the barking of a strange dog—would not hurt her, I firmly believe, now, that I did nothing definite to build up a strong resistance toward that habit."

If, then, we study children for hidden habits, the daily, constant habits of thought, by carefully watching their moods, actions and utterances we shall be able to help them to build up constructive thinking. We shall find, too, that healthy thought habits do away with the necessity for much of our concern with regard to the visible habits.

Little Talks on Thrift

Speculation vs. Thrift

Those who would get ahead financially can hope to do so only by putting their dollars to work for them. In view of the spectacular stories often heard about wealth being quickly won, the gradual and steady accumulation of funds through thrift may seem slow and unsatisfactory to many, yet in the long run greater progress is made this way by most persons than through the practices of financial magic.

The newspapers of the country recently told of the filing for probate in Indiana of a peculiar will. By the terms of this testament the sum of $50,000 is to be held in trust for a period of 200 years. At the end of that time the estate will, it was set forth, be worth $150,000,000 which vast amount is to be given to various charitable and welfare organizations.

The figures serve to illustrate the enormous increase made possible through compound interest. The sum set aside in this will will have reproduced itself about 3,200 times within the prescribed period.

While the lapse of time encompassed in the terms of this will is three times greater than the normal expectancy of human life, the mathematical principle responsible for this enormous growth is no different from that which may be taken advantage of by the average person at any time. Modest amounts of money deposited systematically in a savings bank or invested in sound securities with the reinvestment of the income thereof grow into comfortable fortunes within a few years. For illustration, the saving of $30 a month for 25 years at 6 per cent compounded semi-annually will build up a fortune of more than $60,000. In actual experience, the building up processes are apt to be much more rapid because as the years went by there would doubtless be a considerable increase in one's earning capacity and it would be possible to save and invest in a steadily increasing scale.

Those who are seeking financial independence can never hope to realize their ambitions until they learn the value of making their dollars work for them. The amount may be small at first but it will grow as time goes on and the results will be surprisingly gratifying.—By E. W. Straus, President American Society for Thrift.

You Can Buy Graham-Paige Quality at $855 at factory

MANY people are surprised to learn that Graham-Paige quality can be purchased for as little as $855, at factory.

The 612, with prices beginning at this figure, is a large, powerful automobile.

When you lift the hood, you see a big engine—delivering 62 horsepower, with smooth operation assured by good balance. A seven-bearing crankshaft (2½ inches in diameter) is supported by a rigid motor block. Water jackets extend clear to the bottom of every cylinder, giving complete and uniform cooling for dependable performance and long life.

The internal expanding hydraulic brakes, protected from dirt and water, are larger than usual in a car at this price. Brake drums are machined absolutely true, insuring contact for the full surface of the brake shoes on all four wheels. This means less need for adjustments and relining, and greater security through more efficient braking.

The emergency brake is entirely separate, giving the protection—which we believe essential—of two independent braking systems.

All through the 612, you will find extra size, weight and strength. Every one of its 3,125 pounds contributes directly to better performance and increased comfort and safety of its passengers.

The bodies are roomy and beautifully finished. Upholstery is genuine mohair, with a guarantee of long wear attached to every cushion.

Study the 612 and get a demonstration before you select your next car.

NEW LONDON COUNTY BAR PAYS TRIBUTE TO DECEASED MEMBERS

Memorial tribute to five deceased members of the New London county bar was paid here Monday morning at a special meeting of the bar association held in the superior court room with practically every member of the county bar attending.

William H. Shields, president of the bar association, presided at the meeting and upon motion of Attorney Wallace S. Allis of this city, seconded by ttorney Arthur M. Brown the eulogies and resolutions in each case were voted to be made permanent records of the superior court. Judge Allyn L. Brown directed Clerk John H. Walker to carry out the vote of the bar association and copies of the resolutions are to be sent to the families of the deceased attorneys.

When the resolutions upon the late Jeremiah J. Desmond of this city were presented by the committee, State Attorney Arthur M. Brown added an additional personal tribute, speaking of the leadership which Mr. Desmond had exercised for so many years up to the time of his death, possessing ability, industry and love which leave their marks upon the world. All these Mr. Desmond had and he has left an indelible impression upon this community, which he loved and where he worked.

Jeremiah J. Desmond

The memorial committee on Attorney Desmond consisted of Wallace S. Allis, Nelson J. Ayling, Arthur M. Brown, Frank L. McGuire and C. Hadlai Hull. Mr. Allis read the eulogy as follows:

It is with profound regret and sorrow that the members of this association are called to note the death of their fellow member, Jeremiah J. Desmond. Mr. Desmond was admitted to the bar of this county in 1880. For nearly half a century he practiced his profession in this community. His passing removes from our number one of our most prominent and honored members.

Mr. Desmond came to this bar exceptionally well equipped for a life of useful service. His educational training was far above the average. To this was added a professional course at one of the best of our universities of law together with a period of practical office experience. This thorough preparation, combined with marked ability, good judgment and a capacity for hard work, equalled by few, assured his rapid rise to a place of prominence in his profession, notwithstanding the fact that when he began his active practice in Norwich, the bar of this county contained an unusual number of most able and brilliant lawyers.

There have been few members of our bar who have undertaken as successfully as Mr. Desmond so great a variety of professional work. Up to the very end of his active practice, he appeared in causes of almost every nature and in all our courts from the police court of Norwich to the supreme court of the state. He was an indefatigable worker and his activities were limited only by the restrictions upon human endurance. Rich or poor, without regard to class or creed, received his best endeavor. He possessed that rare gift of the human touch, so effective in its influence. Sometimes he was criticized for giving so largely of his energy to what seemed comparatively small and unimportant affairs. We often forget that in the common, little affairs of life,—the cups of cold water freely given, there is the possibility of the highest service.

Those of us who came to this bar when Mr. Desmond was most active in practice, always found him willing to assist the young practitioner. His winning personality and self-effacement were irresistable. In "Jere," as we liked to call him, we found a friend and from his practical and honest advice we often glimpsed that ability of the great jurist who has been defined as "one who is saxer to see things not simply as they are, but as they ought to be, whose love of justice is as strong as his perception of truth is keen."

The active lawyers touches life, on all sides. His training tends to teach him to become master of himself and a master of men. Thus, he often becomes prominent in public life and influential in the formation of public opinion. Mr. Desmond evaded no responsibility in this direction. The many public offices of trust and responsibility which he held, as well as his membership in social and fraternal organizations, evidence not only the public service which he was willing to render, but the esteem in which he was held by his fellow townsmen.

Mr. Desmond gave to his profession and to this community a long life of unselfish and effective labor. From his championship of all that was best, his sincerity and honesty, with himself, his client and the court, it is for us to catch a new vision of the value of genuine service in the practice of law.

George E. Parsons

George Houghton Gilman read the eulogy upon George E. Parsons, late of this city, for the committee which consisted of George C. Morgan, Edwin W. Higgines, Frank N. Gardner, Josiah Greenstein and Mr. Gilman.

The eulogy was as follows:

George Elmer Parsons died November 15, 1928. He was born in Newburgh, Maine, May 31, 1863, come to Norwich when he was about 12, and was graduated from the Norwich Free Academy in 1884, where he was conspicuous in the class room and in athletics. He was chosen as one of the four speakers at commencement, and some of his contemporaries still have vivid memories of encounters with him on the football field.

He studied law with Judge Thayer, and was admitted to the bar in this county in 1889. His inclination, however, led him into the field of civic duty. Very soon he was appointed clerk of the city court and then the assistant clerk of the superior court. In 1897 he was elected judge of probate for the district of Norwich, and served until 1905. The records for that period, mainly in his clear handwriting, are a joy to the title searcher. In 1907, he became clerk of the superior court, resigning after 21 years' service, a few months before his death.

He was prominent in Masonic circles, having joined the order as soon as he was of age, becoming a member of all the local bodies, being many times elected or appointed to offices and culminating his career by serving as grand master of the state. In appreciation of the many honors conferred upon him by his brethren, his will provides that after the termination of certain life estates, the residue of his estate shall go to Masonic charities.

From the time he was old enough to vote until some ten years ago, he was active in the councils of the republican party.

In 1895, he married Miss Vinney E. Sparks, who survives him.

Judge Parsons was always a hard worker. It may be said that his death was caused by over-work. He set a high standard for himself and exacted it from others. Both as judge of probate and clerk of the superior court, he was not satisfied to leave matters as they were, not introduced many improvements in the management of both offices. Although the state provided an assistant clerk at New London, Judge Parsons was in the habit, when court was held there, of spending the hour from eight to nine at the Norwich office, attending the session at New London, and then working at the Norwich office again till late in the afternoon or evening. The notice on the door of the clerk's office that office hours were ten to four meant nothing to him.

Brought up under the traditions of John C. Averill, he had a brusque manner, but was always ready to help the practitioner who was lost in the mazes of court or appellate procedure. From his various activities and interests, he was known throughout the state as a man of the highest integrity and sterling character, having the respect of the bench and bar and his fellow citizens.

In his death, the community has lost one of its highly respected and honored citizens, a man whose life was devoted to the service of his town and state.

William Belcher

The committee for resolutions upon William Belcher, late of New London, comprised Abel P. Tanner, Alfred Coit, Charles B. Whittlesey, Philip Z. Hankey and Charles S. Waller.

Attorney Tanner presented the eulogy as follows:

The courthouse, which formerly stood on Church street, in this city, was destroyed by fire in 1865. Thence, until the construction of this building the courts used Breed hall for business at this end of the county. But, mostly, they sat at New London—once, the only county seat. It was there that William Belcher, from the office of Abiel Converse, was made an attorney in 1868. It was at the cheerful season. Mr. Belcher was in the flush of youth, and in the imagination, life, no doubt, unfolded like a dream. We come, this morning, to review some incidents connected with that dream.

Judge Belcher was the eldest child of Nathan and Ann (Wilson) Belcher. He was born February 27th, 1845, in the daybreak of spring. He began his legal career in summer when he was 23. He died, last year, in the chill of autumn leaves, at 83. While we still carry on his form will rest beneath winter snows and summer rains and the multitude will forget. Some one has said that life is a dream in death's eternal sleep. When, in September last, Judge Belcher died, sixty years had run since that day in 1868, and the dream: for this life or the other was ended. Sensible and true are thy words, O Prophet of Israel: "We spend our days as a tale that is told."

William Belcher came to this bar with more than the average equipment, of that day. He was a college man two years out of Amherst. He had studied, the required time, with an able practitioner. He had been close to a source of legal information as a lawyer's son. He was active, methodical and precise. Thoroughness, with him, was temperamental and accuracy became the habit of his life. From books an experience he gained a practical knowledge of the law and its application to established facts. He was a safe counseller, advocate and guide. He was what is called a good lawyer. People had confidence in ability and judgment and his success at this bar was assured. Albeit, his temperament was equally adapted to another calling which, perhaps, he would have chosen if he had not been a lawyer's son. As it was, this other charmer always stood near, and, as the years increased and he got closer to the sunset, his interest in litigation waned: forensic discussion ceased to thrill; the color of the picture faded away. More and more he sought the quiet of the office and the bank until, at last, they had lured him from the courtroom—forever. But, though the law is a jealous mistress, Mr. Belcher succeeded in both avocations and each brought him a measure of content. He was in the general assembly at 29; he was judge of probate for ten years and, once, was the choice of his party for lieutenant governor. In the other field he was president of various quasi-public institutions, notably, the Lawrence Memorial hospital, the City National bank, and the Savings Bank of New London: Judge Belcher was a custodian of many trusts. Freely they were bestowed, and abundantly, too, by those who knew their wealth would be safe in his hands. More than money, more than station, more than political honors was, to him, this evidence of the trust and confidence of his fellowmen.

As a churchman, he was affiliated with the First Congregational Society of New London. It was the church of the Puritan fathers. He was a Puritan, himself, by genealogical descent, but he was not of the harrassing type. He may not have had infinite compassion for the erring. He was a man of peculiar temperament. He was fond of records and books of accounting: But he wished them free from blemish. Nothing vexed him more than to discover a blot or false entry in some book of accounting. Himself a man of integrity, he had no great admiration for the one who crumples the leaves of the book of life. Yet, I am persuaded he did not forget that there was One who said 2,000 years ago, "Judge not, that you be not judged."

Politically, he was of the democratic faith. His father was a democrat in the days of Andrew Jackson. He impressed his political faith on his son of whom we speak; he, in turn, impressed it on his sons, including the last Nathan Belcher. So that in this generation we have the rare spectable of a single adhering to the same political faith—and that the democratic faith—for a hundred years. What is the explanation? Not wholly the contagion of family beliefs. There must have been something inherently consistant in the lives of these men. If the court and bar will bear with me, I will venture an explanation which may be of historic interest, notwithstanding it relates to questions which are now purely academic.

In 1854, Nathan Belcher represented this district in the 33d congress in a momentous period of our history. It was in that congress that Stephen A. Douglass wrought his famous Kansas-Nebraska measure, virtually repealing the compromises by which Clay and Webster had sought to ban the specters of civil war. In this measure it was provided that the inhabitants of a territory might approve or reject slavery by popular vote. For this, Senator Douglass was charred with being in a conspiracy to extend slavery. His purpose—almost his sole purpose—was the building of a transcontinental railroad to the Pacific. His concessions to the south were made to enlist its cooperation in his great enterprise; and all his concessions were safely constitutional. We are told that the constitution is sacred;—an excellent sentiment where in we all agree. But the constitution was sacred in the fifties. The cause, assuming the nature of an uncleansing slave, was likewise sacred. It was defended by the general government. It called for law enforcement, especially on the Canadian border. Under its provisions the fugitive was hunted to the talons of the eagle and carried back to slavery. And they, who hindered, were bailifiers who had disrespect for all laws; and scorn and contempt thundred, in malediction, against them. Today, nobody is suggesting memorials to the slave catchers of the fifties. Rather, they are being offered to them who aided the fleeing slave when he had lifted his manacled hands, in vain, to the American flag.

The party to which Mr. Belcher belonged, though deprecating slavery, believed the constitution protected it. The abolitionists, holding slavery to be the sum of all infamy, agreed with that party that the constitution protected it. That is why they called the federal compact a covenant with death. But, out of the legislation of this 33d congress there sprang to life a crusade against the extention of slavery, and for its ultimate extinction. It was claimed that it would be done by congress excluding it from the territories and caging it in the states. It was not an extreme position. For the slave was still to be a slave. There would be no emancipation until, in the fulness of time, the institution would perish, allowing liberally for the "fulness of time." We have come to understand that this mode of checking the growth of slavery was unconstitutional. It was so declared by the supreme court of the United States. And, though its opinion was by some called in question, it is not now difficult to see that, with slavery canopied in the states by the aegis of the law, and the slave admittedly a chattel, congress had no power to initiate its suppression, either in the present or through the slow process of "ultimate extinction" by restures in the territories. The constitutional status of the slave was not fully understood, in the fifties. If it had been there would have been no civil war. For, after all, the people, north and south, in the fiercest conflict of that war, respected the constitution. Because it was not understood, this 33d congress in which Nathan Belcher served, kindled a flame that could only be extinguished by the blood of half a million men, from the north and the south, in the crimson tide of war. Our friends, involuntary spectators of these tragic events, came to believe rightly or wrongly, that theirs was the only party which had stood loyally by the constitution. That, in substance, explains their long connection with it. At the same time, they could not be insensible to the fact that that party, in the south, by precipitating the Civil war, confirmed the saying of the ancients that "Whom the gods would destroy, they first made mad."

In October, 1871, Judge Belcher married Miss Anne Pimer and she survived their mutual journey of 57 years. I cannot speak for her, nor yet, indeed, for him, but it may be, this order of summons is best for the one who has to go. Blessed is the man to whom fate is kind and calls him hence, while yet there is somebody to straighten out the pillows when he lies down to rest for the last time.

But the hour hastens. And no one here, Mr. Chairman, can be more sensible of the flight of time than you and I as we look down the vista of the years. Could we, by some skill of the magician, move back the hours on the clock of fate—fifty years, what change would be wrought in this place. It would be as wondrous as that which came at the touch of Aladdin's lamp, in the clime of the olive and the palm. In that transformation every form in this courtroom would disappear, save yours and mine; and in their stead would come the people we have known, but who, in that fifty years have slid congress. His mother Ann (Wilson) Belcher, was a daughter of one of New London's most eminent citizens. Judge Belcher was a graduate of Amherst college, in the class of 1866. He read with the late Abiel Converse, and was admitted to practice, in this county, in 1868. He achieved marked success at this bar, in a generation of distinguished lawyers. A half century ago, there were, approximately, fifty lawyers active in this county. They included men of learning and forensic eloquence—old men and young men, and some who looked like boys. Fifty years have run, and the young men are old men, now, and the boys are aged and gray. But, of that half a hundred men who were active, here, fifty-four years ago, you and I, Mr. President, are all that are left. The rest have vanished through the green-baize doors.

TOLD CONTACT CLUB OF NORWICH INN PLANS

Plans to have the Norwich inn built during this summer and winter so that it can be ready for occupancy in the spring of 1930 were disclosed by Benjamin H. Palmer, Jr., of the firm of Chandler and Palmer, who was the speaker Monday at the luncheon meeting of the Contact club at the Wauregan hotel. It is hoped to have the specifications out for bids this week and if work can be started by the middle of July, it is believed the building may be so far advanced by winter that the inside finish can be done then to get the inn ready for a spring opening.

Mr. Palmer said that William G. Park, president of the board of directors of the company, and the building committee, Robert W. Perkins, Shepard B. Palmer and Charles W. Taggart, have agreed upon final plans which provide for a building 225 feet on its longest dimension and 65 feet in average width. It will be placed just easterly of the present golf club house about 300 feet from the main highway. On the main floor will be smoking rooms, card rooms and pool rooms. There will be a flagstone terrace leading out on the southerly side.

By taking advantage of the slope of the ground the front portion of the basement floor of the building can be used. The building is to be set to face the south, giving the advantage of sun exposure. The lobby is reached through a circular vestibule. From the lobby access is had to the stairway, dining room, lounge and sun-porch. The main dining room will have a normal capacity of 225 which can be expanded to 190 more for banquet purposes. Artificial ventilation will insure the supply of fresh air during large gatherings. Adjacent to the main dining room and on the rear are to be a private dining room and children's dining room and there will also be a grill room, which will be used largely in connection with members of the golf club.

Above the main floor will be two floors having a total of 71 guest rooms and a number of servants' rooms, the latter all at the rear of the house and separated from the main building. Practically all of the rooms either have a private bath, or have a connecting bath, and most of the rooms have southeast or southerly exposure. A few single rooms are available but most of the rooms are large enough to use for double rooms.

TO GIVE RECEPTION FOR MR. AND MRS. E. P. POTTER

On Thursday afternoon at 4:30 o'clock in Slater hall annex, an informal reception will be held for Mr. and Mrs. Brewer Felix Potter of Philadelphia. Many Norwich people will remember Mr. Potter's beautiful singing when he was the valued organist and choirmaster of Christ Episcopal church for about ten years. From here he went to Philadelphia where he has long been recognized as one of the leading musicians and trainers of boys voices. He is bringing with him to Norwich one of his pupils, Master Clawson Beswick-Van Sielen, who although but eleven years of age has already had marked success in recital work and broadcasting, including in his repertory, some of Mr. Potter's delightful songs as well as different arias from opera and oratorio.

Many of the Norwich friends of Mr. and Mrs. Potter will enjoy the opportunity of meeting them at the reception.

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y., June 26—(AP)—Riding the crest of the roughest water in the thirty-four years of regatta history, Columbia's great varsity crew sweat to smashing victory in the gathering dusk tonight to win the intercollegiate championship of the United States for the second time in three years.

In a race which saw the dope knocked overboard by the antics of Old Man River, the Columbians rowed to a decisive victory by three lengths over a surprising University of Washington boat as disaster overtook California, the world's champions of 1928 and three other crews.

Only five of the record fleet of nine shells that went to the starting line in semi-darkness weathered the rough and razzed race over the full route of four miles. California, co-favorite with Columbia and the defending champions, swamped a half mile from the finish, after failing to be a contender at any stage of the long pull.

The Golden Bears passed out of the stormy picture after Massachusetts Tech in its first start had swamped near the two mile mark and after Syracuse, an early contender, sank to the level of the river, just after passing the bridge and the three mile mark. As a climax, Cornell, another favorite, was forced out of the race in the last half mile as its shell broke under the heavy weight of water shipped on the way down.

Columbia, meanwhile, rowed on magnificiently to win over any and all obstacles. The New York pupils of "Young Dick" Glendon not only conquered the greatest array of oarsmen ever gathered for the blue ribbon classic of the Hudson but triumphed over Old Man River himself with a knockout punch all the way down the long course.

Columbia faced and overcame the difficulties that brought about the undoing of her foremost rivals. The New Yorkers occupied one of the worst of the lanes, number 1, between California and M. I. T. They shipped water to some extent themselves but never enough to slow them up appreciably as they came into the last mile to take the lead from Washington and the Navy, the early pace setters.

The order of those that finished this amazing battle with the river was: Columbia, Washington, Penn., Navy and Wisconsin.

All were waterlogged and Washington's shell all but sank as the huskies, after surprising everybody, especially their own coach, youthful Al Ulbrickson had rowed a spectacular race all the way down.

Penn, occupying the No. 1 lane and profiting thereby from whatever shelter there was under the lee of the Hudson highlands, rowed forward steadily to take third place, eight lengths behind Washington but two lengths in front of the badly waterlogged Navy shell, which lost all of its early advantage in the last mile. Wisconsin was another three lengths behind Penn. The Badgers, trailing from the start, nevertheless stuck to their oars to finish while more favored rivals were going down under the buck-jumping influence of Old Man River.

Columbia's great victory in the classic varsity race under such astounding and unprecedented conditions brought to a climax an all-New York sweep in the historic regatta for the first time since 1920.

Syracuse's freshmen crew, leading from start to finish, beat California and Cornell, as well as four other rivals, in the opening race at two miles, after which Cornell's junior varsity eight came from behind with a smashing finish to beat Columbia and four others in a thrilling race over the three mile route.

The order of freshmen finish was Syracuse, California, Cornell, Navy, Columbia, Massachusetts Tech and Penn.

In the "Jayvee" race, they finished in this order: Cornell, Columbia, Navy, Washington, Syracuse and Penn.

Both preliminary races were rowed in somewhat rough seas but nothing like the swells that broke over the varsity boats. But for the succession of false starts that marred the getaways of all the three races, the final event probably would have escaped the treacherous turn of Old Man River. Due to five faulty starts, two each in the freshman and varsity events, and one in the junior varsity contest, the big eights did not finally go off together until 6:15 p. m., exactly an hour after it was scheduled.

Even so, there was little warning of the disappointing as well as tragic spectacle to come as Referee Julian Curtiss of Yale fired the gun that sent the big fleet of 9 crews down the river, already shrouded in dusk as a southwest wind rolled up heavy clouds and kicked up the surf of the river.

There was a surprise from the start as the Navy took an early lead over Columbia and then was followed by Washington in a revival of the ancient Middle-Husky duels that lasted until near the three mile mark. M. I. T., splashing badly, gave the first danger signal as the Engineer boat began to sink before the half-way mark was reached. Already trailing and hopelessly outdistanced, they stopped rowing and were taken out of their shell by a coach's launch.

With eight crews left in the running, at the two mile mark, it was a three division affair, with Columbia in striking distance of Washington and the Navy, then Cornell, California and Penn well bunched with Syracuse and Wisconsin trailing.

Nearing the high railroad bridge, the three mile mark, other crews began to settle lower in the water. California, after holding fifth place for about a mile, dropped back to sixth and never was able to improve that position. With the proud world's champions losing their terrific battle with the river, Syracuse and then Cornell began to lose distance. So did the Navy but Columbia, seeming to thrive on the conditions set out to overhaul Washington.

Nearing the railroad bridge, Columbia and Washington were on even terms, but as the crews came out from the shadows, the New Yorkers were in front by 6 feet and gaining. Washington hung on gamely for the next half mile but the Huskies were a length behind, with a half mile to go. The race, so far as its competitive features were concerned, was all over. It was just a question of Columbia's margin and the Glendon schooled youngsters made it three good lengths in a dazzling finish.

Disaster trailed them. Syracuse was forced out just after passing the railroad bridge. Their boat sank suddenly beneath them and nine heads bobbed about in the water, where a moment before they had been pulling manfully even if slowly on. California's final downfall came at the three and a half mile mark where the heavy Golden Bear array gave up the losing fight. Their weight, a factor in so many of their great victories, proved their undoing this time, for they shipped water all the way down and quickly became sluggish.

Cornell's boat, which cracked with less than a half mile to go, was the last to sink below the surface and bring the rescue squad into action once more. The Ithacans stuck it out until their slim cedar craft finally broke under the strain, adding the final episode to the strangest and most disconcerting boatrace the Hudson has ever seen.

There have been rough days on the old river before but nothing to approach the effects of the high running seas this evening. They were in sharp contrast to the ideal and record-breaking conditions under which California rowed to victory last year over Columbia. What made them worse was a southwest wind that came up to hit the backs of the oarsmen and the spray splashing high after every dip of the oars. Under these conditions, nothing even approaching record time was possible. The varsity race, in which the main contest was with the river instead of the racing opposition, Columbia's winning time was nearly four minutes behind the record of 18:35 4-5 set by California last year.

The most exciting race of the regatta was the junior varsity struggle in which Cornell came from behind to win with a finish that saw four of the six contenders blanketed at the end of the three miles. For two and a half miles of this thrilling contest, Columbia's "Jayvees" set the pace, with Syracuse in second place, extending the pace setters, with Cornell and the Navy in close pursuit. Passing under the bridge, Syracuse faded quickly, out of the picture but Cornell took up the chase. The Ithacans cut down Columbia's margin to a bare quarter length at the two and a half mile mark, then jumped into the lead to win by a good length in 18 minutes, 31 1-5 seconds. Navy was a scant third of a length behind Columbia, while Washington was only another half length in back kof the Middies.

Syracuse wound up fifth, three lengths behind Washington but three more lengths ahead of Penn.

Three hitherto undefeated crews—Cornell, Columbia and California, took the wash of Syracuse's speedy freshman eight in the first race. The Orange boatload fought off Cornell in the first mile and then withstood California's fine closing challenge to beat the Golden Bears from the west by a length. California was two lengths ahead of Cornell, which led Navy's plebes by another length. Columbia, M. I. T., and Penn were from one to five lengths behind.

SNAPPY IN NINTH SAVES THE ATHLETICS

PHILADELPHIA, June 24.—(AP) — The Athletics increased their lead over the Yankees to nine games today by winning a close decision from the Boston Red Sox, 5 to 4, while the New Yorkers were idle. Eddie Rommel won his own game in the eighth inning when he broke a 4-4 tie with a long double that scored Joe Boley from first base.

The Red Sox twice came from behind to tie the score, Bill Barrett hitting a home run in the third inning and Gaston repeating the act in the fourth for one tie. A double play with full bases in the ninth inning saved the day for the Athletics after Rommel had weakned and Shores was called to the rescue. Rommel got credit for his seventh straight victory of the season with no defeats.

Britton Wins

OUTBOARD RACE AT KITEMAUG SUNDAY

The second outboard motorboat race of the season to be run under the auspices of the Chelsea Boat club of Norwich will be held on Sunday, June 30 on the Thames river near the clubhouse at Kitemaug. The first race of the season was so successful that the club has decided to run at least one race every month during the outboard season. Entries are being sought from all the cities in Connecticut and Rhode Island and already the list is much larger than the last time when 15 boats were entered.

Prizes donated by the merchants of New London and Norwich are offered for the winner and second place boats. The races are to be run in heats and will be conducted under the new outboard racing rules. There will be three heats to each class of which there are two Class B and Class C, a Class D race will be staged if there are enough entries to warrant it. There is also a free-for-all event and the racing program will end with a 16-mile marathon race from New London to Norwich and return.

The racing will start promptly at 2 o'clock with the warning gun five minutes before the start. Class B race will be over three laps while Class C will be over a four lap course and the free-for-all event will have ten laps.

Notice of entries should be made to J. L. Chapman, 15 Forest street, Groton, Conn.

Suzie Says

The annual vacation battle is on!

In every household throughout the land where the male minority is entitled to a vacation the battle rages.

Ask the next man of your acquaintance where he's going on his vacation and if he's truthful his answer will be "She hasn't decided yet"—that is, if he's married.

If he isn't married he's having a continual vacation so it don't matter where he goes. These unmarried people don't know are lucky there are when it comes to vacations.

And the newlyweds have never had a real argument until they come to vacation seige. This vacation battle starts with the first warm day in spring and doesn't end until the vacation's over, if it does then.

The first indication of the impending battle is when ma starts reading over the hotel advs. at the beach resorts and pa starts looking at the glowing notices of the great fishing in the lake regions.

Ma usually fires the opening gun with a remark like this "Say, Henry, have you decided when you'll take your vacation?" Henry scents the battle and is loathe to answer the call to arms. His reply is muffled in a camping adv. and is "Naw."

This same question is fired at intervals for the next week or so until pa comes out with the declaration that he's decided to take it when the fishing's the best up in Maine.

Right then and there the family becomes divided. If there's a boy and a girl in the family it's pretty even but if there's two girls pa's outnumbered three to one, and he might as well give up and save his breath and temper.

And, anyway, it's a pretty good bet that ma's team will win in the end. Poor pa he sees where he's got to go down where it's hot and the boiling sun beats down on tender skin, and you have to dress for dinner.

But ma just dotes on that kind of stuff and she don't care if there is sand in the bed every night, she says it's better than pine needles and mosquitoes.

Pa puts his camping literature away and gives up the battle and goes to praying that it'll rain every day so he can sleep. Kind of a mean disposition at that.

Ma and the girls start poring over the fashion books for the latest in beach frocks, dinner gowns and chic bathing suits. Can you imagine ma with her good 170 pounds of plumpness looking chic in an Annette Kellerman. Oh, boy.

An then comes the vacation. Pa lugs the baggage while Ma worries about whether she shut off the gas and told the milkman not to leave the milk. At the beach Ma drags Pa all around the place and by the time he gets home he is ready for another vacation to rest up from the first.

And then he goes back to work and tells the boys what a whale of a time he's had—perhaps.

DODGERS HAND GIANTS ANOTHER NEAT TRIMMING

NEW YORK, June 24.—(AP)—Brooklyn won its second game with the Giants in two days and its fourth in successive meetings today by trounging New York, 5 to 2 in the opener of their series at the Polo grounds.

The Giants played a slipshod game while William Watson Clark held them to four hits in the first seven innings. One of them was a homer by Lindstrom which gave New York its only runs. Clark weakned in the eighth but Morrison came to the rescue successfully. The Robins bunched eight of their ten hits in three innings off Carl Hubbell for all their scores. Scott and Maye pitched the last two innings for the Giants.

CUBS MANAGE TO BEAT OUT PIRATES IN FINAL

CHICAGO, June 24.—(AP)—The Cubs finally won a game from the Pirates, taking the final of the series today by a 4 to 3 count. Home runs by Cuyler, Wilson and Hornsby provided all of Chicago's runs while Ervin Brame, the Pirate pitcher, accounted for two runs and gave Pittsburgh a temporary lead with his drive over the fence in right center in the fifth inning.

The Cubs were outhit, but most of the blows were wasted. Hornsby's eleventh homer came in the eighth inning to provide the winning margin, 10 to 8. Wilson's homer was his eighteenth. Both pitchers, Brame and Charley Root, went the entire distance.

ERRORS LOSE TIGHT GAME FOR SILVER CO. TO THE THERMOS CLUB

Another nice ball game at the Academy campus last night, in seven fast innings, played in an hour and twenty minutes, the Thermos Bottle company won 4 to 1 from the International Silver company. Unlike the games seen in the Dusty league to date there was a decided lack of hitting. Between the two teams a total of but five hits were registered, the winning team tallying three of them.

The Thermos did all of its scoring in the third, tallying four times with but one hit. J. Mullins opened the inning by drawing a base on balls. On Louie Green's sacrifice he took second and a moment later crossed the plate when Butsy Weisgraber, in center, dropped Bill Hull's easy fly. Hull made second on the misplay and held his base while Chick Mara was meeting up N. Lemieux's high flyer. E. Lemieux walked and filled the bases, his brother having advanced to second through a double steal. Lemieux brought in the second run of the inning when E. Paul drew a walk. Bill Hull and E. Lemieux tallied a moment later on Harold Hull's Texas leaguer into left. Pineault fanned to end the inning.

The Insilcos' only bid for a score was in the sixth and came without a hit. After Cummings had filed out to H. Hull, Serafin, batting for Miller drew a walk. He went to second on Green's error of Weisgraber's slow roller and scored while the Thermos infield was playing tag with Fontaine's fielders choice.

Louis Green hurled nice ball for the Bottlers, allowing two hits while he was fanning four and walking five. Paul the starting hurler for the Insilcos looked good during his stay on the hill allowing two hits until relieved by Weisgraber in the fourth. He fanned three and walked as many while Butsy got all of his strikeouts, three, in the fifth. The fielding jewels were contributed by B. Hull and Pineault. With men on second and third in the fourth Hull cut off a prospective Insilco rally by jumping into the air to take Gribbons' hit over second for the final out of the inning. Pineault picked Zaremba's foul fly out of the first base stands in the third inning for a pretty catch. The score:

CITS AND Y CLASH IN DUSTY LEAGUE GAME TONIGHT

Two of the three undefeated teams in the Dusty league come together at the Academy campus tonight in what should be one of the best of the early season thrillers. The Y. M. C. A. and Polish Citizens, who last week opened with wins over the Richmond Radiators and Smoke Shop are the clubs scheduled for tonight's game. In the opinion of a good percentage of the fans, these two clubs are favored to cop the Dusty league title.

Both have the necessary offensive punch and are also strong on the defense. The Citizens probably have a somewhat better looking infield while the Y'ers make up for this advantage with a quartette of sluggers in Bill Burns, Lefty Dugas, Middy Dugas and Enos Eccleston.

Against Kotch of the Richmond Radiator Co., in the opening game of the league season, last Wednesday evening, the two Dugas' and Eccleston smashed out 11 hits between them, a homer, a triple, five doubles and four singles. For the fans that love their long distance hitting the Yers are the ones to produce the same if anyone in the loop does. Against the fast ones of either Eddie Koslowski or Johnny Greene, who knows what may be in store for this evening.

On the other hand, while the Cits have no such heavy artillery as the Y has they have a bunch of sure hitters who are always liable to drop one over the infield just when a hit means a run. To date this season the Citizens have not lost a game, having won six independent starts in addition to their only league game.

The probable starting lineups for tonight's game:

Y. M. C. A.: Burns ss, Leffingwell lf, Eccleston c, Lefty Dugas cf, Middy Dugas 1b, Brown rf, Nevins 2b, Walker 3b, Couture p.

Polish Citizens: Shurtleff lf, L. Hamil 3b, Arico 1b, J. Burns c, Greene p, cf, Koslowski cf, p, S. Hamil 2b, E. Busch rf, P. Labenski ss.

ARMY AND NAVY MAY MEET ON GRIDIRON IN FALL

WASHINGTON, June 24.— (AP) — West Point and Annapolis may meet again on the football field next fall as a result of negotiations now under way between Secretary Good and Secretary Adams to end the two year suspension of athletic relations between the two academies over the eligibility rule.

Secretary Good announced today that he is now conferring with Secretary Adams with a view to reestablishing the relations which were broken off after the 1927 game.

Citing that both of the academies have completed their gridiron schedules for the next three years, Mr. Good declared that a contest next fall would have to be played in all probability outside the regular schedule inasmuch as neither team might find it possible or desirable to cancel games already scheduled.

The controversy which led to the athletic break arose over the Naval academy's opposition to the position of West Point not limiting players to three years of intercollegiate competition, the Military academy has permitted cadets to play regardless of previous intercollegiate athletic participation, while Annapolis has enforced the three-year rule.

The Greeneville Juniors are now organized and would like to arrange games with the following teams for either Saturday or Sunday. Shyma club, or Holy Name society, if challenge is accepted answer through this paper or call 3154 between 7 and 9 o'clock.

ROTARY RALLIES IN 7TH TO WIN FROM DUWELLS

A seventh inning rally by the Rotary team in the Junior league last night at Hollyhock island gave that team an opportunity to merge from the cellar and to push the lowly Duwells further into it. Inlecting two pinch hitters into the game, Manager Bert Ferguson saw his team come out the winners by an 11 to 10 score.

Up until the last inning the Duwells managed to play fairly good ball, but the last inning proved disastrous as the team went to pieces. Several hits, interspersed with two errors and a base on balls was responsible for the Duwell defeat. The Duwell aggregation have yet to win their initial game.

Gromko, the first pinch hitter was responsible for the last inning rally for the Rotary nine, and the wood work was kept up by Higgins, another pinch hitter. There were two outs when the winning run was scored.

The crowd, which packed the bleachers, saw two home runs made into deep center. The first one of the game was made by Disco, a Rotary player, while a team mate of his, Charlie Kaminiski duplicated the act. Both were mighty clouts.

The Rotary took the lead in the early innings of the game, but the Duwells managed to force ahead in the fifth. They kept the lead until the last inning.

Tonight's Game.

A stellar contest is looked forward to in the Junior league this evening, when the league-leading Elks clash with the Baltic Social club nine. The Baltic team is at present occupying the runner-up position and is confident of taking the contest this evening. Manager Jackie Wilson has added new strength to his team in an effort to keep his team in the top position.

H. N. S. WINS BOTH WEEK END GAMES

After being held to a 6-6 tie at Jewett City Friday night by the Norwich Elks, the Holy Name team of Jewett City turned in two brilliant performances on Saturday and Sunday. Saturday at Sterling, the Jewett City boys defeated the strong Sterling A. C. 6-5 in a fast and closely fought game. Roger Vachon, on the mound for the H. N. S., twirled a neat brand of ball, although clever support at critical times saved the game for him. Belknap, pitching for the Sterling team, was no puzzle to the J. C. team. However, brilliant infield support kept down the H. N. S. score. Pop French, in third, played a remarkable game behind the Sterling twirler.

Sunday, at Yantic, the H. N. S. easily defeated the Yantic A. A. 7-2. Bernal, the H. N. S. was in fine form, allowing Yantic but a few scattered hits. The Jewett City team evidently has hit its stride and sure did clout the ball in both games. Solenski, the H. N. S. third sacker, former Plainfield high player, hit at a terrific pace, getting 6 hits in these two games. Perry and Beaulieu continued their attack on opposing pitchers.

The H. N. S. would like to hear from some fast team for a game next Saturday, June 29, either at Jewett City or away from home.

ST. LOUIS, June 24.—(AP)—The Yankees went into the undisputed American league runner-up position today when Cleveland defeated the Browns, 10 to 4, on the New York open date.

Crowder and Ogden were ineffective, allowing 12 hits, two of them home runs by Averill and two circuit wallops by J. Sewell and Falk, whose drive in the first brought in two other Indians.

SEVEN AMERICANS SURVIVE FIRST ROUND AT WIMBLEDON

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 24.—(AP)—Rain, tennis and major upsets, the Wimbledon men's singles championships got under way today. Seven of the eight Americans entered won their way past the first round, along with 57 others of the world's best court artists.

Big Bill Tilden, the ace of Uncle Sam's invaders, danced through a straight set victory, 6-1, 6-1, 6-1, with V. B. Dillon of Ireland to set the pace for his fellow countrymen. And all but H. L. Chandler, intercollegiate champion in 1925 and 1926 while attending California, followed suit. Chandler lost to the hard hitting Texan, Wilmer Allison, who succeeded him as intercollegiate title holder in 1927. Qualifying for the second round along with Tilden and Allison were Francis T. Hunter, George Lott, John Hennessey, Wilbur Coen, Johnny Van Ryn.

Tilden's session against the Irishman served to give the lanky American the p

POETRY FOR THE WIDE-AWAKES

Various Blooms.

Far, far away, I know not where, I know not how
The skies are gray, the boughs are bare, bare boughs in flower:
Long lilac silk is softly drawn from bough to bough,
With flowers of milk and buds of fawn, a broidered shower.

Beneath that ten an Empress sits,
with slanted eyes,
And wafts of scent from censers
flit, a lilac flood:
Around her throne bloom peach and plum in lacquered dyes,
And many a blown chrysanthemum,
and many a bud.

She sits and dreams, while bonzes twain strike some rich bell, Whose music seems a metal rain of radiant dye:
In this strange birth of various blooms, I cannot tell Which sprang from earth, which slipped from looms, which sank from sky.

When School Begins.

When school begins the boys and girls
Will have another chance to learn.
What joy will fill their youthful hearts
As to their studies they return!

How happy they will be to see
The tedious long vacation end,
As they return delighted to
The several schools that they attend!

How glad they'll be once more to see
The teachers whom they so admire,
Who try so faithfully in them
The love of learning to inspire!

How they'll rejoice, with leave once more
To use their long-neglected books!
How glad and happy they will be!
We all shall see it in their looks.

Vacation past and school again!
The life that lifts and disciplines!
What ecstacy they all will feel,
The boys and girls, when school begins!

Wee Hummingbird.

With buzzing wings, wee hummingbird,
With squealing chirp, click-clicking word,
You come in slender, greenish coat
And sparkling ruby at your throat,
You whir and whiz through all the hours
In and out among my flowers.

You chase away the robber bees
And sip pink honey where you please,
Your slim, long-handled little bill
Is never, never, never still,
But like a fairy quill sucks up
The sweetness from each flower cup.

And when the honey season's over
You flit, you tiny roguish rover,
To frolic through the winter time
With blossoms of some sunnier clime—
And so good-bye until next summer,
Wee ruby-throated hummer!

UNCLE JED'S TALK TO THE WIDE-AWAKES.

How many members of the Wide-Awake circle are able to foretell fine weather? It has been said that if you want fine weather, look for finer weather signs. Here are some of the most reliable, for they are based on scientific facts:

When the sun sets in a sea of glory, that is, when the sunset sky is red, you may expect clear weather on the following day.

At night, when the moon is clear and shows clean edges, with no halo or ring of mist surrounding it, there is little danger of rain.

When the wind blows steadily from the west, the weather will continue fair; it very rarely rains in the eastern states with the wind in the west.

Watch the smoke from a chimney or from a campfire—it is a good barometer. If the smoke rises high, it means clear weather. The smoke will also show you from which direction the wind is blowing; so will a flag from an upright flagstaff.

A gray early morning, not a heavy, cloudy one, promises a fair day.

A heavy dew at night is seldom followed by rain the next day. Think of it this way and you will remember: wet feet, dry head.

If there are no clouds at the western horizon, you need not worry about others.

Animals are said often to show by their actions what the weather will be, and there is reason in this. Some of them certainly have a knowledge of coming storms.

Spiders are especially sensitive to weather changes, and when they make new webs, the weather will be fair; if they continue spinning during a shower, it will soon clear off.

LETTERS WRITTEN BY WIDE AWAKES

Sunday School Picnic.

Dear Uncle Jed: This is only a short story telling of a Saturday afternoon that I spent at a lake. The name is A Picnic.

It was Saturday morning and very cloudy, but there was still a chance for the sun to shine. My Sunday school class was going on a picnic at Rossland lake if it was a clear, warm day. Before noon the sun shone and it became quite warm.

At half past two all of my class, including myself were at the lake. All of the class except two went in bathing. The water was warm and we had a splendid time.

Soon some of us got a boat and we went for a boat ride. We were in the boat quite a while and when we returned lunch was ready.

Every one brought a lunch and we put our lunch all together. We had plenty to eat and a lot left over. We all ate until I'm afraid we were not very polite.

We had our cameras with us and after our lunch we took pictures and played games. We ran races, also took a walk around the park. We saw many beautiful flowers, some that we knew and many that we did not know the name of.

After that we went swimming again, came out, ate our remaining lunch, cleared up the mess we had made, piled into the truck and went home. It was after eight when we reached home, but we had a good time, so we didn't care.

Autobiography of a Book

Dear Uncle Jed: I received your prize book, which was very interesting. I will always treasure it as one of my best books. It certainly must be a good book, as it has traveled through two large hospitals and made everyone happy. As I was reading one of the letters in the Wide-Awakes I was greatly interested in "Dad" Shaw, who the writer talked about. I have read many of his stories and they are always interesting to read. I also read the Social Corner, which I like also. This time the name of my story is Autobiography of a Book.

After I was all made and ready I was put in a big box with many of my friends. As we could not see, it was not comfortable, and we were all unhappy. Had we only known where we were going, we would have been happier. We were soon picked up and carried off. A bang! and before we knew it we were rapidly moving over the city. How dull it was! We did not speak but looked with sad faces at each other. All of a sudden the car stopped and we were carried away. We had stayed in a building only a few days when I heard the roof of our house torn off. We soon found ourselves on a shelf. How wonderful and nice it was to show ourselves to the outside world. Next day my best friend was taken away, and more followed.

It finally came my turn. On the inside of my cover was written a girl's name, and I was very glad I was going out to see the world. Next morning I was carried off by a girl and one thing I can proudly say: Ever since I left The Norwich Bulletin office I have had a lovely time. I have been through two large hospitals and made sick people happy.

My Little Brother

Dear Uncle Jed: I am going to tell you about my little brother. He was out of doors talking to himself one day. He was saying "Dear Uncle Jed." Then he said: "Is that my Uncle Jed? I don't believe so, maybe he is, I don't know." I guess he thought that was a new uncle he hadn't heard much about before. One day he wanted a paper and pencil. He said "I am going to write to Uncle Jed, so he will send me a book." He doesn't know how to write much yet. I guess he will have to wait until he gets older.

My Fishing Experience

Dear Uncle Jed: One day before school closed the teacher and my schoolmates started out on a trip to Moosup lake to have a picnic. The day was very pleasant. We went to a cottage to eat our lunch.

When we were finished we went back to the lake.

I was sitting on a bench when my friend Stanley came along. He had found a fishhook and string. He said: "Napoleon, let's go fishing," and I said "Yes," so off we went. We pulled up grass and got worms. I saw a fish which was not swimming. I said: "Stanley, catch him, quick!" He caught the fish. We went back to the crowd. They said it was too wormy, so we threw it back in and caught no more fish.

Story of the Tree

Dear Uncle Jed: I have written to the Wide-Awake circle and enjoy writing. This time I am going to tell you about The Tree.

I lived with many other trees in a big forest. In the winter my branches were bare and frozen with ice, but in the summer they had big green leaves. Many children came to be sheltered from the sun under my spreading branches. One day some men came and chopped me down. I was then taken to the mill, where I was made into lumber to build buildings. A man bought me and other pieces of lumber. We were put together with nails. Then we were in the shape of a big house. Many people lived in the house. I heard my father tell the children the story of the forest.

My Adventure Last Autumn

Dear Uncle Jed: Jed: In the autumn my brother and I went nut picking. We got our bags and pails all ready and a little lunch to eat.

When we got to the place my brother said: "Well, I'll climb up and shake some down while you pick." I took my pails and started picking, but the nuts hit my head so hard that it still aches. I told my brother to get down, and while he was climbing down he fell headfirst on to the ground. When we were all through nut picking we were very tired.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Robber Sneaks Away

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Who knows he faces sure defeat
If he be wise will plan retreat.
—Robber the Rat.

That was a great fight over by the old stone wall just inside the Old Orchard. In no time at all there was an excited audience. All the feathered folk of the Old Orchard were there. Sammy Jay was screaming at the top of his lungs, Bully the English Sparrow, Welcome Robin, Winsome Bluebird, Goldie the Oriole, Scrapper the Kingbird, Tommy Tit the Chickadee, Skimmer the Swallow and a lot more were on hand to watch that fight between Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel and Robber the Rat.

Robber hasn't a friend in the world. While some of those feathered folk had often quarreled with Happy Jack Squirrel, they were all for him now. From every side they shrieked encouragement.

Now, Robber the Rat is no coward. When he sees that he must fight, he will fight savagely, and that is what he was doing now. When he had started that fight he made the last dash but that he should touch good Happy Jack flying for his life, more than once he had made a cut turn, till he hadn't the least fear of Happy Jack, so his surprise was the more complete when he discovered that Happy Jack was too much for him. It was hard to admit to himself, but facts are facts, and he soon realized that, if he wanted to save his life, he would have to get away.

At last Happy Jack lost his hold for a second. With a sudden wrench, Robber tore himself loose. He wasted no time then. He started for his hole as fast as his legs could take him. He was a sorry looking sight. His coat was torn and he was bleeding from many cuts. He was actually wabbly on his legs. But fear gave him strength and he disappeared in his hole with Happy Jack right at his heels. Happy Jack stopped at the entrance. He didn't like the idea of going down under ground. So he stopped at the entrance and contented himself with making dreadful threats. He dared Robber to come out again.

But Robber had no thought of coming out. The one thing he wanted was to get where Happy Jack couldn't reach him. He paid no attention to Happy Jack's taunts. He was too utterly whipped and miserable to care. Finally Happy Jack marched proudly back to the flat stone where Farmer Brown's Boy had left breakfast for the Squirrel family. Mrs. Squirrel and the four children came down from the tree in which they had watched the great fight. How their tongues flew as they talked it all over! How they praised Happy Jack! How proud they were of him!

Every once in a while Happy Jack would jump down and run over to the hole of Robber the Rat. He would dare Robber to come out. He would call him names. But at no time did he get a reply. Then he would go back to the big flat stone to resume his breakfast.

Meanwhile all the other Orchard people had talked over the great fight and had said a lot of nice things about Happy Jack, then had resumed their home duties. There was no question but that Happy Jack had won their respect. Yes, indeed, he had won their respect. They were proud of him. Even Scrapper the Kingbird, who is as you know utterly fearless, had some very pleasant things to say about the way in which Happy Jack had faced Robber the Rat.

That night, when the Black Shadows had crept out over the Old Orchard, Robber stole up to the entrance and peered out. Then, sure that the way was clear, he came out and crossed Farmer Brown's barnyard to the barn, where he had been born, and where he had made his home until he had ventured over to that hole under the old wall.

"A Squirrel's teeth are sharp," he kept saying over and over to himself. "A Squirrel's teeth are sharp. I've had all I want of them."

MARKET CLOSED IRREGULAR AFTER RUNNING INTO A WAVE OF SELLING

NEW YORK, June 24—(AP)—The mid-year money pinch began today when the call money rate was marked up from 7 to 10 per cent, and the stock market, which has opened with another display of strength, ran into a heavy wave of selling which left final quotations irregular. Most of the early gains, which ran from 2 to 3 points in many instances and much higher in a few specialties, were cut down or wiped out, and a rather long list of stocks closed with net declines of 1 to 4 points.

Trading started off at a brisk pace, several blocks of 5,000 to 10,000 shares changing hands in the early trading, but it slowed up later, and the day's total just crossed 2,000,000 shares.

Estimates of loans called during the day ranged from $50,000,000 to $80,000,000. Some of this represented the withdrawal of funds by corporations and others in preparation of mid-year settlements, and some of it the usual "window dressing" by banks in anticipation of a comptroller's call on June 30. Call money renewed unchanged at 7 but advanced to 8, 9 and 10 as loans were called. This was the first time that the official rate has been 10 per cent since May 15, and some "outside loans" were reported to have been arranged as high as 12 per cent, indicating that a further rise in the official rate was likely this week. Time money rates also were somewhat firmer.

Except for the higher call money rates and reports of another substantial increase in California crude oil production last week, most of the day's news developments were favorable. Wheat rallied about 3 cents a bushel but lost about half its gain. Youngstown steel plants were reported to be operating at practical capacity, a better demand was noted for copper, refined sugar prices were advanced and stockholders of the International Mercantile Marine company approved the recapitalization plan.

Some of the high priced industrials and rails were again whirled upward in rather spectacular fashion. Auburn Auto, which sold as low as 221 this year, soared 17 1-4 points to a new high record of 414 1-4 and closed at the top. New York and Harlem jumped 16 points to 327 on odd lot sales. Adams Express soared 35 points to 625.

Curiously, General Motors and Radio Corporation common, which have been subjected to "bear" attacks on the theory that they would be among the first to sell down in a money pinch made their best prices of the day after the maximum call money rate was posted, closing with net gains of 1 3-4 and 2 5-8 points respectively. American Can also was heavily bought in the late trading, closing 2 1-2 points higher at 148 3-4 or less than 3 1-2 points below the year's high.

Copper shares with the exception of American Smelting were under pressure on the theory that distribution was taking place in those issues. Anaconda opened with a block of 10,000 shares at 118 1-4, sold down to 114 3-4 and closed at 115 1-4, off 2 1-4 net.

Mexican Seaboard opened nearly 3 points higher on the announcement that its new Kennedy well showed such a tremendous volume of gas at 6410 feet that extreme measures were necessary to control the flow. Other oils were sluggish, Skelly selling down 2 points.

Rails, in which a big summer market is now predicted, started upward at the start, but the buying movement died down when money rates went up. Atchison, New Haven, Norfolk and Western, Union Pacific and Pennsylvania all attained new high prices for the year, the last-named selling at the best price in about 20 years.

Baldwin Locomotive, which is reported to be considering a 4 for 1 stock split up and the declaration of a stock dividend this week, sold down 9 points on a few transactions. The Fisher and Cutten interests, which control Baldwin, are reported to still have in mind a merger of Baldwin, Westinghouse Electric and other companies.

Foreign exchanges drifted within a rather narrow range, sterling cables holding steady around $4.84 13-16, making further gold imports likely.

The rise in wheat was attributed to reports of frost in Canada, and a decrease in the domestic visible supply. Corn eased slightly on forecasts of better crop weather. Cotton closed unchanged at 19 cents a bale higher.

New Model Home on Town Street

NORWICH'S FIRST MODEL HOME READY FOR INSPECTION ON WEDNESDAY

Model Home at 61 Town Street is Being Sponsored by Schwartz Bros. and B. F. Krieger, the Owner—Other Merchants Contribute to Furnishings of the House.

Norwich's first model home, located at 61 Town street, will be ready for public inspection on Wednesday. The idea of the model home, practiced for some time in larger cities, is new to Norwich and is sponsored by Schwartz Bros. and B. F. Krieger, owner of the house. The house is completely furnished, even to the minutest detail by Norwich merchants, who are co-operating with Schwartz Bros. and Mr. Krieger to show Norwich people how a home can be furnished at a moderate cost, yet very attractively.

The house itself is very attractive being of the semi-bungalow type set on a terraced lot. It is 26x30 feet with a concrete foundation and cement block under-pinning. The house has six rooms, bath and sun-parlor, the kitchen, living room, dining room and sun parlor being on the first floor with the three bedrooms and bath on the second floor. All the floors are of hardwood and the walls are in white semi-finish plaster. The trim is in natural wood. The exterior finish is in wide clapboards with a composition shingle roof. The windows have one large pane of glass in the lower sash while the upper sash has the small square panes.

The heating is by steam with a Burnham heater in the cellar. The plumbing is of brass piping throughout the house. There is a hot water boiler in the cellar. The bathroom fixtures are of white porcelain.

The electrical fixtures in the model home are very attractive the main fixture being in oxidized silver and bronze. The hall lamp is of the same design. In the sun-parlor the fixture is of crystal. The dining room and living room fixtures are the same with wall-lights in the living room. A kitchen unit furnishes light for the kitchen.

As one enters the house one is impressed by the very home like atmosphere. Edgar Guest once said that "it takes a heap o' living in a house to make it home," but this home-like atmosphere has been obtained very nicely without any one living in the house at all.

The hall is attractively but simply furnished with a 12 foot Axminster hall runner, walnut console table with mirror and 2 walnut cane seat chairs.

Entering the living room through double French doors one is greatly impressed with the completeness of the furnishings. The main articles of furniture is the three-piece mohair living room suite of Spanish design. In one corner is a walnut secretary of unique pattern with a ladder-back chair to match. There are three lamps in the room, a floor lamp, a bridge lamp and a handsome table lamp. The floor and bridge lamps have the latest mica shades that give a rich mellow light. The table lamp has a very pretty pleated shade. A walnut smoking stand and tumidor and walnut end table complete the furnishings, with the exception of a handsome Stromberg-Carlson radio which is furnished by the United Music Co. On the floor is a 9x12 Wilton velvet rug. Two pictures, hand-painted on black velvet relieve the whiteness of the walls.

In the sun parlor is a three-piece woven fibre sun room suite decorated in green. There is also a small table to harmonize with the suite. The table lamp is of the green water bottle design with parchment shade to match. The floor covering is an oval Wilton rug in colors of the general scheme.

The dining room is very pretty with its 10 piece walnut suite with buffet and mirror. The floor is covered with a 9x12 Axminster rug.

The kitchen is very modernly equipped. The color scheme is in ivory and blue. There is a Glenwood cabinet gas range in ivory. Hoosier breakfast set including table and four chairs, in ivory enamel to harmonize with the range. The tiled Congoleum rug in ivory and blue also harmonizes with the general color scheme.

The refrigeration is installed by the Norwich Gas and Electric department. A large all-steel General Electric refrigerator is located in a small alcove just off the kitchen yet very handy for the housewife.

Going up stairs one is impressed by the very peaceful and restful color effects of the bedrooms. There are three bedrooms, two large rooms and a child's room.

Pleasant Bedrooms

The first room on the right is done in orchid and green. There is a four-piece Moderne bedroom suite in matched diamond veneers a chaise lounge and bench covered in green silk damask. The bed spread is in orchid with bolster to match. Three Wilton scatter rugs in orchid cover the floor.

On the left of the hall is a second bedroom furnished with a Simmons metal bed of Windsor design in green enamel. There is a chest of drawers finished in walnut with hanging mirror to match. There is also a Lane cedar chest finished in green enamel. A Martha Washington sewing cabinet and boudoir chair with covering in green and rose carry out the general color scheme of this room. The spread and bolster on the bed are in green while the floor rugs are of the same general idea.

The juvenile room has a 3-3 bed with dresser, chest, night table and chairs to match and general color scheme of ivory and blue. Two blue scatter rugs cover the floor and there is a blue spread on the bed.

Draperies are Very Attractive

In the treatment of the windows the Porteous and Mitchell Co. have made every effort to make the windows a color picture. Bare and colorless windows deprive a room of interest, hospitality and charm. Colorful window hangings catch and imprison nature's coloring, permeating the indoor atmosphere with warmth, sunlight and ever changing beauty.

In the treatment of the living and dining room windows a color scheme in which cream, orange, gold, green and black predominate has been used. The window shades are cream Holland with scolloped bottoms trimmed with heavy cluny like lace. The glass curtains are Quaker net shadow lace with lovely modernistic pattern. The side overdraperies are of hand-locked Markwood cretonnes in modernistic design of orange, gold, green and black. Kirschkarft sets provide for hanging of overdrapes. The rods are in pebble-stone finish of green and gold and blend perfectly with the overdraperies.

The sun parlor window draperies are in a color scheme of orange and green on a natural ground. The drapery material is rayon casement cloth and hung on a Kirschkarft traverse set.

The kitchen color scheme is of white, cream and green with cream colored Holland shades, scolloped and trimmed bottoms. The glass curtains are a six-piece ruffled edge cottage set of fine white scrim with green dots. The tiebacks are fastened with new ornamental rosettes to match.

The bedrooms are equipped throughout with venetian striped Holland shades. There is a blue room, orchid room and a rose and green room. The hallway treatment is in gold. The glass curtains are of the new crisscross French marquisette in lovely pastel shades with tiebacks to match.

It doesn't take a very large man to make a big boast.

People are seldom on time; they are either early or late.

EIGHT BUILDING PERMITS ISSUED IN NORWICH DURING THE PAST WEEK

With favorable building weather prevailing for the past few weeks much has been accomplished by local contractors on building projects in and about Norwich. Several houses have been brought almost to the completion stage and will be ready for occupancy within the next week.

At the corner of McKinley avenue extension and Rockwell street the new colonial house being erected by Edward Neiderman is fast being completed. The exterior work with the exception of the grading is practically done and the interior is ready for the plasterers. A short distance from this house is another new dwelling going up on the McKinely avenue extension. It is of Dutch colonial type and is going to be a very attractive house. The interior work is being done at the present time.

The work of remodeling the front of the building at 16 Broadway owned by Harry M. Land has been started. The staging has been erected by the contractors and the work of tearing out the old front will be started this week. As stated before a new brick and plate glass front will be installed and the entire structure reinforced with new steel I-beams.

Contractor F. F. Sweeney has practically completed the new home for Charles Hutsler in the Harland road section. The house is very attractive and very modern.

Work on the new garage by Krieger and St. Germaine on Franklin street is coming along rapidly. The garage is of brick and steel construction and the brick walls have been nearly completed.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Palace Theatre.

After two long engagements on Broadway, first as a stage play with Blanche Yurka and more recently as a First National Vitaphone picture, "The Squall" comes to a close at the Palace theatre today.

"The Squall" is an all-talking and singing production with Myrna Loy as Nubi, the gypsy sale of passion from which the picture gets its title. It is an adaptation of the stage play by Jean Bart and has been transplanted to the screen with very few minor changes.

However the screen offers a much wider scope for presenting the gypsy customs and manners of which little was seen in the stage version. Beautiful Hungarian countrysides and colorful Hungarian people add greatly to the pictorial beauty of the screen narrative.

Jack White's genius for comedy was never more apparent than in his new all-dialogue laughmaker, "Cold Shivers," now on the bill at the Palace.

Other sound features on this program include a Pathe Sound News, the latest Sound Sportlight and the wonder reel of the screen a Pathe Sound Revue.

Rapid strides are being made in the technique of the new medium in screen productions—Fox Movietone.

In "The Different Eyes," latest product of the Fox Movietone studios at Beverly Hills, Cal., more than 50 persons have speaking parts, in contrast to the first of the "talkies" in which the casts were kept down to a scant half dozen or so.

Critics of the earlier "talkies" who complained that there seemed a definite gap between sound and dialog, are answered in unrefutable manner in "Thru Different Eyes," which is the attraction at the Palace theatre.

An excellent cast, headed by Mary Duncan, Edmund Lowe and Warner Baxter enacts this Fox Movietone play which was written by Milton Gropper and Edna Sherry. John G. Blystone directed, and A. H. Van Buren was stage director.

The "lucky bag" aboard a man-of-war is a place where the ship's police petty officer stows effects for safe keeping that are found adrift about the ship. At frequent intervals the lucky bag is opened and the effects are distributed to the owners. Lucky for the owners, but when persons are found guilty of carelessness, and they usually always are, in leaving their effects adrift, some mild form of disciplinary action is taken.

WEDDING

Anthony-Anthony

A very pretty wedding was celebrated at St. Mary's church Monday morning in the presence of 200 relatives and friends, Miss Mary Anthony, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elias Anthony and Kalil Anthony, son of Mr. and Mrs. Abdo Anthony of Beyrout, Syria, were married with a solemn nuptial high mass. Rev. I. J. McCabe officiating as celebrant, Rev. Ludovic Paradis of Occum, deacon and Rev. Nicholas Caron, sub-deacon. The bridal party entered the church to the strains of the march from Lohengrin played by James Olson, the music of the mass being sung by Mrs. George Saraxin. The bride was accompanied by her father, who gave her in marriage. Her gown was white satin back crepe with lace flounce and lilies of the valley, and embroidered with pearls. She wore an exquisite imported lace veil, the cap held with orange blossoms and lilies of the valley. Her only ornament was a pearl and crystal necklace which was the gift of the groom. She carried a bride's bouquet of ascension lilies and lilies of the valley, with ribbon shower. Her train was carried by two little children, Alice Arremoney in a dainty frock of yellow crepe and maline bonnett, carrying a basket of mixed flowers, and Master Fernard Bernier in a diminutive Tuxedo. He carried a beautiful heart shaped pink satin cushion with ribbon streamers, on which lay the two wedding rings. The matron of honor was Mrs. Melbina Lewis of Fall River, who wore a pink satin back crape period gown with maline, and a picture hat to correspond, and carried red roses. The four bride's maids wore period frocks of the same design. The bride's two sisters, Mrs. Annie Turano in pink, and Miss Josephine Anthony in peach, the bride's cousin Miss Annie Anthony of Norwich in yellow and Miss Rose Turano of Westerly in pink, carrying pink roses tied with ribbon matching their frocks. They wore rainbow sashes, rhinestone head bands and silver slippers. The best man was James Anthony of Canterbury. The ushers were George Turano, Rajeeb Joseph of Jewett City, Emile Nadeau of Norwich and Edgar LaVallee of Taftville.

Following the church ceremony a dinner was served at the bride's home on Main street, the house being decorated with wedding bells, roses and carnations. A reception was held also on Sunday, the bride wearing a peach hue gown of metallic with maline flounce. Her gifts were very numerous including silver, money, furniture, and house furnishings, cut glass, pictures and linen. Her gift to the groom was a smoking stand. She gave the matron of honor a silver tosas pendant, and silver bracelets to the bridesmaids. The flower girl received a pink crystal necklace and the ring-bearer a ring inscribed with his initials. The best man was presented by the groom with a gold ring set with rubies, and the ushers received silk handkerchiefs.

Mr. and Mrs. Anthony left in the afternoon for an automobile trip to New England beaches, visiting first Old Orchard, Me. Mrs. Anthony's traveling costume was a coral and black ensemble with black hat and fox scarf. They will live in a newly furnished apartment, just completed for them by the parents in the Anthony block. Both the bride and groom are very popular and well known in town and surrounding towns, on account of their connection with the Anthony stores. They have the best wishes of a host of friends. Guests were present from Norwich, Canterbury, Fall River, Gardner, Worcester, Fitchburg, New York, Moosup, Newport, New London, Danielson and Jewett City.

ANNOUNCEMENTS

Breed Theatre

The great conflict that overturned traditions and uprooted established precedents has brought about the happiness of a maid of the Danube, portrayed by Leatrice Joy in her new De Mille studio production, "The Blue Danube," filmed for Pathe under the direction of Paul Sloane and which will be shown today at the Breed theatre for the last time.

Nils Asther, noted Swedish actor who won fame in "Topsy and Eva" and "Sorrell and Son," plays the leading role opposite Miss Joy. He is the son of a penniless baron in "The Blue Danube" whose father is desirous of obtaining a wealthy daughter-in-law.

Joseph Schildkraut, whose characterization of Judas in Cecil B. De Mille's "The King of Kings" proved one of the outstanding cinema portrayals of the past season and who played the leading role in "His Dog" and a featured part in "The Forbidden Woman," essays the role of a jealous hunchback — a part that abounds in strength and force of dramatic menace.

Seena Owen is cast as Helena, daughter of a rich brewer and rival for the sweetheart of the peasant maid of the Danube. May Robson is the heroine's mother, Albert Gran and Frank Reicher appear in important roles.

Broadway Theatre.

The Broadway theatre this week is including in its program one of the snappiest and most entertaining pictures seen here in many days. It is King of the Campus, one of "The Collegians," series of short screen comedy drama. The series is built around the life and adventures in a fresh-water co-educational college and is one of the liveliest college pictures ever screened.

George Lewis, a very presentable young Hollywood Adonis, is the star. He is the hero in the various athletic events of the college. Dorothy Gulliver, said to be a beauty contest prize winner, and rightly so, has the role of the most popular co-ed and the star's sweetheart. Hayden Stevenson is the coach, Eddie Phillips is the rival upperclassman, and Churchill Ross the bookworm student. In addition there are scores of pretty co-eds and handsome college boys. Hollywood must have been closely combed to gather so much youth and beauty into one cast.

"The Collegians" stories were written by Carl Laemmle, Jr., and directed by Nat Ross for Universal. The productions are unusually elaborate for short screen offerings, and are keyed up to a high tempo of adventurous escapades, thrilling college contests and the spirited rivalries of the campus. Bring on the next one.

The 1929 graduating class of Norwich Free Academy were guests yesterday afternoon of Mr. Snider, manager of the Broadway theatre.

Tom Mix in Sells Floto

How to properly rear boys and girls is a problem mothers throughout the world have long pondered over, and not a day passes but a score and more of them seek the advice of Tom Mix, in the belief that he understands children. Tom and Tony, his famous horse, are coming to Willimantic with Sells Floto circus on Wednesday, June 26.

Mr. Mix's daily fan mail is plentifully sprinkled with letters from anxious mothers seeking the noted circus star's advice on "how best to raise little Willie." Mothers realize that Mr. Mix is the small boy's hero and believe that instructions and advice from him will be followed with more relish than that of father, mother and the family doctor combined.

No one, perhaps, has more pronounced views on the subject than Mr. Mix. Particularly does he believe that most small boys and small girls are sent to school at an age when they should be still playing outdoors. In other words, he insists that children should be kept close to nature until they have absorbed what he terms "animal instinct."

"Let your kiddies run wild and they will at least be healthy. The trainin' of society can be introduced later with ease."

"I know this, because I have tried it out. I have a little girl, 'Tommy,' are nine, that would not be afraid if left at night in the middle of a prairie or forest—I know that she would be able to work her way home or find help without bein' the least frightened, and she has got good manners besides. In fact, so much at home is Tommy in the 'land of out-of-doors' that she has even become spunky and don't like advice, which isn't so bad after all."

Sells Floto will also be in New London on Thursday, June 27.

Strain Upon Truth

The strain upon truth in advertising becomes too great when the public is told that other cigarettes enjoy the toasting process. It takes three years to produce Lucky Strike's flavor. This unrivaled cigarette is a blend of finest tobaccos from each of three consecutive growths—the cream of the crop. Then comes the secret toasting process which in the opinion of 20,679* physicians makes Lucky Strike less irritating than other cigarettes. This exclusive heat treatment also purifies the tobacco and adds a touch of nut-sweet flavor—appetizing, delicious, different—the earmark of one of the world's most popular products.

WEDDING

Kapszukiewicz-Klukowski

A very pretty June wedding took place Monday morning at 9 o'clock at St. Joseph's church when Miss Eugenia Matilda Klukowski, daughter of John and Sophia Klukowski, of 259 Central avenue, was united in marriage by the pastor, Rev. S. A. Luisk, to Frank Joseph Kapszukiewicz, son of William and Katherine Kapszukiewicz. Miss Helen Borowski of ew Britain was maid of honor with the Misses Gertrude Kapszukiewicz, sister of the groom, Bertha Rymsza, Jean Slovak, Gladys Powichrowski and Celia Bilda as bridesmaids. The bride was charmingly gowned in white satin and Spanish lace and wore a flowing veil of tulle caught up with orange blossoms and carried a shower bouquet of white roses and lilies of the valley. Her maid of honor was handsomely attired in gown of blue georgette with hat to match and carried an arm bouquet of pink roses.

Miss Rymsza's gown was of blue chiffon, Miss Slovak wore yellow chiffon, Miss Powchrowski was attired in peach chiffon, Miss Bilda's gown was of orchid. The groom's sister wore Nile green chiffon. The bridesmaids carried bouquets of pink roses and wore picture hats to correspond with their gowns.

Stanley Kapszukiewicz, a brother of the groom acted as best man while the ushers at the church were Henry Klukowski, a brother of the bride, Joseph Rymsza, Otilio Bisconette, Peter Novak and Henry Lewan. Following the church ceremony there was a wedding breakfast and reception at Pulaski hall which nearly 200 attended, with relatives present from New Britain, Hartford, Boston and New Bedford. Dancing was enjoyed until a late hour in the evening. Mr. and Mrs. Kapszukiewicz left later in the afternoon for a two week's tour of New York state and Pennsylvania. On their return they will be at home to their many friends at 259 Central avenue, the home of the bride's parents. Both the bride and groom, who were the recipient of many wedding gifts, are very popular and have a large circle of friends who wish them success and happiness in their married life. As a going away costume the bride wore a blue georgette ensemble suit.

Masonic Bodies at Church

St. James' lodge, No. 23, Somerset lodge, No. 54, F. and A. M., and Sachem chapter, No. 67, O. E. S. attended the Episcopal service Sunday at St. Andrew's church by invitation of the pastor, Rev. E. J. Morris. The music was in charge of the organist, Mrs. Ervin, assisted by the choir director, Jessie Lockhart, and was as follows: Processional, Holy, Holy, Holy, Lord God Almighty; Venite solo by Mrs. Lathrop; Te Deum, Laudamus; solos by Mrs. Lathrop and Mrs. Evans; Jubilate; Hymn, Nearer My God to Thee; offertory, I Will Magnify the Lord; solos by Mr. James Lochart and Mrs. Evans; recessional, All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name.

The pastor's text was Job 7, 17, "What is man that thou shouldest magnify him?" Certainly he spoke as follows: A great writer has said that the symbol most fitly respresenting this age is the interrogation point. It is an age of questioning. The three great questions of this age are: One—What is man? What kind of a being is he? Two—Who is Jesus Christ, and the God he reveals. Three—What salvation or destiny has he prepared for men? The Bible alone answers these three great questions of the soul. Let us escame the first question. "What is man?" Materialistic science says man is a splendid animal. He is only material. Are you satisfied with that answer? Why these longings and aspirations after something better? Does agnosticism help us? No! states we do not know there is anything in man. Open the old Bible, we read an answer to our question, "What is man?" Man is a being created in the image of God intellectually and morally.

Rev. orris concluded with many fitting illustrations urging the brethren to learn of man's great leader, Jesus Christ.

NORWICH MAN FATALLY BURNED WHEN PINNED UNDER MOTORCYCLE

Alesk Wojciechowski, 23, of No. 12 Cove street, was fatally burned about five o'clock Monday afternoon, when the motorcycle he was riding overturned, caught fire and pinned him beneath it on the Jewett City river highway in the town of Lisbon. He died at 8:10 o'clock Monday evening at the W. W. Backus hospital, where he was rushed in the machine of Rev. Fr. Carron, assistant pastor of St. Mary's church, Jewett City, who came along and found the young man under the cycle. Wojciechowski was extensively burned all over the body, having received first, second and third degree burns.

From observation of the highway it is believed that after a front tire blew out on the cycle, the driver attempted to bring it to a stop, as marks on the highway were left for a distance of 100 feet. The cycle then swerved off the road, ran into an embankment and in overturning pinned Wojciechowski beneath the machine, then catching fire. Evidently the cycle fell in such a way as to strike Wojciechowski in a vital spot, rendering him unconscious, so that he was unable to free himself.

The cycle probably burst into flames from the impact of the collision with the embankment and the burning gasoline from the tank enveloping him in flames burned him extensively before passing motorists appeared to assist him. When he was discovered underneath the cycle, which had been practically destroyed from the blaze, he was removed by Rev. Fr. Carron, and Morris Sussman of Bozrah and placed in the latter's machine, who rushed him to the hospital.

Shortly before six o'clock a call was received at police headquarters, notifying them that a machine was on fire on the Jewett City highway and asking for help. Officers Luke Riley and Michael Pounch were detailed on the case and on arriving on the scene found the motorcycle laying in the gutter, but the driver had been taken away. At 6 o'clock the Norwich fire department was acquainted with the fire and Lieutenants Charles Culver and Arthur Porter responded, but the blaze had been put out on their arrival.

The officers had a difficult job in removing the cycle from the gutter to a place on the embankment, as it was still hot and had to be handled carefully. In removing the cycle a number of startling discoveries were made, a number of pieces of money and a low shoe being found; also a pair of glasses in a case. Both the shoe and the spectacle case were charred. It was said that when Wojciechowski was taken from beneath the cycle it was discovered that flesh from his lower limbs were burned off.

At the hospital upon examination it was seen that his condition was critical and but little hope was held out for his recovery.

AUTOMOBILE STRUCK GIRL ON BOSWELL AVENUE

An automobile driven by G. Alstadt of 25 Boswell avenue, a little after noon Saturday ran into and knocked down a seven-year old girl, Mary Lantigne of Shirley, Mass. The child was taken to the Backus hospital but later went to the home of Paul Gosselon at 102 Boswell avenue where she and her parents are visiting.

The driver of the machine brought the car to a stop within its own length after hitting the child who was taken out from under the wheels. The little girl sustained bruises about the body and head.

DIVORCE WITH ALIMONY GRANTED IN PARSONS SUIT

Judge Allyn L. Brown who heard on Wednesday and Thursday the contested divorce suit of Lena Thurlow Parsons of Taftville against Thomas Parsons, now of Plainville, has rendered judgment for the plaintiff, granting divorce to Mrs. Parsons, with alimony of $750 and the right to resume her maiden name of Lena Thurlow. Mrs. Parsons sued for divorce on the grounds of a statutory offense committed by Mr. Parsons and supported her petition by the evidence she secured by trailing her husbond with two detectives on the night of Sept. 24, 1927 in Bristol. The couple were married Sept. 25, 1919.

In the divorce suit Mrs. Parsons attached about $1,000 in a bank account of her husband's.

APPEALS FINE IMPOSED ON RECKLESS DRIVING CHARGE

Peter Ballaro, 36, of this city was fined $75 and costs, a total of $86.66, on the charge of reckless driving when he was presented in the city court Monday morning. He took an appeal to the common pleas court and posted a bond of $200.

Ballaro was summoned into court by State Policeman Arthur Whitmarsh after a collision Saturday evening at the corner of West Main and Dunham streets where the car driven by Ballaro ran into and upset the machine driven by Samuel Green of East Great Plain. Mr. Green's machine was struck from the rear by the other car, but no great damage was done to either car, it was reported.

DIVORCE JUDGMENT GIVEN FOR COLCHESTER MAN

By judgment given by Judge Allyn L. Brown of the superior court, divorce is granted to Ernest Langevin of Colchester from Florence Gelinas Langevin, formerly of Taftville. The marriage of the couple took place April 14, 1925.

Langevin brought suit for divorce immediately after his wife had been presented in the May term of the criminal superior court on the charge of a statutory offense committed with Burrell Pierce of Bozrah, who was sent to jail for six months. Mrs. Langevin was also found guilty and the divorce was granted for that reason.

Motorcycle Jumped Sidewalk

A motorcycle which was momentarily out of control of its rider as he drew up to the curb on Franklin street in front of the Thayer building about 5 o'clock Monday afternoon jumped the curb, went through a group of frightened women and brought up again the window of the First National store. A piece of the window molding was knocked off but this was fortunately the only damage done.

DETROIT, June 24.—(AP)—A more adequate national defense, increased allowances for national guard units civil military training camps, restricted immigration and a universal conscription law were endorsed today by 6,000 delegates to the ninth annual convention of the disabled American veterans of the World war, at the opening business session of the convention.

The report of the organization's executive committee, adopted without debate, also suggested that the veteran's bureau regional offices establish employment agencies for disabled men.

It also was recommended that the veterans bureau establish a system of home treatment for tubercular cases with a maintenance allowance for each patient.

Charges were made that the veterans bureau functioned only when demands were made upon it through a routine full of "red tape." "It is most regrettable," said National Commander Millard W. Rice in his annual report.

NORWICH TOWN

GRADUATING CLASS HELD PICNIC AT MOHEGAN PARK

Chaperoned by Principal William G. Tarbox, and the assistant principal, Miss Florence M. Bennett, almost the entire graduating class of Samuel Huntington school, Norwich Town, held a most enjoyable class picnic at Mohegan park Monday. It was estimated that about 20 boys and girls of the 39 members attended. At the appointed hour, 11 o'clock, the company assembled at the park where the seesaw, swings, boating, bathing, etc., were hugely enjoyed by the young people. The luncheon at noon was the first feature of the outing, which was brought to a close about 4:30. Several others from Norwich Town who have an interest in this school, also visited the park for a picnic luncheon and to enjoy the cool breeze from the lake, as well as the beautiful grandeur of the foliage and flowers in the park at this season of the year.

The committee which is to have charge of the strawberry supper, comprises the following members of the woman's department of the League of Service of the First Congregational church: Mrs. John L. Browning, chairman, and Mrs. Walter M. Hitchon, Jr., Mrs. Frederick Ross, Mrs. Charles Barber, Mrs. Harriet Barber, Mrs. Ernest Washington, and the Misses Bernice Underwood, and Margaret Chapin.

At Sunday morning worship at the Congregational church, the pulpit was supplied by Rev. Edward M. Chapman, a retired clergyman of New London, who preached an eloquent sermon on "The Surgeries of God." Three texts were referred to in the course of the sermon, Psalm 139:10, Luke 13:30, and Matthew 25:34.

The Congregational Young People's Christian Endeavor society held a leaderless meeting Sunday evening when the lesson for discussion was "Jesus Teaching Us Self-Control."

E. Brainard all of Mystic, when the party motored to Norwich Town, to call at the home of Mrs. Brainard's brother, Dr. Charles H. Lamb.

POETRY

Battle-Song of Faith.

We strain toward Heaven and lay hold on God,
With starved eyes we stumble in hard ways
And to the morning when we see life end
Succeeds the kingdom of bewildered days.
But what of that? Into the sullen flesh
Our souls drive home the spur with splendid sting.
Bleeding and soiled, we gird ourselves afresh,
Forth, and make firm a highway for the King.

The loveless greed the centuries have stored
In marshy foulness traps our faltering feet;
The sins of men whom punishment ignored
Like fever in our weakened pulses beat;
But what of that? The shame is not to fall
Nor is the visitor's laurel everything.
To fight until we fall is to prevail.
Forth, and make firm a highway for the King.

Yes, cast our lives into the ancient slough,
And fall we shouting, with uplifted face;
Over the spot where mired we struggle now
Shall march in triumph a transfigured race.
They shall exult where weary we have wept—
They shall achieve where we have striven in vain—
Leaping in vigor where we have faintly crept,
Joyous along the road we paved with pain.

What though we seem to sink in the morass?
Under those unborn feet our dust shall sing.
When o'er our failure perfect they shall pass,
Forth, and make firm a highway for the King.

—Amelia Josephine Burr.

Summary

Though I leave the sea, always I come Back to sound of dark water in the cove.
Back to the tide's slow and untiring drum
Against the ears: this only do I love.
The sound of waves against a foaming bluff,
The sound of a rising wind on a night of stars.
After all, this only is enough
To calm the heart, this and the ploughing spars
Of many ships sailing for fabulous lands,
Of many ships bound for the wind's loud wonder,
Sailing beyond the cool kind wash of the sands—
Into the loud dark laughter of the thunder.

GREAT BRITAIN TO RESUME DIPLOMACY WITH MOSCOW

New Labor Government Has Cabled Intentions to All the Dominion Governments of the British Empire—Diplomatic Relations With the Soviet Government Were Broken Off in May, 1927, Following Raid on the Headquarters of the Russian Commercial Mission in London.

LONDON, June 25—(AP)—One of the first acts of the new labor government has been to cable the announcement to all the dominion governments of the British Empire that Great Britain intends to resume diplomatic relations with soviet Russia in the near future.

Official confirmation of earlier reports to this effect was made tonight.

Political observers believe the labor ministry's move will receive sufficient support from conservative and liberal members of parliament to assure approval of British diplomatic relations with Moscow.

It has long been known that the labor party was in favor of renewing the diplomatic and trade relations with Russia broken off by the raid on Arcos House, London headquarters of the Russian commercial mission, made by the late conservative government in May 1927.

Although his majesty's government is not technically dependent on approval of its new Russian policy by the dominions, the cooperation of other parts of the British Empire is ardently desired in London.

Well-informed persons think that resumption of relations with Russia will be proposed in the king's speech from the throne July 2, which will announce the program of the government.

It is thought that the government may count on support from both opposition parties, since the leaders of the liberal party severely criticised the Baldwin government for its break with Russia. Among many young members of the conservative party there is strong sentiment for getting on normal terms with Russia.

STATEMENT MADE BY PREMIER MACDONALD

LONDON, June 25—(AP)—Premier Ramsay MacDonald announced tonight that he had talked with both American ambassadors, General Charles G. Dawes and Hugh S. Gibson, and that he hoped before many days they would be in position to make definite announcement of how negotiations for naval disarmament were to be conducted.

He told a labor reception that among matters concerning which he saw possibility of definite announcement was where a conference was to be held and the objects they were to aim at.

DIBATTISTA MURDER TRIAL IN PROGRESS IN HARTFORD

HARTFORD, June 25.—(AP) — The confession which Frank DiBattista, 25, made to the Hartford police, relating that on the night of April 1, he shot to death Samuel Kamaroff, Jefferson street grocer, in the course of a holdup, was the subject of a strong attack by him two lawyers today, when the young man went on trial for his life before three judges in the superior court.

Taking the stand late in the afternoon, DiBattista, testified that the confession was obtained April 8 after Captain Andrew J. Williams had told him to tell the truth "and save your neck." Lieut. John F. Madigan had punched him on the jaw and Detective Sergeant Charles J. Keefe had punched him on the chest. The officers followed him to the stand with terse denials of his testimony.

DiBattista will know his fate about noon tomorrow. After introducing 21 witnesses in rapid-fire order, State Attorney Hugh M. Alcorn announced that the state rested its case at 4:30 p. m., subject to the court's ruling on the admissibility of the DiBattista confession. Judge Avery, who is the presiding judge, said that the ruling would be given at the opening of court tomorrow morning.

The defense will be brief. DiBattista will resume the stand and practically make a lone fight for his life, on the claim that the shot was accidentally fired into Kamaroff's brain as he was struggling to free himself from the embattled grocer.

WENSLEY TO GIVE HIS SCOTLAND YARD DUTIES

LONDON, June 25—(AP) —Credited with solution of more murder mysteries than any living man, Frederick Wensley at the age of 54 today announced he would give over his duties as chief of the criminal intelligence division of Scotland yard to devote his time to his garden.

The control of the division was expected to revert back to the five area superintendents, known as "the big five," since the post of chief constable now held by Wensley was created more as a compliment to his remarkable record of crime detection rather than as a permanent police office.

Chief Constable Wensley plans to quit Scotland yard at the end of July. He declined a special five year extension in office beyond the age limit, offered as a signal mark of confidence on the part of the highest police authorities in England.

His career began in the Limehouse district. He came to know every nook of Chinatown and the east end and the location of anarchist's haunts and dens of iniquity in the slummy streets of Shoreditch, Whitechapel, Hackney and Wapping. Thirty years of his life were spent in ferreting about this queer underworld.

With his hawk-like features, deep set piercing eyes and bushy eyebrows, Wensley really looks the part that novelists and playwrights have assigned the detective.

PASTORAL LETTER TO MEXICAN CATHOLICS

MEXICO CITY, June 25.—(AP)— A pastoral letter to Mexican Catholics asking all efforts for a permanent solution of the religious problems was issued today by Archbishop Leopoldo Ruis Y Flores, apostolic delegate.

The letter said, "We have offered to cooperate with the government with all our force, moral and otherwise, for the betterment of the people, we therefore caution both the priests and the faithful to follow rigidly and dutifully the instructions the episcopate will issue to attain this end.

"We hope sincerely that no one will accuse the church of improperly mixing in politics because of the necessary relations which the church must have in order to bring the matter to definite solution. We repeat, as has been said many times previously, the church has no interest in maintaining or opposing particular governments, nor have we any interest in any political candidate. We desire nothing more than to fortify the principle of authority and to accept the decree of liberty which we require from the hands of all governments."

FLETCHER RESIGNS AS AMBASSADOR TO ITALY

WASHINGTON, June 25.— (AP) — Henry P. Fletcher, ambassador to Italy, will conclude 27 years of diplomatic service about October 15, President Hoover having reluctantly accepted his resignation at the insistence of the diplomat.

The chief executive has given little thought to a successor, as only urgent selections for the diplomatic corps are being made until Secretary Stimson has had opportunity to complete his survey of the field and make his recommendations for new appointments, and promotions and shifts within the service.

Mr. Fletcher is the third ambassador whose resignation has been accepted by President Hoover, but the successor of only one has been named —Charles G. Dawes, replacing Alanson B. Houghton at London. No successor to Noble B. Judah as ambassador to Cuba has been chosen nor has the place at Paris made vacant by the death of Myron T. Herrick yet been filled.

Personal plans of Mr. Fletcher are not fully known to his friends here, but there has been the suggestion that he wold like to round out his career as a senator from Pennsylvania. He is to leave Rome soon on leave of absence and his resignation will become effective at the end of this, the exact date of which has not yet been computed by the state department.

PLANNING ROUND THE WORLD NON-STOP FLIGHT

BALTIMORE, June 25.—(AP) — Alfred D. Hulse, who described himself as a lieutenant in the officers' reserve corps, left here today by plane for Detroit, after outlining plans and announcing personnel for his projected round the world, non-stop refueling flight.

Hulse said that Lieutenant Henry L. Gilback of Detroit as chief pilot, Lieutenant Roy Miller, of San Francisco, navigator, Lieutenant Edward Springer, of Edgewood arsenal, alternate pilot, Lieutenant Earl O'Connell of Lakehurst, N. J., radio operator, and himself as engineering officer and pilot would comprise the crew for the proposed trip, which he said was being backed by Ray Morley, of Nogales, Ariz.

Springer said he had no statement to make, but that he was not definitely committed to the flight. He said that he had been in conference with Hulse, but that the latter had not fully outlined his plans to him, and therefore he would not comment.

Hulse said that the flight would be attempted from west to east in a five and one-half ton monoplane which has been christened "Keystone Patrician." He said that the start would be made from Roosevelt field to Nova Scotia, where the ship would turn out over the Atlantic. He said he expected the first day's flight to take the plane to Hamburg, Germany, the second to Novogood, Russia, the third to Nome, Alaska, the fourth to Seattle, completing the entire trip in five and one-half days. He said he plans to make 22 refueling contacts during the flight.

THE ROBBERY OF $30,000 IS PRONOUNCED BOGUS

CHICAGO, June 25—(AP)—The robbery of $30,000 ink jewels from Ethelind Terry, musical comedy star, was branded as "bogus" today by Deputy Police Commissioner John Stege, while Morris Bogoslowski, Miss Terry's newly acquired brother-in-law, was held in jail as a suspect.

Denying that he had been in financial difficulties and scouting police suggestions that the robbery was "framed," Benjamin Bogeaus, Miss Terry's husband of six weeks, sought vainly to obtain his brother's release. Explaining the difference in names, he said his family had changed his name when he was three years old but that his brother had kept the original name.

Miss Terry and her husband, a reputedly wealthy real estate man, were entering their apartment in the fashionable Lincoln park district early yesterday when two men accosted them and seized the actress's jewels, forcing the couple into the lobby at the point of pistols.

Recalling that Bogeaus had a brother with a criminal record, detectives arrested the latter and invited Bobeaus and Miss Terry to headquarters to try to identify him. Neither could say that Bogoslowski was the robber.

He announced that he will take off at 4 a. m. Thursday on his proposed attempt to establish a record for a round trip flight from New York to Los Angeles.

TESTIMONY BY WIDOW OF DEFUNCT CITY TRUST CO.

NEW YORK, June 25.—(AP)—Dressed in deep mourning and crying softly at times, Mrs. Angelina Ferrari, widow of the president of the defunct City Trust company, testified today that, during the administration of former Superintendent Frank H. Warder, her husband had told her he "had the state banking department in his pocket" and that he frequently gave Warder money.

The hearing is being held before Robert Moses, Moreland act commissioner, who is investigating the City Trust collapse and the conduct of the state banking department under Warder.

Later in her testimony Mrs. Ferrari said her husband frequently gave Warder money, and that Warder "was always asking for more."

Aside from those statements, the high spot of Mrs. Ferrari's stay on the stand came when it was gleaned that Teresina Cipullo, an 83-year old woman who was once listed as owner of a 32 story building in Park Row, did not know she owned the building and was so poor that Mrs. Ferrari often had to support her.

Mrs. Ferrari testified that her husband had also mentioned payment of money to Edward F. Glynn, nephew of former Governor Al Smith. Glynn, a lawyer, previously testified he had done some work for Ferrari in connection with the formation of the City Trust company.

Mrs. Ferrari asserted that money drawn out of the bank after her husband's death had been given to her brother, Genaro Dell'Osso, for safe keeping. She said she had not drawn $24,000 from the bank at his direction, however, and appeared surprised when she was shown vouchers indicating that her brother had opened an account in the Corn Exchange bank with the check drawn on the City Trust.

PLEADED GUILTY TO TWO COUNTS OF THEFT

NEW HAVEN, June 25 —(AP)— Thomas D. Barber, 33, of New York city, pleaded guilty today in criminal superior court to a charge of two counts of theft and was sentenced to from two to six years in the state prison at Wethersfield. He was caught by the alertness of a young girl who saw him enter the house and later come out with the suitcase.

FURNISHED THE BLOOD TRANSFUSION FOR SON

MINNEAPOLIS, Minn., June 25—(AP)—Walter N. Newton, one of President Hoover's secretaries, today furnished the blood for a transfusion operation on his 9-year old son, John Marshall Newton, whose leg was crushed by a street car last Thursday. The operation was performed in an effort to build up the boy's strength preparatory to amputation of the leg.

American Financiers Visit White House

Young, Morgan, Lamont Perkins Tell of Repa[illegible] Agreement.

WASHINGTON, June 25—(AP)—Intimate details of the negotiations leading up to the German reparations agreement were given to President Hoover today by the four unofficial American representatives who had a large hand in its consummation.

The report was made to the chief executive around the luncheon table at the white house. All of the "big four" delegation—Owen D. Young, J. P. Morgan, Thomas W. Lamont and Nelson Perkins—attended as did Secretary Stimson, Under Secretary Cotton and Assistant Secretary Castle of the state department, and Secretary Mellon and Under Secretary Mills of the treasury.

After the luncheon the American financiers, who were selected for their task by the allied governments with the approval of the then president Calvin Coolidge, said they merely had made a verbal report on the general situation of the reparations revision as it was formulated during the sessions of the committee of experts in Paris. They added general matters beyond the scope of the committee's work also were discussed.

Administration officials added little to this statement, but it was understood the general world financial situation entered into the conversations, with special attention upon the probable effect of the agreement on world financial and trade conditions.

Indirectly involved in the reparations agreement were reductions in the payments to the United States on account of the cost of the army of occupation on the Rhine and awards of the mixed claims commission. These were agreed to by the administration in advance of the agreement and probably will be submitted to congress for the necessary grant of authority.

Since the United States is not a party to the reparations agreement itself, there is no occasion for a submission of that agreement to congress nor has the United States any direct concern with the conferences of the interested powers which probably will be held next month for the substitution of the Young plan for the Dawes settlement and for the evacuation of the Rhineland.

Arriving here early in the day, the American financiers went to the state department to make a personal report to Secretary Stimson. The conference lasted only a short time. The four delegates left later for their homes in New York and Boston.

CASHIER HIRED GUNMAN TO BEAT AND ROB HIM

NEW YORK, June 25.—(AP)— The self-styled cashier victim of $3,500 holdup at the Chanin theatre on June 14, Police Commissioner Whalen said today, not only staged the robbery but hired an experienced gunman to beat him over the head to provide convincing evidence of the "theft."

The gunman received $5,000 for administering the beating and still is at liberty, Whalen said after police had arrested William Deegan, 19, the cashier, and Theodore Reid and Robert J. Pickett, so-called accomplices. Reid and Pickett, Whalen said, hit Deegan with a rubber hose to add to the evidence left by the professional gunman.

Police said their investigation showed that roistering about Broadway had been too much for Deegan's $25 weekly salary, and the cashier dipped into the theatre till for $800 and then executed the holdup to cover the shortage.

Most of the proceeds of the holdup, however, went the way of Deegan's salary, police said, although they added the cashier turned over a good share of the loot to a sweetheart.

DIVORCE GRANTED MRS. GERTRUDE HALL BASSETT

NEW HAVEN, June 25—(AP)—Mrs. Gertrude Hall Bassett, assistant postmaster at Madison, was granted a divorce today by Judge Arthur F. Ells in superior court, from Richard E. Bassett. Mrs. Bassett, in her plea for divorce charged that her husband eloped with Mrs. Muriel B. Nelson, a Madison storekeeper and heiress to part of the wealth of Major George Blanchard, Brooklyn, N. Y., hotel owner. Mrs. Bassett alleged that her husband accompanied Mrs. Nelson to California, living with her at different places in the United States.

Mrs. Bassett was given an alimony settlement of $750 and the custody of a nine year old child, with $65 a month for his support.

No 'Dry' Propaganda [illegible] Public Schools

Declaration Made by Treasury Department in Statement Issued Yesterday.

WASHINGTON, June 25—(AP)—The treasury department does not intend to use the public schools as a medium for disseminating propaganda favorable to prohibition.

Announcement of this policy was made late today by Prohibition Commissioner Doran after the publication of a pamphlet containing slogans supporting prohibition and an admonition to teachers to help law enforcement in their work, by Anna B. Sutter, director of the statistical and educational division of the prohibition bureau.

Commissioner Doran issued the announcement following a conference with Under Secretary Mills, Assistant Secretary Lowman and Deputy Prohibition Commissioner Jackson, in the office of Mills. Earlier in the day Miss Sutter was summoned to a conference with Assistant Secretary Lowman dealing with the publication of the pamphlet which also listed eight subjects for schools which dealt with prohibition.

Miss Sutter also was quoted in newspaper articles as having said she hoped congress would later appropriate funds to enable the bureau to disseminate prohibition propaganda over the radio and in the newspapers. High treasury officials said they had not heard of the plan or approved it.

GETS LIFE IMPRISONMENT FOR MURDER OF HIS SON

DECATUR, Ala., June 25—(AP)—William Ledlow, Morgan county farmer, was sentenced to life imprisonment late today for the murder two months ago of his 14 year old son Thomas. The state had asked for the death penalty.

Ledlow's wife testified that her husband fired a charge of buckshot into her son's knee cap and then for several hours refused to summon medical aid.

The state charged that Ledlow allowed his son to bleed to death before an effort was made to secure a doctor. The jury recommended a life sentence.

Mrs. Ledlow testified her husband had upbraided his son for failure to bring kindling wood into the house. Ledlow said the shooting was accidental during a struggle for the gun.

TESTIMONY GIVEN THAT ACCOUNTS OF BISHOP CANNON WERE SPECULATIVE

NEW YORK, June 25—(AP)—The theoretical head of Kable, and company, brokers for Bishop James Cannon, Jr., of the Methodist Episcopal church south, testified today that to the bishop he was "just the office boy" although able to identify the bishop's account as one for stock speculation.

The witness was Charles W. Kable, appearing at a referee's hearing into the bankruptcy of Kable and company, which has been raided as a bucket shop. Kable and Harry L. Goldhurst, a member of the firm, are under indictment for using the mails to defraud in connection with the operations of the company.

Kable said he was a mere figurehead for Goldhurst who had brought in the southern bishop as the prize customer of the firm. Kable said his sole contact with the bishop consisted of saying good morning to him when the bishop entered the office on a half dozen occasions.

"As far as he was concerned," said Kable, "I was just the office boy."

Kable was able, however, to explain the firm's method of selling securities on the partial payment plan, a basis on which Bishop Cannon in Washington has said he purchased securities from the company. Under the plan securities would be delivered when the customer had paid in full for the Kable was shown a photostatic copy of the bishop's account, and E. Edward Benoit, attorney for Miss Anna Fains, trustee in bankruptcy, asked:

"Don't you see that Bishop Cannon's was really a speculative account, that those securities were not held for any length of time."

Kable replied: "The account must have been speculative in view of the amount and volume of transactions."

Benoit pointed to the initial transaction—the purchase of 600 shares of Lehsigh valley. Kable said the initial payment under the partial payment plan should have been about $600.

"But he had made no payment," the lawyer suggested.

"No, sir," the witness answered, adding that the bishop's credit with Goldhurst was good.

Kable said the bishop apparently also had a high regard for Goldhurst. "He told me," the witness added, "he could recommend anything to Bishop Cannon and the bishop would tell him to buy it."

On one of the bishop's trips about the world in the interests of the Anti-Saloon league, Kable said Goldhurst had a list of the places the bishop would be and kept in touch with him.

The death of Walter Treadway Huntington, 21 years old Harvard junior whose body was found in a lonely swamp in Windsor, early in the morning of May 8, went on the records of the superior court as an unsolved mystery.

A proposal that federal government funds for the enforcement of prohibition should not be allotted to states which do not co-operate in the upholding of the dry law was made by Wade H. Ellis, assistant to the attorney general.

Two gangsters, one wanted in Chicago and Los Angeles for murder, are dead and a third is in a hospital wounded in the back following a midnight gun battle among themselves in front of a fashionable hotel in Kansas City.

John Sam, Chinese of Brooklyn, N. York, is being held in Providence by federal authorities without bail for further investigation, following his arraignment on a charge of failure to have a certificate of residence in his possession.

John Barrett, chairman of the international Pan-American committee, characterized the settlement of Mexico's religious controversy as "a magnificent example of pan-Americanism" in an address before the Rhode Island College of Education.

Rev. Domenico Ricci, pastor of Our Lady of Mount Carmel church, Meriden, who halted two wedding parties at the door of his edifice explained that he did so because he believed the brides' attendants were attired "immodestly," for entrance to the church.

Joseph Conti, Massachusetts lawyer, was arrested in Jersey City, N. J., charged with stealing from Watertown and Waltham, Mass., banks. Police said Conti stole $198 from the Union National bank at Watertown and $170 from the Waltham National bank.

Three boys, shooting dice on a school playground in Chicago, were wounded by bandits armed with shotgun and pistols, who "stuck up" the game in which nearly three score youths were taking part. The bandits then scooped up the money and escaped in an automobile.

SEARCH CONTINUED FOR MISSING SPANISH AIRMEN

Ships and Airplanes of Four Nations Are Combing the Area Between the Portuguese Coast and the Azores by Sea and Air—Friends of the Aviators Cling to the Hope That the Plane Has Come Down in Some Remote Part of the Azore

MADRID, June 25—(AP)—Ships and airplanes of four nations united today in the search for Major Ramon Franco, Spanish ace who with three companions left Cartagena on Friday for the Azores in the first leg of a round trip to New York.

Spain, Italy, England and Portugal, mobilized searching parties to comb the area between the Portuguese coast and the Azores by sea and air for the missing fliers.

The Spanish government maintained its hopes that they would be found safely somewhere, either on land in some remote spot or aboard a small vessel unprovided with wireless. Nothing has been heard from them since Saturday, when a message purporting to announce their landing in the Azores was picked up by a Portuguese ship.

The belief was growing in Spain, despite general pessimism, that Major Franco might have attempted a non-stop flight from Spain to New York and been forced down somewhere beyond the Azores. This was only speculation, but a few of the friends of the aviators clung to the hope that the Spanish airplane had come down in some distant part of the Azores.

The Madrid military wireless station continued fruitlessly to investigate a wireless message that it picked up yesterday, that a British merchantman had seen airplane wreckage about a hundred miles northeast of the Azores. The Spanish liner Marquez de Comillas altered its course to proceed to the spot.

VOTE OF CONFIDENCE FOR FRENCH GOVERNMENT

PARIS, June 26, (Wednesday) —(AP) —The government of Premier Raymond Poincare was given a vote of confidence 347 to 207 early this morning after a long night's session devoted to discussion of recent clashes in Morocco between dissident tribesman and French troops. Yesterday the government had a much narrower escape when it was supported 291 to 266 in refusing to accept interpellation during debate on ratification of the debt agreement.

Foreign Minister Briand and Minister of War Painleve in long speeches said that France does not contemplate extended military operations in Morocco, her policy being one of peace. The test came on government opposition to a socialist motion demanding inquiry by a joint army and foreign affairs committee into recent events at Ait Yacoub where a French column was ambushed and many killed.

HOOVER SIGNED BOULDER DAM PROCLAMATION

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(AP)— As president of the United States, Herbert Hoover today signed a proclamation bringing into force the Colorado river compact which as secretary of commerce he negotiated six years ago between the states of Arizona, California, Colorado, Nevada, New Mexico, Utah and Wyoming.

However, Arizona has failed to comply with the conditions set out in the boulder canyon project act of last December and so is excluded from the conditions of the compact, which relates solely to the distribution of the waters of the Colorado river between these states. In announcing the signing of the proclamation, the president expressed the hope that Arizona and California "may compose their mutual problems which have hitherto prevented Arizona from joining in the compact."

"With Arizona in, the whole basin will have settled their major question of water rights for all time," the chief executive added.

LINDBERGH MADE FLIGHT WITH WIFE AS PASSENGER

COLUMBUS, Ohio, June 25—(AP)—Colonel Charles A. Lindbergh and his bride landed at the municipal airport here at 7.50 tonight, five hours after they left New York on the first leg of a flight over the coast to coast air route charted by the colonel.

Nearly one hour overdue, Lindbergh's plane passed over Norton field where a group of watchers awaited the couple, soared on to the new municipal airport on the opposite side of the city, and after circling it several times, made an easy landing.

HEAVY WEATHER PREVENTED 150 FOOT DIVE OF SUBMARINE

NEW LONDON, June 25—(AP)— Heavy weather today prevented the 25 year old submarine, Defender, from making a 150 foot dive off Block Island. Captain Sloan Dannenhower, her commander, said that as soon as the fog lifted in the sound, the Defender would take the test. If the 150 foot dive is successful, the quarter century old submersible, built by Simon Lake, will be taken over by the navy department for safety tests in conjunction with the refitted S-4

PHONE FROM PLANE OVE U. S. TO AN OFFICE IN LONDON

HADLEY FIELD, Newark, N. J. June 25—(AP)—Telephone conversations from an airplane over America to an office in Europe today, showed that the boundaries of science are ever widening but that human nature remains just about the same.

Three reporters in a plane above New Jersey talked with three reporters on the ground in London, the first public tests of such communication. It was the sort of occasion referred to by press agents as "historic" or "epoch-making."

And what did the participants in this great experiment discuss with each other? To be perfectly frank, they talked largely about the weather.

They did, to give them their due, make some attempts to dismount from the conversational beast of burden, but the attempts were largely unsuccessful and the bulk of the talk had to do with atmospheric conditions "up here" in America and "down here" in London.

Some of the conversations were fairly satisfactory as two way communication, satisfactory enough, certainly so that the experiment could be called a success. But local static and a clouded crystal in the transmitting set on the plane played havoc with much of the talk.

The crystal went "haywire" very shortly after the Associated Press reporter in the plane had called, "Hello, girl friend," across 4,000 miles of land and water to Martha Dalrymple, of the AP London staff, and had heard her reply, "Hello, Bill."

After that Miss Dalrymple's voice continued to come across the sea with some semblance of clarity but she quite evidently could hear but little of what was said to her.

SESSION OF NEW ENGLAND FIRE CHIEFS' ASSOCIATION

NEW HAVEN, June 25—(AP)—An interesting talk on "Forest Fires and Their Prevention" was one of the afternoon features of the session of the New England Fire Chiefs' association at the Hotel Taft, today, by John H. Foster, state forester, of Concord, N. H. The speaker said that over $33,000,000 worth of damage is done annually in the United States by forest fires. He said that out of all the forest lands in the country, 46 per cent. receive no fire protection.

Several addresses were given by other speakers on various subjects. James T. Delaney of Bridgeport, spoke on "Automatic Fire Control" and John S. Caldwell, assistant secretary of the New England Insurance Exchange, on "Fire Department and Insurance Company Coordination".

Announcement was made at the afternoon session of the election to life membership in the association of Herbert H. Winslow, of Lynn, Mass.

At the evening session, tonight, the chief speaker was Chief Selden R. Allen, of Brookline, Mass., who took as his subject, "Uniform Oil Burner Regulations for New England".

WOOL FEATURES HEARINGS ON THE HOUSE TARIFF BILL

WASHINGTON, June 25.—(AP)— The wool schedule, which 20 years ago played a large part in splitting republican ranks, continued to hold the attention today at hearings on the house tariff bill of three senate finance subcommittees.

Sheep and goat raisers of Texas, mill workers of New Jersey, and woolen manufacturers pleaded for higher rates than the house increases proposed on wool and woolen goods, while others held the bill duties outrageous.

Two other subcommittees added hundreds of pages of testimony to the record on glassware and sundry articles, but 55 witnesses waiting to be heard on the proposed rates on hides, leather, and shoes, now on the free list, will not be reached until tomorrow, when the controversial sugar and metals schedules also come up for hearing.

Meanwhile, President Hoover exercised his authority under the flexible tariff provision and proclaimed a rate of 3.7 cents a pound on linseed or flaxseed oil as against the present 3.4 cents duty.

YOUNG WOMEN QUESTIONED CONCERNING A MURDER

NEW YORK, June 25.—(AP)— Two young women were detained tonight for questioning in the police investigation of the slaying of Frank Marlow, boxing manager.

They were Betty Farley and Myrtle Burke, both 19, and both night club entertainers. The former, who had previously been reported to have seen Marlow yesterday in a hotel where he had registered, denied she had seen him. She said she went to the hotel to call on a friend of the slain gambler.

Meanwhile, police were searching in Boston for a motive for the slaying. Marlow had been active there for several months. Five detectives were detailed to the case here.

Marlow's bullet-riddled body was found in a grove near a Long Island cemetery last night. Police expressed the belief he had been "taken for a ride."

MISS D. H. HEVRIN MARRIED TO FREDERICK S. LOVIS, JR.

(Special to The Bulletin)

WILLIMANTIC, June 25. — Miss Dorothy Helen Hevrin, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Anthony Hevrin of 218 Jackson street became the bride of Frederick Southgate Lovis, Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Frederick S. Lovis of 26 Adelaide street, Jamaica Plain, Mass., at a pretty afternoon performed in St. Joseph's church at 4 o'clock today. In the presence of many relatives and friends the ceremony was performed by Rev. Charles M. Kelly, the double ring service being used.

The bride was most charming in a gown of white chiffon and point d'esprit. Her veil was of rose point lace and tulle and she carried a shower bouquet of Calla lilies. Her maid of honor was attired in turquoise crepe with a maine picture hat. Her bouquet was of yellow roses.

A reception was held at the home of the bride's parents, guests coming from Providence, Greenwich, Jamaica Plain, Boston, New York, this city and other places. Mr. and Mrs. Lovis left later in the evening on a wedding trip to be made in a Pierce-Arrow coach which is a gift of the groom to his bride. The couple received numerous gifts of value and beauty.

The groom is a graduate of the College of Pharmacy at Boston, Mass. and is proprietor of the Southgate pharmacy in Jamaica Plain. Upon returning from their honeymoon they will reside in a newly-built home on Willowdine road in that place. The bride is a popular member of the younger set here. She is a graduate of Windham high and the Willimantic state Normal school and has been teaching at the Natchaug grammar school for the past few years.

The meetings of the Willimantic Retary club will adjourn at 1 o'clock instead of 1:30 during the summer months according to a vote of the membership taken today. There will be short programs of speaking and music until fall. Today's program consisted of a life history by Charles B. Pomeroy and two vocational talks, Professor Irving G. Davis of Connecticut Agricultural college on Economics and Education and Captain Ellison S. Smith on The Fish Industry. These talks were the last of a series of life histories and vocational speeches given this month. Herbert W. Huber, who concluded his year today as chairman of the program committee was given a rousing vote of thanks for his excellent work in the chairmanship. Cigars were received from George E. Buck, Jr., noting the recent birth of a daughter in his family and the club made due expression of appreciation and felicitation to the new daddy. Shepard B. Palmer of the Norwich Rotary club was guest. The records showed that the "old timers" of Division B in the attendance contest had reserved the tables on the Division A group and gained a lead. The contest officially closes this week and final results will be made known at the next meeting. President-elect Louis H. Arnold, who takes office next week along with other members of the new administration, presided in the absence of President Raymond A. Parker.

In the hope of putting a stop to "whoopee" parties which are generally climaxed with a free-for-all fight at country dance halls, Justice of the Peace Clarence H. Barlow of the Ashford town court dealt out heavy penalties to a group of seven young men Saturday. Four young men employed in the construction job between Warrenville and Phoenixville engaged three Ashford youths in a battle royal at Knowlton Memorial hall during the progress of a dance held there under Willimantic auspices Friday night. They were arraigned the next day in the same hall and each fined $20 and costs on a charge of breach of the peace. Those fined were: Alfred Raylor, John Lassa and Cune Senck of Bridgeport and Casio Cassale of Danbury; John Metsas and Joseph Korirka of Ashford and Harry Keith of Eastford. The latter three were also given ten-day suspended jail sentences. Grand Juror Otto H. Hattin prosecuted.

SENATOR BINGHAM'S PLAN.

Under the provisions of the Constitution, members of congress are immune from prosecution. They can indulge in untrue and ill-founded statements regardless of the injustice or the effect they may have upon the person attacked. They stand in a protected place and belabor those who may be objectionable to them politically or otherwise.

Senator Bingham believes that there should be a curb placed upon this kind of conduct. He believes that congressmen take too great liberties as the result of the immunity which exists in their behalf and that, if the immunity were taken away many attacks upon private citizens, corporations, religious sects and churches would never be heard". In order to meet the situation, which has been made worse by the liberalization of the senate rules permitting discussion of executive nominations in open session, Senator Bingham has in mind an amendment to the Constitution which would remove from members of congress that immunity which now protects them against prosecution for libel. He would make them stick to facts and that, it should be realized, is all that ought to be indulged in. He would put a stop to the "irresponsible repetition of reports, rumors, hearsay evidence, derogatory statements and aspersions under cover of the immunity heretofore shielding them from consequences of such remarks when made in congress."

These will, of course, be objections to any such move. There will be those who will oppose the removal of any such great though unjust advantage. There will be those who will insist that such lambastings as some congressmen indulge in ought to be continued whether it is founded on facts or not and there will be those who will pretend to see where protection would be extended to individuals and corporations through such a move.

Proposing such an amendment does not necessarily insure its adoption but Senator Bingham has, nevertheless, called attention to a condition which exists and which should be corrected. Certain it is that if immunity were removed there would be far less of the wild and irresponsible talk, and there might be more constructive work.

THE DRIVER'S RESPONSIBILITY.

In connection with the crossing accident at Sheffield, Mass., when a truck carrying 13 persons was struck by an express train, it is reported that the whistle of the train was not heard by those in the truck.

Here was a case where the driver of the truck, who was numbered among those killed, was apparently engaged in talking with his passengers instead of being alert to the danger of the grade crossing, which was reported as not being considered especially dangerous. It was well known to the driver who lived close to it and he should have been so concerned with the safety of his passengers as to have his car in full control at that point in anticipation of the train which passed that point at that hour every day. He should not have required any whistle to indicate the approach of the train but should have been on the lookout for it and been ready to stop at the first indication that it was coming.

It was further reported that the children in the truck were laughing and talking, making sufficient noise in all probability to drown out a whistle. But the duty of a driver under such a situation was to protect his human cargo whether it was on the unobstructed highway or at a grade crossing.

The fatality at Sheffield was the repetition of others of a very similar character. It indicated a failure to appreciate the danger that existed at the crossing at all times. Possibly it was due to the fact that the driver had used it so often that he thought he had become immune to harm, but it simply goes to show that the driver of a passenger carrying car, like the driver of a locomotive, should be in full control of his senses and know what he is doing at all times. It is necessary in the interest of safety and when that situation prevails it means the prevention of accidents and fatalities which are needless.

COLORADO RIVER WATER.

Boulder dam has been long in the public eye. It was a long time before congress was ready to pass the legislation that authorized its construction and it will be a long time before the big project is completed. Even then there is no certainty that it will be taken away from public attention, for the state of Arizona, which has opposed it furiously, is not satisfied and may decide to carry its claim to the courts. That would mean a long drawn out contest.

Efforts were made to get the seven states which are interested in the water of the Colorado river to come to an agreement in regard to the dam. That was found to be an impossibility. It was subsequently found possible for six of the states to get together and that, complying with the provisions of the legislation, made it possible to have the law become effective.

Arizona has maintained, and still continues to, that the construction of the dam and the taking of the water for the purpose of supplying California is an invasion of its rights. It is perfectly evident that Arizona has no immediate need for the water, which runs to waste in great volume, but it points to the future, and insists that its rights in years to come, when there will be greater need for it within that state, ought not to be disturbed. It is perfectly evident that Arizona is not reconciled to the decision of congress. It doesn't accept with good grace the fact that California has presented its case in such a manner that it has been regarded as a just one. It resents the treatment that has been accorded it and small though it is the present disposition is, to fight it out on the same line of reasoning as in the past if it takes all summer or longer.

When Arizona insists that the water of the Colorado river ought to be allowed to run to waste for an indefinite period, or until it gets ready to use it at some uncertain period in the future, it takes a selfish attitude. It is much the same attitude that was maintained for years in the state of Maine regarding the establishment of hydro-electric plants for generating electricity to be sold outside of the state. Arizona may never use the water that it would prevent California from getting and it would therefore cause a hardship to others when it doesn't appear but what it will receive all the water that it can use from the river for drinking, irrigation or power purposes.

SLOW ADJUSTMENTS.

Settling claims that develop between countries because of revolutionary disturbances or for other reasons takes time. If it wasn't anticipated in the case of the United States and Mexico it has been found out. There has been a general claims commission at work upon claims developing between 1868 and 1927, and a special mixed claims commission dealing with the claims between 1910 and 1926, the latter claims arising from revolutionary disturbances.

Although the commissioners were expected to complete their work in three and five years, respectively, they have not been able to do so, and it can be appreciated that it is not an easy task when each one has claims totalling about a half billion dollars and in the case of the general claims commission there are counter claims on the part of Mexicans for about a quarter of a billion dollars. Straightening out the tangles is slow work and it is evident that they must have more time.

Because of the situation the suggestion has been made by Secretary Stimson, following authorization on the part of congress, that the life of the commissions be extended for two more years. It is the only thing to do under the circumstances. Adjustment is desired and it hasn't been accomplished. The only way in which the job can be finished is to keep those who are engaged on it at work until it is done. Whether that will be possible in two years is a question but there is no satisfaction to be obtained by terminating such a job just because the time has expired for which the commissions were appointed and letting the unfinished work go.

The appeal which has been made to the Mexican government is so reasonable in character and its need so obvious that there ought to be little hesitancy on the part of the country to the south of the Rio Grande in complying therewith. Mexico is concerned as well as this country.

PROTESTING A PAROLE.

From Philadelphia comes the information that friends of Al Capone, a prominent gangster from Chicago, are at work for the purpose of obtaining his release from the county prison at Philadelphia to which he was sentenced for a year for carrying a concealed weapon.

Capone was picked up by the Philadelphia police as he was leaving a theatre and he admitted that he had a gun with him. His admission made his trial short and his sentence prompt. There was nothing in his conduct in the Quaker City that was otherwise objectionable, but his record and his preparedness made it evident that the time was ripe for giving Philadelphia the protection that would come from his imprisonment.

What the people of Philadelphia cannot understand is why there should be any favors shown to such a gangster. Of course, even though it is admitted by lawyers, who are working in his behalf, that application is to be made to the court for his release, it doesn't hold that the court will be disposed to grant it. It is to be expected that they will present a strong case for him if the court is going to be inclined to cut short the sentence.

There is a general recognition of the need of showing no more leniency to the notorious than to the first offender. It is known what a menace the gangsters are to public safety and the importance of protecting the people against such individuals is evident. Just why there should be any exceptions in his case has not been made clear and there are many who believe that Philadelphia, or the courts, ought not to give notice to the criminal class that they can carry guns, get caught and be released on parole without fear of spending much time behind bars. Thus while it is disclosed that efforts are being made in behalf of Capone, that he may be released on parole, public sentiment is making it known that it cannot be done without a protest. It is only such a protest as ought to be expected.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

New building is a desirable thing in a community even though it does keep the idlers busy.

Searching for a plane in the Atlantic is worse than looking for a needle in a haystack.

The man on the corner says: Think how lucky they are who have to reach for a blanket as well as a sheet.

Perhaps the legislatures and some others in the southern states noticed that none of the others to receive honorary degrees at Harvard refused them just because Robert R. Moton, president of Tuskegee was in the list.

WASHINGTON AFFAIRS

(Special to The Bulletin)

WASHINGTON, D. C., June 26.—There has been an encouraging increase in the amount of cotton manufactured goods that the New England mills are sending into the Netherland East Indies according to Edward T. Pickard, chief of the textile division of the U. S. bureau of foreign and domestic commerce, who has just made a special study of reports from Assistant Trade Commissioner August Brauer, Jr., Singapore; Trade Commissioner Don C. Bliss and Gordon Phelps, clerk to the trade commissioner, Batavia, Java, and the monthly summary of the commerce of the United States.

These imports last year were valued at $65,126,400, or a gain of 6.5 per cent. over the previous year. Piece goods constituted about 75 per cent. of this total. Of this total the United States contributed $798,403 as compared with $328,637 in 1927 and $154,266 in 1923. So that while the United States has thus far shared only to a small lextent in this one of the world's leading markets for cotton piece goods, the New England mills are making rapid strides in this very desirable trade. But although this development in the American textile trade is most encouraging, exporters in the United States are beginning to encounter difficulties in connection with their sales activities in the Netherland East Indian market.

Most of the American trade during recent months has been in voiles, rayons, rayon and cotton mixtures, printed, etc., all of which are novel to these markets and which have not been duplicated by European manufacturers at competitive prices.

The chief difficulty in selling fancy goods to Javanese consumers is the fact that the trade to which this type of goods appeals is susceptible to style changes, and as soon as a pattern is widely known it becomes less desirable. Accordingly, it is imperative in marketing new patterns that they be distributed with extreme care.

American exporters desiring to find a market for their goods in Netherland East Indies should appoint one agent, who should be given exclusive sales rights to the entire line, provided that a stipulated amount of goods be bought annually, or some assurance given that sales of the American line will be pushed. Such an agreement might be of two years' duration and subject to renewal.

Exports of cotton piece goods to the Netherland East Indies from the United States during 1928 amounted to 4,673,235 square yards, valued at $467,322, an increase of 132 per cent. in quantity and 135 per cent. in value as compared with 2,012,885 square yards, valued at $474,828, shipped in 1927.

Connecticut leaders by their growing correspondence with the U. S. bureau of education and the National Education association have recorded their growing interest in the biggest business in America, the basis business—the public schools. Assurance is given in these letters that American Education week will be observed more arrestingly this year than ever before throughout New England, proverbial home of "The Little Red Schoolhouse".

Superintendents of schools, mayors of cities and selectmen of towns, local officials of patriotic organizations, parent-teacher associations, churches, fraternal and labor organizations, women's clubs, chambers of commerce and other agencies are soliciting advice as to how they can most helpfully cooperate in the nation-wide drive to acquaint the public with the work of the schools, with their ideals, their achievements and their needs. America's most distinctive and best gift to civilization, the public schools, during the week which includes Armistice day, Nov. 11-17, will be made the theme of the press, the platform, the pulpit and other good-citizenship agencies.

The Connecticut leaders, zealous to be forehanded, are asking suggestions from the headquarters in the national capital, in arranging the local program for this "Education week".

To concentrate the attention of the people upon the work and needs of the schools during a common period observed throughout the nation, the general program suggested emphasizes the seven cardinal objectives of education, health and safety, worthy home membership, mastery of the tools, technics and spirit of learning, faithful citizenship, vocational and economic effectiveness, wise use of leisure and ethical character.

Each community and state works out its own program. Under the guidance of the leaders in a community American Education week calls the teachers to serve better the children of that community and to labor more zealously on the program of their profession. It gives the parent deeper insight into parenthood—its duties, its privileges and opportunities. By increasing the child's interest in school, it releases his energies for greater accomplishments. It magnifies the faith of every citizen in education and enrolls his help in the schools, America's greatest collective enterprise. The enterprise of education though yielding enormous returns on the money invested, is capable of producing still larger profits. An informed, interested, appreciative and cooperating public makes the schools better.

Gold Star mothers and widows who are planning to visit their dear ones graves in Europe at the expense of the U. S. government and all those who served during the World war are interested in the memorials being erected by the United States in France, Belgium and England, commemorating the participation of American troops and the supreme sacrifice of many thousands picked youth of America.

Plans are being carried out by the American Battle Monuments commission under the leadership of General Pershing to construct masonry walls at the cemeteries where needed and other desirable architectural features. The chapels which will be non-denominational in charactr will be dedicated to those who gave their lives during the war, and will stand not only as enduring monuments to their achievements and sacrifices, but will furnish a shelter place where relatives and other visitors may go for meditation and prayer. In these chapels will be inscribed the names of men who lost their lives and whose bodies have not been identified. This inscription will include the name, rank, organization, and date of death of the hero, as well as the name of the state from which he came.

In addition to these memorial chapels in the cemeteries the Battle Monuments commission plans to erect sixteen monuments at places outside of the cemeteries.

The list of architects selected by the commission to design these monuments as well as the chapels was prepared with the assistance of the National Commission of Fine Arts. The list was compiled with great care and comprises a number of the most prominent architects or firms in the United States, as well as some younger architects. The designs for most of the monuments already have been prepared, and approved by the American Battle Monuments commission, and the National Commission of Fine Arts, and the construction of a number of them has already begun. These memorials will like the chapels, be of great beauty, dignity and impressiveness—monuments worth of the ideals of the nation.

THE WORLD AT FOURTEEN

There were traces in Emestine's expression of her having passed through strenuous times in the immediate past. Her face was not as carefree as usual and a sigh arose from the depths.

"What my mother needs," she began, "is a secretary; somebody to say 'Yes, Mrs. Adams, I'll do it right away,' and then take the blame if things turn out wrong. When my mind is as busy with everything this fall as it is, I should think she could understand that quite unimportant things simply slip right out of it.

"Why, this year I'm president of the Lotus club, six of us girls who meet every Friday night and make fudge and sort of talk about important things, and you can't imagine how much work it makes me. And I'm on the committee for the class dance, and we're nearly crazy getting that in running order.

"And instead of mother realizing how absorbed I am in these affairs, she just goes into hysterics at the idea of their meaning anything to me in comparison with her old dinner party.

"There is one thing I have resolved. When I have a house of my own and give parties I am going about it in a businesslike and systematic way instead of just falling into them the way my mother does. She'll be sitting reading just as quietly and all of a sudden jump up and say she's going to call up so-and-so and see if they can't come over to dinner or lunch or bridge that day—just like that.

"And sometimes when it is too late for the grocery order to get there and things she orders don't come, she just grabs a few cans off her emergency shelf and fixes up something or other you never heard of before. People always say why, Mrs. Adams, this is the best stuff I ever tasted; what is it, do tell me! But you can't fool me. They're just being polite. I ate something of hers one time called caviar scanape and if it wasn't the worst! And they pretended to be crazy about it.

"This time it was Wednesday morning when she got the sudden idea she'd like to have the Bayseys from town out to dinner and stay all night. So she put in a long-distance call. But she couldn't get Mrs. Bayseley at her hotel and it came time for her to rush for the 9 o'clock train on which she was to meet some other women.

"She simply had to go and so she explained to me very carefully just as though I were a child of 3 that when Mrs. Bayseley came on the wire I was to explain the situation and invite them for dinner the next night.

"I hadn't said a word about her interrupting my plans for the Lotus club Friday night party—I was writing a list of the boys we ought to talk about asking to our annual dinner dance—and when the telephone rang at last my head was just full of my own affairs.

"Instead of inviting Mr. and Mrs. Bayseley for Thursday night I simply must have said Friday, thinking, so hard as I was about the Lotus club's meeting that night. Mrs. Bayseley said they'd certainly love to come and so I wrote on the telephone pad for mother that Mrs. Bayseley said yes and put my mind on more important things. I went to Libby's after school on Thursday and her mother asked me to stay to dinner so I wasn't home that evening, and perhaps it was just as well.

"When a woman slaves in the kitchen all day, as my mother pointed out to me later, making raised rolls and fussy chicken and cake and ice cream in the iceless refrigerator, and hires a woman to serve, why, it means something. And spends over an hour setting her dining room table. To say nothing of making up the guestroom bed.

"And after dad and she hustled and got dressed they sat waiting simply hours for the Bayseley car to drive up and the woman who was hired kept walking back and forth and the dinner just naturally dried up.

"Mother said she'd never forgive Mrs. Bayseley for forgetting the date, but she was naturally light-headed and what could you expect? Even by the next night—Friday—she was still talking about how she simply couldn't understand that sort of nature.

"She hadn't got over being dead tired, so we just had leftovers on the kitchen table. She had on a housedress and dad had left his coat on a living room chair. And the bell rang at 7 o'clock and there were the Bayseleys all dressed up like Christmas trees, with their overlight bag. And we had eaten the special melons that morning so there was nothing but apple sauce for their Saturday breakfast. To say nothing of what they got for dinner in the kitchen.

"When things like that happen in my life I am going to treat them as a joke. Mother didn't. You'd have thought I had done something dreadful. But I had a grand time later Friday night at the Lotus meeting and it's settled. I'm to ask Bud to our dinner-dance. I told the other girls they could have their choice of all the other boys. Being president I have to be generous that way!"—Exchange.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A Few Thoughts.

Mr. Editor: It may all be true enough and sound very good, as the poet says, that in the springtime a young man's thoughts turn lightly to thoughts of love. To me that line listens very well, but something tells me at this season when we have plenty of warm weather that the thoughts of every one, young or old, turns to thoughts of vacation and all the pleasures that go with it, such as being stung by hornets or coming in contact with poison ivy. At least that was among the fortunate things we used to run up against years ago I often look to the papers today to see if there are any notices of excursions to any of the many places we knew years ago when we would get on board the City of Lawrence, or the Ella, or perhaps the Block Island or City of Worcester and go to Newport or some of the many other places, but the people of today are fed up on that line. It has become rather drab and it doesn't appeal to them as it did when we did timers were out there.

I wonder how many among the older ones can recall the excursion of the united churches of Norwich that went on the old City of New London, some years ago. What a scare there was among the people when the boat failed to return at night! What anxious fathers and mothers for the boat was lost to every one in a heavy fog off one of the worst places along the Atlantic coast, Point Judith, and in those days the boats were not equipped with the safety devices they have today. All day, all night, and until the following afternoon the officers of the boat were at sea in more ways than one for they had no idea as to their location, and to add to their troubles a couple of the young fellows fell asleep and rolled overboard. I want right here to ask my old pal, Oscar Carpenter, who has charge of the bureau of labor, if he wasn't on the boat when this happened. I will supply the name of the one who fell overboard—Walter Poole. Yes, that was an excursion to remember for there wasn't a thing to eat on the boat, for everything had been consumed many hours before. What a scene when the New London came up the river and pulled in at the old Norwich and Worcester freight house, just below the Laurel Hill bridge. I saw fathers and mothers embrace their children when they got off the boat, but for me there was no one waiting. As we came up the river, I don't think, as I review life in after years, that I ever saw a more beautiful picture than I saw when we turned the bend at Thamesville and I saw the "Landing" in the distance, for this was home. But as I have said no one was watching and waiting for me. I wonder if any of you realize what that means. There is a parallel to this that comes to me at this time. Leaving the present subject for a moment I recall during the World war I received at one time a letter from some boy over the other side who told me this story: "I came from a little cow town out in Kansas, and when the mail comes into the canteen all the boys come up as their names are called and get letters from home. I never get a letter for there is no one to write to me, and so I am writing to you. Although you are a stranger to me there is a young man here who knows you and he told me to write to you and ask if you would send me a letter."

Reader, if I ever put my soul into a letter, I did to this poor kid whom I didn't know, no had ever seen, for this was a case that was exactly like my own as I left the excursion steamer. No one to welcome me or even care. I could realize the disappointment that boy must have felt when the mail was all given out to the others, perhaps from a loving mother, sister or sweetheart. Perhaps some who read this letter will say it is rather sentimental. All right that is just what it is meant to be, but it contains a story with a moral, for that boy wanted some one to talk to him through the medium of a letter. He knew then some one was watching and waiting for him. I wrote to him several times before the war was ended. Since then I have never heard from him. It may be possible he is sleeping with the many "Unknown." Who knows! There was none to welcome him on his return to this blessed country and yet his father or his mother may have met him when he crossed on the other shore where all shall meet to part no more.

And after all, the foregoing are but scenes in that great drama called life and we but act our part, pass on, and then what? Beyond this we do not know, but we live in hope, for the secret of the future is but a dream. All our paths no matter how pleasant they may be have been ended here, and like Charles Frothman and Elbert Hubbard, who stood upon the deck of the Lusitania as it was sinking have said: "Here we enter upon a most beautiful adventure." Could anything be finer than that? What a beautiful thought, and after all life is but a thought.

YOUR HEALTH

How They Do Buck! A Mouth With Teeth Missing Considered Like The Buck Saw in Same Condition.

By Ira Dow Beebe, D. D. S., Stamford, Conn.

(From Gorgas Memorial Institute)

Perhaps you have had a similar experience to that of the writer in using a buck saw. He got too strenuous one day and broke one of the teeth. The extra work put on the adjoining teeth caused them to break and then how the saw did buck.

Had it ever occurred to you that a mouth with some teeth missing is just about as efficient for the proper preparation of food for the body as a saw with some teeth missing for cutting wood? A little thought will quickly convince you.

The proper chewing of the food is the first process in digestion, and failing to chew the food soon spells indigestion. If you are aiming for real abounding health, you must be be careful to save your teeth, and in doing so, you must make sure that foundations are properly laid in any "building" there is to do.

Once upon a time a man built a house. He dug a hole in the ground and laid some boards across it and nailed some beams up, and then covered the beams outside with sheathing and shingles. He built in hardwood floors and all modern conveniences and roofed the house with slate. And the house stood for many years.

A short time ago a man came to a dentist and told him to fill a tooth for him. The dentist washed the food out of the hole, mixed up some metal, put it in and polished it highly. And the tooth lasted many years.

To be sure, anyone knows that the proper way to build a house is to start with a good foundation, placing good stones in a proper excavation. He knows, furthermore, that it is necessary to use great care in all the preliminary work. The house is constructed on a good foundation and is then safe from settling, and other ills of poor construction.

So it is with "plugging holes in teeth," the dentist must properly plan and clean out the cavity and in addition see that the pulp (nerve) is in a healthy condition before he goes on with the filling. Then, and not until then, can the tooth be properly filled.

When the dentist sees that the foundation is not good and cannot be properly prepared, he does not attempt to fill or otherwise to restore the tooth. He suggests a more radical procedure, namely, extraction.

As care is necessary in resorting the individual tooth, so also is care necessary in restoring the entire arch. The dental arch is the gateway to the body. Your health depends on its proper functioning.

A Washington Bystander

By KIRKE L. SIMPSON
Associated Press Staff Writer

WASHINGTON, June 25.—Looking back over a number of years, the Bystander cannot recall when a senate newcomer projected himself so actively and so soon into proceedings as did Henry Allen of Kansas, the "baby" member.

And he unloosed so caustic a tongue that fur, including his own, was flying before he had more than thoroughly settled in his seat.

It takes a man well satisfied with his own debating ability to challenge folks like Borah of Idaho, Caraway of Arkansas, Brookhart of Iowa, King of Utah and other senate veterans.

But Allen did that and it is to be assumed that his avowed political foe from Kansas, Vice President Curtis, was hugely delighted at the result. As presiding officer, of course, the man whose seat Allen fills could not indicate his feelings and must batter his desk for order whenever the tilting provoked laughter on the floor or in the galleries.

A Bit Rough

And some of the things said on both sides certainly trespassed on the courtesy rules.

Whatever may be the fact, it was clear that some of Allen's colleagues have regarded him as seeking the role of mouthpiece on the floor of President Hoover.

He came to bat promptly in defense of presidential policies several times early in the special session. And each time he managed to flick some of the veterans on the raw. The clash in the senate over insistence on the debenture angle of the farm bill was the most striking illustration.

Allen managed at one point to stir up Borah and Copeland of New York by what they took as an insinuation that their pro-debenture votes were based on a desire to embarrass the president.

They joined in declaring this to be "a cowardly insinuation." That was a bit outspoken under the rules.

Later Caraway told Allen he had demonstrated "that the grasshopper is not the only plague" to come out of Kansas. He also said that the only convictions Allen had were "what the president wants."

His Preference

Allen countered with a declaration that he would rather take "the thoughts of the president" than those of Caraway.

"The senator will have his choice," the Arkansan snapped. "He must take somebody's opinion; he did not bring one here with him."

"The reflection the senator casts on my thinking apparatus might be a reflection on his own," said Allen.

"I was not casting any reflections on the senator's thinking apparatus; I never accused him of having one," said Caraway.

All of which seems a little outside the rules of courtesy in debate and also a little rough treatment for a new senator. Usually newcomers are seen rather than heard for a considerable period.

GAS WATER HEATER

WOULD you take a refreshing daily bath without the instant supply of hot water which gas provides?... you wouldn't!

Just imagine yourself going through the slow, tedious process of heating water in a teakettle or a washboiler and then carrying it to the tub. Yet that's the way it once was done—before gas came to the rescue. And that's why the entire family postponed the weekly bath chore until Saturday night.

A bright new day dawned for bathers in 1885 when gas water heating was developed—a day which marked the beginning of an era of national cleanliness and better health.

Cleveland, Ohio.—"I sure recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman in the condition I was in. I was so weak and run-down that I could hardly stand up. COMMON COUNCIL NOT TO PASS PROPOSED G. & E. ORDINANCE

The court of common council and the members of the board of gas and electrical commissioners reached an agreement at a special joint meeting held Tuesday night upon the matter of the sale of appliances and an ordinance which the common council proposed to pass putting an end to appliance sales by the department.

Definite information as to the terms of the agreement could not be secured Tuesday night, but it was learned on good authority that as a consequence of the agreement reached, the common council will not pass the ordinance which proposed to eliminate the appliance sales division from the gas and electric department's business.

The agreement was reached, it was understood, after a proposition had been submitted by Mayor Lee Roy Robbins to the gas and electrical commissioners and they had accepted it. The attitude of the common council was understood to be that the concessions made by the board of gas and electrical commissioners were so extensive that the difficulties over the sales of appliances could all be straightened out.

Mayor Robbins declined to state what the terms of agreement were. It is presumed that they will be made public officially at the meeting of the common council next Monday night, but it is probable that the terms will leak out before then and be well known before they are officially announced.

Within the last few days a remonstrance against the passage of the proposed ordinance has been filed with City Clerk Weston C. Pullen. This contained about 150 names and was prepared, it is understood, in the belief that it would make it possible to have a referendum vote on the proposed ordinance if that were passed by the common council, and such a vote, if it were against the ordinance, would override the action of the common council. Those circulating the remonstrance claim that it had to be filed before the ordinance was passed.

This view, however, is disputed in some quarters, where the claim is made that if a petition against the ordinance and asking for a special city meeting were presented after the ordinance had been passed there would then have to be a referendum vote which could override the action of the common council in passing the ordinance.

HELD DEMONSTRATION IN INOCULATION POULTRY FLOCKS

A step forward in poultry keeping was demonstrated Monday on the farms of Gus Macht of Baltic and W. W. Service of Preston which will save the poultrymen of New London county hundreds of dollars.

The demonstration was sponsored by the New London County Farm bureau and extension service of Connecticut Agricultural college as the first step in a "More Eggs per Bird" program which includes five major points.

The first item in this five point program is to inoculate pullets for chicken pox, a disease which has caused poultrymen heavy losses during the first few years. Ten years ago little of this disease was seen in New London county. During the past winter over 60 per cent of the commercial poultry flocks were troubled with it.

As part of the program to check the disease demonstrations showing how the inoculating is done are being held in various parts of the county.

The first was held on Monday afternoon at the farm of Gus Macht of Baltic. Mr. Macht has 3,600 very fine White Leghorn pullets which he is to inoculate this week. During the demonstration 700 were treated, Prof. R. E. Jones, state poultry specialist, conducting the demonstration. With five men working 500 of the 700 were treated in one hour.

Last winter, Mr. Macht was continually troubled with bad outbreaks of chicken pox, he hopes to eliminate this trouble this winter as in all flocks treated last fall at the experiment station no chicken pox was present last winter even though the birds were exposed to active cases.

A second demonstration was held on the farm of W. W. Service of Preston. One hundred birds were treated but Mr. Service is going to treat his entire pullet flock of 1,500. There were over 40 poultrymen present at both demonstrations who signed applications for enough material to inoculate 35,000 pullets between July 1 and September 1. Such action as this is certainly indicative of the desire of poultrymen to rid their flocks of chicken pox.

Fellows Brothers of Norwich Town, owners of one of the largest Rhode Island Red farms in New England, have inoculated over 4,000 pullets during the past week.

The Storrs agricultural experiment station is furnishing the inoculating material free to all those in New London county who desire it and are willing to sign an application for it.

After the demonstration on the Service farm in Preston the poultry committee of the New London County Farm bureau met with Prof. R. E. Jones and County Agent W. T. Clark and heartily endorsed the program of inoculating against chicken pox. The committee consists of: L. Kanahan, Lisbon; Christopher Chrissos, Groton; Arthur Fellows, Norwich Town; Louis Krauth, Waterford; Alfred Crofts, North Stonington; Edward Hoxie, Lebanon; W. W. Service, Preston. Each of them volunteered to arrange for a demonstration in their community in the near future. Announcement of the dates and locations of these demonstrations will be made later.

RESERVES DECISION IN CHAPMAN SUPPORT SUIT

Judge Allyn L. Brown in the superior court here Tuesday reserved decision after hearing the evidence in the suit brought by Mrs. Catherine Chapman of 3 Fountain street to secure support for herself and her five children from her husband, Frank Chapman of 49 Church street. They have not been living together since Decoration day, 1928. Attorney E. W. Higgins is counsel for Mrs. Chapman and Attorney E. W. Perkins represents Mr. Chapman.

Testifying in the case were Augusta R. Spicer of Norwich Town, Constable Lucius A. Fenton, and Julia E. Ferry, as well as the two oldest children in the family, Chauncey C. and Fred M. Chapman. These were all witnesses called for Mrs. Chapman. The defendant was the only witness on his side of the case.

There was much testimony as to Mr. Chapman's habits of drinking to excess, all of which he denied. It was shown that his wife had had him arrested twice on drinking charges. Once he was not held by the police, but the other time they refused to pay any attention to his offer of a bank book for bonds, according to his testimony. The case was discharged the next day. His membership in the Moose was a cause of objection on the part of his wife and there was testimony that the children paid no attention to what he said to them and were supported in this attitude by their mother. The purchase of an automobile by the two boys, which the father opposed on the ground that they could not afford it, was another cause of trouble in the family. It was shown that Mrs. Chapman had her husband arrested for non-support and that since then he had been paying $7 a week to her, according to an agreement that was made, and the two boys also contribute to the support of the family.

Mr. Chapman has a sum in the savings bank, and something over $400 in the building and loan association.

WESTERLY BOY DROWNED IN CATTO QUARRY HOLE

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, R. I., June 25. — The first drowning fatality of the season occurred here today shortly after 4 p. m. when Sylvester Algier, aged 13 years, 9 mos., lost his life in the old Catto quarry hole, so-called off Tower street, at one time operated by Duty and Sullivan. In company with Raymond Ledward, of Tower street, Algier had taken off his clothes for a swim in the abandoned quarry hole. Attracted by his cries for help Ledward made an unsuccessful attempt to bring the boy, who was large for his age, to shore and, abandoning his efforts, went to secure help.

Foreman James Hamilton of the Westerly highway department, who resides nearby, was called, plunged in and brought the body ashore. Chief of Police Thomas E. Brown and Patrolman George L. Madison had been called to the quarry hole and they notified Westerly medical examiner, Dr. Michael H. Scanlon, who declared death due to accidental drowning. A slight bruise was found on the boy's chest.

It was on Tuesday that Algiers received his card of promotion from the Elm street grammar school. He is the oldest boy of the family and resided with his mother, Mrs. Nunciata Algiers at 120 Tower street. This week he was to have gone to New York state to be a caddy at a golf club.

His father, Frank Algiers, died March 20, 1927. Besides several brothers he is survived by several sisters.

TAFTVILLE

FRANCO-AMERICAN CONVENTION MAY BE HELD IN TAFTVILLE

Recent developments among the Franco-American societies which hold membership in the Franco-American Union, appear to be pointing to the fact that the convention of the union which was scheduled to be held in Taftville the latter part of May, and which by order of the executive committee of the union was transferred to Hartford, will convene in Taftville early in September. The local committee in anticipation of the convention being held in Taftville in May had been to a great deal of trouble and expense to make the affair a success, and it was a great blow to the enthusiasm of the community in general, when it was known that the convention had been transferred to the capital city. But it now is announced that a convention is to be held in Taftville, and plans are being pushed to make the meeting and the social events which will attend it a great success.

Desire J. Dufresne, president of the St. Jean Baptiste society and a prominent member of the local committee of arrangements issued the following statement on Sunday: A certain measure of surprise not without a tinge of disappointment was expressed at the meeting of the local committee of the Franco-Americans held June 12th in Taftville concerning the illegal holding of the Franco-American convention in Hartford instead of Taftville; also the articles appearing in various newspapers confusing the church and clergy with the question, when the real cause was a propaganda letter of accusations issued by a certain Elie Vezina, secretary of the Union St. Jean Baptiste d'Amerique with headquarters in Woonsocket, R. I. This letter was circulated in Connecticut and was never supposed to fall into the hands of the local committee of the little center in the valley of the Shetucket river. It was sent to trusted persons to be kept secret for a purpose which was nipped in the bud by the quick action of the committee.

The big question today that seems to trouble a certain group is: Will Taftville hold a convention or did the local committee drop all plans? In a formal public statement made last week by members of the committee, preparations are under way to hold a Connecticut convention of Franco-Americans. For special reasons, the executive committee is anxious that the program be made public at the earliest possible date. The situation gives the board a problem of huge proportions to cope with at the outset. But while the chairman, J. O. Tellier wants the board to apply itself to this situation as quickly as possible, he believes that in a large sense the success of the convention program will depend upon the efforts and good will of the members of the board. For this reason the organizing committee is exercising the utmost care in making its selections.

The Franco-American public need have no fear—Taftville will hold its convention as stated. Not before the next session of the local board, will the exact date of the convention be made public.

WEDDING

Frederick R. DesSureault. The maid of honor was Miss Yvonne Deshais, of Taftville and the best man Romeo Des Ruisseaux of Willimantic, an intimate friend of the groom. Miss Alice Frechette, organist at the church, presided at the organ.

The bride wore a gown of white satin and Spanish lace with a bridal veil of tulle. She carried a bouquet of white roses with a shower of lilies-of-the-valley. The maid of honor was gowned in pink satin with hat to match and carried an arm bouquet of pink carnations.

A wedding breakfast and reception was held later at the home of the bride's parents, with many attending. There was a display of a wealth of wedding gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Bernard are honeymooning in Canada, and upon their return are to take up theire residence in a newly furnished apartment in Willimantic where the groom is employed.

The executive committee of the Taftville Rod and Gun club held a meeting Friday evening, and voted to have the club's annual clambake and field day at Hopeville pond on the third Sunday in August. The committee of arrangements numbers 19, including the executive board and the officers. This will be the fourth field day and a number of prizes are to be awarded to the winners of the different events. The list of events is to be made up at the next meeting of the executive board on July 12th.

THREE AMERICANS FALL IN WIMBLEDON TENNIS

WIMBLEDON, Eng., June 25—(AP)—Three American casualties resulted today from the second day's skirmishes for the British tennis championships at Wimbledon.

Succumbing to the combined attacks of the English and French were Francis T. Hunter, second ranking American player; Johnny Van Ryn, the dark horse of the tournament and Miss Edith Cross, third ranking United States woman's player. The downfall of the youthful Van Ryn and Miss Cross before Jacques Brugnon of France and Miss E. R. Clark of Great Britain, respectively, was not wholly unexpected but the defeat of Hunter by the rising young English star, Henry Austin, was a severe blow to American tennis hopes.

Hunter made the fatal mistake of allowing the English youth to get a big lead and although playing with all his old time forethinness and determination was forced to taste defeat, 6-3, 3-2, 4-6, 6-3. The veteran American made a great stand, winning the third set after he was down four games to two but Austin's youthful speed and dashes of luck turned the tide in favor of the young English hope.

Van Ryn, playing a spectacular game on the famous center court, took the first set from the French strategist with ease, but he then began to take chances with his shots as Brugnon rounded into his best style to win 1-6, 6-3, 6-2, 6-1.

Miss Cross managed to take the second set after losing the first, from her English opponent but could not stand the pace in the third. The score was 6-3, 4-6, 7-5.

All of the other American invaders advanced with very little effort.

Miss Helen Wills with her stockings on and her racquet working perfectly appeared on the No. 1 court for a few minutes to defeat "Tommy" Tomblin, 6-0, 6-0. Miss Helen Jacobs, Mrs. Molla Mallory, Miss Elizabeth Ryan and Miss Marjorie Morrill followed suit with the queen of American courts.

Among ten men "Big Bill" Tilden, John Hennessey and George Lott had practice canters as did Wilbur Coen with the exception of one tough set against the South African, C. J. Robbins. Like Hunter, Wilmer Allison, the Texan, encountered stubborn British opposition in H. B. N. Cooper but had better luck than the veteran internationalist, finally disposing of him 6-3, 3-6, 4-2, 8-2.

Tilden eliminated C. H. Campbell of England 6-1, 6-2, 6-0, while George Lott outdrove his Belgian opponent F. R. De Borman, to win 6-0, 6-1, 6-2. Hennessey downed R. E. Worthington of Eng and 6-4, 6-4, 6-3 with Coen taking the measure of the South African 6-1, 6-1, 7-9, 6-2.

In tomorrow's play Tilden meets D. Prenn of Germany, Lott vs. L. Bonzi of Italy, Hennessey vs. J. H. Crowen of Great British, Allison vs. J. D. P. Wheatley of Great Britain, Coen vs. Christian Boussus of France, Helen Wills vs. Mrs. Schomburzk of Germany, Mrs. Mallory vs. Cecelia Aussem of Germany, and Miss Ryan vs. Mrs. J. Hill of Great Britain.

Burgess Bedtime Story

Happy Jack is a Hero

By THORNTON W. BURGESS

Heroim, if you please,
May in time be a disease.
—Old Mother Nature.

After his great victory over Robber the Rat, Happy Jack the Gray Squirrel was a hero among his neighbors at the Old Orchard and the Green Forest. Such news travels fast. Sammy Jay is always one reason for that. In no time at all it was known all over the Green Meadows, all through the Green Forest and, of course, in the Old Orchard, how Happy Jack had actually made Robber the Rat run for his life. So Happy Jack became a hero.

Now being a hero is very fine, if it does not go to your head. The trouble is, too much praise is very likely to go to one's head. It was so with Happy Jack. Everyone told him how splendid he was and what a wonderful fighter he was; so perhaps it was no wonder that presently he began to strut and boast.

"Pooh!" said he. "That fellow couldn't fight. I could whip two such as he."

"It looked to me as if you had about all you wanted to take care of," spoke up Scrapper the Kingbird.

"It was easy," declared Happy Jack. "I don't know when I have done anything easier. I don't know where Robber got his bad reputation."

This is the way that Happy Jack went about, boasting and all puffed up with pride. To hear him you would have thought that no one had ever fought and won a battle before. It wasn't long before word of all this reached his small cousin, Chatterer the Red Squirrel, over in the Green Forest. Chatterer has never liked Happy Jack and Happy Jack has never liked Chatterer. There has always been a great deal of quarreling between the two. So when Chatterer heard about Happy Jack's great fight and how he had beaten Robber the Rat, he merely turned up his nose. Happy Jack was no hero to him.

"Robber the Rat must have been sick," said Chatterer disagreeably. "There must have been something the matter with him. If there hadn't been, Happy Jack would have taken care to keep out of his way."

"You're wrong," declared Tommy Tit the Chickadee, who happened to overhear him. "It was a fair fight and there was nothing the matter with

"It looked to me as if you had about all you wanted to take care of," spoke up Scrapper the Kingbird

Robber the Rat. He started the fight and if there had been anything the matter with him he wouldn't have started it. Happy Jack was splendid—just splendid! You ought to be proud of having such a cousin, Chatterer. Anyone in the Old Orchard will tell you that he is a hero."

"Huh!" exclaimed Chatterer, and his voice fairly rang with disgust. Then he turned his back on Tommy Tit. He had heard all he wanted to hear about Happy Jack.

Of course, Mrs. Happy Jack couldn't say too much in praise of Happy Jack, and, of course, the four half-grown children thought their father was wonderful. They missed no opportunity to tell him so. They followed him around listening to all the nice things that other people had to say; all of which made Happy Jack more puffed up than ever. He liked being a hero. He actually began to believe that he was one of the greatest fighters that ever lived. He even hinted that he might some day attack Black Pussy the Cat. Yes, sir, he did so.

SCHMELING AND PAULINO WIND UP TRAINING FOR THURSDAY'S BOUT

By Edward J. Neil
Associated Press Sports Writer

NEW YORK, June 25—(AP)—Full of fight and trained to the minute, Max Schmeling, husky young German, and burly Paulino Uscudun, squat Spanish veteran, settled down to rest tonight and forget, if possible, that they must battle fifteen rounds Thursday night in the Yankee stadium.

In widely separated training camps, the two foreign heavyweights who have all but swept the field clear of American contenders for Gene Tunney's discarded heavyweight crown, wound up preparatory work for the headline battle on Mrs. William R. Hearst's milk fund card, as fit and ready as they will ever be for a crucial test. Both will loaf tomorrow and come to New York for the first major engagement of the open air season Thursday.

Paulino, an aviation enthusiast, plans to fly to battle from his camp at Hoosic Falls, N. Y., while Schmeling, quartered in the lowlands of New Jersey, will travel in from Lakewood, in more orthodox fashion. Even in this aviation age, the daring of Paulino shocks Madison Square Garden promoters, whose pleas for more discretion may keep the Basque on the ground at least until after the Schmeling engagement.

Despite the threatening weather conditions, interest in the first of the summer season's heavyweight extravaganzas mounted as the gladiators polished off a full month of training with light exercise. Madison Square Garden announced that $50 ringside seats, a special dispensation of the New York state athletic commission in view of the charity nature of the affair, virtually had been sold.

A crowd of close to 35,000 is expected in the spacious ball park that could seat twice that number, with the total "gate" approximating $500,000. After the boxers receive their rewards, probably half that amount will be left for the fund to supply needy New York children with free milk.

The battlers are considered so evenly matched that odds of 6 to 5 could be obtained in different quarters with each the favorite. Paulino's durability, as yet unaffected by the heaviest glove fire of other opponents, is considered about the equal of Schmeling's husky punching power. Differences of opinion on this subject account for the peculiar betting situation.

The match, one of the few free-swinging heavyweight affairs that have been scheduled over the long route in recent years, is the first step in clearing up the muddled situation left by Tunney's retirement. The winner will meet Jack Sharkey, the Boston sailor, here in September in what may be considered a title go unless Jack Dempsey returns for another fling at his old crown.

The duel itself looms as one of the "naturals" of the ring. In his brief American campaign, clouded by managerial arguments, Schmeling still had been able to prove himself a smart boxer with a terrific smash in his right hand. His greatest victory was a seven round knockout of Johnny Risko, the Cleveland rubber man, last winter.

Paulino has waded through most of the present field in three years of warfare here. Although not considered a particularly devastating puncher, he is powerful, aggressive, and never stops charging to close quarters with heavy left hooks to the body. Neither bothers particularly about clinching.

The consensus of opinion indicates that the match will not go the fifteen round limit. The chief question seems to be Schmeling's ability to absorb body punishment, something as yet untested. For there seems to be no question but that the sturdy courageous Basque will bring to light any weakness that may lurk in the Teuton's armor.

ATHLETICS PICK UP ON YANKS BY BEATING BOSTON

PHILADELPHIA, June 25—(AP)—The pennant-bound Athletics stretched their lead over the idle Yankees to ten full games today by sweeping a double-header from the Boston Red Sox, 7 to 1 and 8 to 2.

Bob Grove held the Bostonese to six scattered hits to hang up his twelfth victory of the season in the opener while Connie Mack's wrecking crew was slamming Danny MacFayden and Edgar Carroll for 13 safeties.

Bill Shores, apprentice right hander from Texas, pitched his first full game of the season in the nightcap, allowing just eight hits as his mates got eighteen.

Mule Haas led the day's slugging with seven out of nine, including his tenth homer. Bing Miller set a new season's record by hitting in each game to extend his consecutive-game streak to twenty-six.

DETROIT SCORES 11 RUNS IN 7TH TO BEAT CHISOX

DETROIT, June 25—(AP)—After six innings of almost faultless baseball today the Tigers turned Navin field into a shambles in the seventh and scored 11 runs against the Chicago White Sox before the 16th Tiger batsmen was retired. The ultimate count was 14 to 2.

Five errors were made during the period, each responsible for a Tiger run. Prior to that disastrous inning the Sox led, 2 to 1, and Ed Walsh had turned back the Bengals with four hits. Bob Fothergill caught the first ball pitched to him in the first inning for a home run and Harry Heilmann duplicated the feat in the eighth.

Yale and Princeton in Tie

DEAL, N. J., June 25—(AP)—Yale and Princeton finished in a tie for the inter-collegiate golf team championship today each turning in a two day four-man total of 643.

Susie Says

Somebody says to me the other day, "Who has the best time, the Good Fellow or the Grouch?"

Without stopping to think I pops out with the answer, "Why the Good Fellow, of course". "Think it over", says he and leaves me.

And, by golly, I thought it over and I'm kinda under the impression that the Grouch has a much more peaceful time in this mundane sphere of ours.

If you want to borrow a few bucks when your pocketbook's mighty flat who do you go to? The Good Fellow, not the Grouch.

If you want to have a little extra work done who do you go to? The Good Fellow, not the Grouch.

If you want to sell your old car that's about ready for the junk heap who do you try to sell it to first? The Good Fellow, not the Grouch.

If you have a pet scheme financed who do you try to interest first? The Good Fellow, not the Grouch.

If you get behind on your work and need some help who do you ask to lend a hand? The Good Fellow, not the Grouch.

And so on without end. It's the Good Fellow who is imposed upon because he don't snap and snarl at you but says, "Sure, I'll try to help if I can". And half the time it's not appreciated.

The Grouch is left alone. His friends are few and far between but yet he leads a peaceful life. He goes and comes as he likes but few are they who laugh with him, and many are they who laugh at him.

Yet when all is said and done I'd rather be the Good Fellow than the Grouch. The Grouch may have his peace but I'd rather have the friends. A smile may not get you much but it sure warms your heart.

I feel a good deal like the poet who said, "Let me live in a house by the side of the road and be a friend to Man".

ROBINS HAND GIANTS THIRD STRAIGHT DEFEAT

NEW YORK, June 25—(AP)—The Brooklyn Robins continued their winning streak against the Giants here today, defeating the Clan McGraw by 12 to 10 in ten innings for the third successive afternoon. The Robins now have taken nine out of fourteen from the Giants on the season's series.

Brooklyn launched a terrific ninth-inning assault against Larry Benton for five runs which tied the score. The Robins carried their attack over into the tenth round against Dutch Henry, scoring the two runs which won as Johnny Morrison again saved the game for Brooklyn. Picinich's homer in the ninth and Hendrick's triple in the tenth were the high spots of the two rallies.

Melvin Ott hit his twenty-first homer in the second, taking the major league lead after being tied with Lou Gehrig.

FEW LOW SCORES MADE IN PRACTICE ROUNDS AT WINGED-FOOT

By Brian Bell
Associated Press Sports Writer.

MAMARONECK, N. Y., June 25—(AP)—The rugged course of the Winged Foot Golf club was all cluttered up with the world's greatest golfers today as they went about their next to final day's practice for the open championship competition opening bright and early Thursday morning.

Some of the star pros and amateurs about to enter the quest for the game's greatest prize took their game to pieces to see why it would not tick. Others were satisfied and went about hoping that they could leave it just where it was at the conclusion of today's practice.

The best practice round today was contributed by a great golfer who will use his flexible wrists for hand shaking instead of making golf shots. Mike Brady, veteran pro at Winged Foot who by the irony of fate failed to qualify for play in the championship and will confine his activities to being a genial host when the firing begins, played the course today in 68 strokes. He was followed closely by Neal McIntyre, pro from Indianapolis who had a 69.

If any of the other stars broke 70, they kept the feat concealed from the public and their fellows.

Bobby Jones played a good round with Gene Sarazen as a partner against Bill Mehlhorn and Leo Diegel. Walter Hagen and Horton Smith were teamed up against two good amateurs, George Von Elm and Harrison (Jimmy) Johnston. Another quartet having a lot of fun regardless of their golf was composed of Jock Hutchinson, Bob McDonald, Tommy Armour and Joe Turnesa. Few of the players laid unusual stress on their scoring today. They were experimenting in the main to see if their previous conclusions as to how to conquer the embattled Winged Foot course were correct.

BRAVES AND PHILLIES SPLIT DOUBLE HEADER

BOSTON, June 25.—(AP)—The Braves and Phillies split a double header here today, the home team winning the first game 5 to 4 and the visitors the second, 8 to 6. The loss of the first game brought the Phillies' losing streak to nine but they made six runs in the ninth inning of the second game to break the jinx.

In the second game the Braves had apparently sewed up the contest by scoring four runs in the eighth.

ELKS WIN FOURTH IN JUNIOR LOOP

The Elks won their fourth straight game in the Junior Twilight league Tuesday evening, defeating the Baltic S. A. C. in a fast and interesting contest 5 to 3.

The game was fast and well-played, the full seven innings being played in a little over one hour.

Vachon twirled for the Elks and outside of the fifth inning, when Baltic scored all of their runs, was invincible. Five hits were made in all off the Elks pitcher and three of these were made by Charon, the Baltic third baseman. Deschamps started in the box for Baltic and was touched for six hits and four runs during his stay on the mound. In the fifth frame, the Baltic battery exchanged positions, Deschamps going behind the bat and D. Savigeau, who had been doing the catching, going into the box. The latter was touched for two hits and one run in the remaining two innings.

The Elks started off in the first frame, scoring two runs, Whitmarsh singled through short, stole second, and scored when Charon mussed up Fitzgerald's roller. Fitzgerald stole second and went on to third on the catcher's wild throw over second. Buckley fanned, but A. Matthews singled to center, scoring Fitzgerald. AUTO DRIVER FINED IN WESTERLY FOR SPEEDING

(Special to The Bulletin)

WESTERLY, June 25—Judge William A. Wilcox of Pawcatuck held a special session of Stonington town court on Tuesday.

Herbert Watson of Mystic, aged 26 years, was brought before the court by Prosecutor Henry P. Hammacher, charged with speeding. The accused was represented by Judge Herbert W. Rathbun, who stated to the court that he had been in conference with Solicitor Hammacher and a previously reckless driving charge had been changed to speeding. He stressed the point that considerable punishment had been endured by the defendant in his arrest and presentation in court. The demurrer to the complaint entered by Judge Rathbun who had waived the reading of the complaint, was overruled by Judge Wilcox and the defendant found guilty. He was ordered to pay a fine of $10 and costs of $6.97, which were paid and the defendant discharged.

Frank Panciera, 19, of Old Mystic, was represented in court by Attorney Benjamin Hewitt, having been arrested on a reckless auto driving case by State Trooper Joseph E. King of the Groton barracks as the result of an auto accident on the Mystic-Old Mystic road on June 19th. His attorney was made his guardian ad litem by the court. A plea of not guilty was entered. In the accident the Pontiac sedan of the defendant left the road and running into a stone wall tipped over on its right side. The other car in the mishap was a 5-ton motor truck of P. A. Dowd, loaded with fish and driven by John Fishman 72 Asylum street, New Haven. The truck not only struck the wall but was damaged as well. There was no other occupant in the Pontiac but the driver, but in the truck was Mrs. Mary Louise Schroeder, bookkeeper, who testified the accident occurred between the Nichols farm and Fair Acres and that the big truck was nearly in the center of the street when the Pontiac was said to have been driven or forced off the highway. The previous witness was the truck driver John Fishman.

The defendant testified that he put on his brakes and blew his horn. Alfred E. Edwards of Old Mystic was another witness besides the state police officer. Both described the attempts of the machines to pass each other in a narrow roadway. At the end of the trial Judge Wilcox declared that from all facts and evidence submitted he found the accused not guilty and ordered his discharge.

Recorded in the office of the Westerly town clerk appear the following transfers: June 24. Mabel Vose Chapman to Mary C. Butler a tract of land on Granite street.

June 24. Samuel H. Davis to S. H. Davis, Inc., tracts of land on both sides of the Shore road about a half mile north of Weekapaug beach and adjoining the Hobart B. Ayers lands.

June 24. Pasquale De Placido to Gaetano Beraducci and wife two lots of land at Fairview park.

Mrs. Annie Turnbull of Main street, Westerly, left Tuesday morning for Boston enroute to Winnipeg, Manitoba.

Workmen in the employ of the gas department of the South County Public Service Co. began the work shortly before midnight of cutting a six inch gas main on Broad street at the end of the Pawcatuck river bridge in order to replace the section of gas main removed with a valve. The valve is to be used to shut off gas in the main line which supplies Pawcatuck consummers. Preliminary work was done on Monday morning in making the excavation and having everything in readiness when the demand for gas by consumers would fall so that the uninterrupted service could be had and this obtained by a bi-pass arrangement of pipes around the workman and gas taken from the main on Main street.

Millions of Families Depend on Dr. Caldwell's Prescription

W. B. Caldwell M.D. AT AGE 83

When Dr. Caldwell started to practice medicine, back in 1875, the needs for a laxative were not as great as they are today. People lived normal, quiet lives, ate plain, wholesome food, and got plenty of fresh air and sunshine. But even that early there were drastic physics and purges for the relief of constipation which Dr. Caldwell did not believe were good for human beings to put into their system. So he wrote a prescription for a laxative to be used by his patients.

The prescription for constipation that he used early in his practice, and which he put in drug stores in 1892 under the name of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, is a liquid vegetable remedy, intended for women, children and elderly people, and they need just such a mild, safe, gentle bowel stimulant as Syrup Pepsin.

Under successful management this prescription has proven its worth and is now the largest selling liquid laxative in the world. The fact that millions of bottles are used a year proves that it has won the confidence of people who needed it to get relief from headaches, biliousness, flatulence, indigestion, loss of appetite and sleep, bad breadth, dyspepsia, colds and fevers.

Millions of families are now never without Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin, and if you will once start using it you will also always have a bottle handy for emergencies.

It is particularly pleasing to know that the most of it is bought by mothers for themselves and the children, though Syrup Pepsin is just as valuable for elderly people. All drug stores have the generous bottles. A trial is sure to convince any household of the merits of this famous prescription.

WEDDING

Miner-Nolet

A quiet wedding took place last Wednesday at the Methodist parsonage when Gilbert Miner of Jewett City and Rose Nolet of Baltic were united in marriage by Rev. J. W. Carter.

They were accompanied by Yvonne Lemoine of Baltic and Charles MacNeil of Norwich.

The bride was dressed in white with corsage bouquet of white roses and her attendant in pink with corsage bouquet of pink roses. They left on an automobile trip which took them up through the Catskill mountains, via Bear Mountain bridge and Storm King highway, stopping to visit West Point enroute and returned home on Saturday.

Mrs. Charles O. Peterson has returned from a two weeks stay in Hartford. She was accompanied to her home here by her niece Mrs. Fred Stimpson and two sons, Mrs. Stimpson having recently returned from a hospital, following an operation.

It has been learned, that in connection with the Ashland club's Fourth of July field day, there will be a fireworks display during the evening.

"Doc" Wallace has went and done it again! Monday he showed to his friends on the street his fourth trout this season, that weighed 2 1-2 pounds. His nephew, Steve Duffy, still leads by two ounces. In the days, a few years ago, when the "Doc" used to go trouting with Old Cluey Watson, there were always a few good ones weighed at Tracy's store, the next day. Now, since the state of Connecticut has taken over the Mt. Misery preserve, the "Doc" goes alone, and, as is generally the case, he returns with a fine creel.

Married Monday Morning

Robert MacDonald of Providence and Miss Marjorie Wilson of Warwick, R. I., were married Monday morning by Rev. G. F. Goodenough at the Congregational parsonage.

A large-sized audience was well repaid by attending the sound and talking picture, The Iron Mask, with Douglas Fairbanks, presented at Finn's theatre Tuesday evening by the local American legion post. It is considered one of the best pictures of the year, the companion picture, Old Glory, a story very aptly told of the trouble and hardships in the making and holding of our flag. Both are different pictures of those usually shown and are in a class by themselves.

OIL TOWN FINANCES CHURCH IN TWO DAYS

McCAMEY, Tex.—(AP)—Financing a new church proved a simple proposition in this oil field town.

When McCamey's 300 church members—there are only 300 among the town's 5,000 people—wanted to build a church, they accumulated enough money in two days to do the work.

McCamey was built on lands owned by Albert S. Burleson, former postmaster general.

CHURCH FINANCING PLAN CAUSES FUNDS TO GROW

ATLANTA, Ga.—(AP)—An example of what may be done with church benevolent funds was shown the congregation of the Ponce de Leon avenue Baptist church of Atlanta in a statement that the Elizabeth Gresham-Brown fund established by George M. Brown with a principal of $3,000 in 1906 has reached a principal of $18,755.91.

"One of the prime reasons for the fund," said the statement, "was to provide for future pensions for expastors and their wives should they be in need. At the end of 22 years on October 5, 1928, the fund had reached $18,755.91, and donations to missionary purposes and other charities, provided for at the rate of half the annual income of the fund have totalled $7,325.53, more than two and one half times the initial capital of $3,000.

It is explained that a stipulation in terms of the gift to the church held that all donations to the fund must be added to the principal sum.

MISSISSIPPI COUNTIES AID COLLEGE STUDENTS

JACKSON—(AP)—Six Mississippi counties have adopted measures providing for a county fund of $1,000 to aid deserving high school students through the first college year.

The county loan is to be allotted any accredited high school district, and will be distributed as scholarships among the students, who must sign promissory notes on a six-year repayment plan.

The entrance to "Jim's" in Hollywood is one of the most typical pieces of Southern California architecture. It is of a decidedly Spanish character. "Jim" tells all his patrons to use Palmolive to protect skin beauty.

"Palmolive, made of the pure oils of palm and olive, fulfills the most exacting requirements of a facial soap. I find that Palmolive Soap is harmless to the finest textured skin."

where Professional Beauty is Safeguarded

76 of the 80 Beauty Shops recommend Palmolive Soap and throughout America a great assemblage of 14,761 leading beauty experts agree!

"THE first requisite to a smooth, fresh complexion is a clean skin," the beauty specialists of Hollywood agree. And they tell their patrons of the moving picture set and the social world that Palmolive Soap and water is the best way to keep the skin clean—"the best way to safeguard the most delicate complexion," as Hepner, of Hollywood, puts it.

Every beauty expert of any consequence in the whole movie colony—76 of the 80 shops—agrees with the leading beauty experts of the continent on the effectiveness of this 2-minute treatment.

Massage the smooth, creamy Palmolive lather gently into the pores. Rinse with both warm and cold water. Before going out use an ice water rinse as astringent. Then, make-up!

This is the basis for the most elaborate beauty care of world-famous specialists. It explains the tremendous popularity of Palmolive Soap, which is today the second toilet soap in France, where beauty culture is an art; the very first soap in America and forty-eight other countries.

Since it is so very inexpensive it is used for the bath as well as the face. Millions enjoy its refreshing cleanliness. Why don't you?

"I recommend Palmolive as the safest, most reliable of beauty soaps. It has the gentle insistent cleansing action that frees the skin of collected impurities."

DANIELSON

NO REVALUATION LIKELY UNTIL NEXT OCTOBER

(Special to The Bulletin)

DANIELSON, June 25—It was indicated today that nothing likely will be done as to taking steps for the general revaluation of the property of the town of Killingly until the annual town meeting on the first Monday in October, even if the matter comes up at that time. The revaluation matter is one of concern to many thoughtful citizens of Killingly, particularly as to how it can adequately be done without entailing a heavy burden of expense for the work. Those who favor an economical method of revaluing and who also desire that it be done equitably believe that a revaluation committee can be obtained from among Killingly's citizens. Others favor the more expensive, but more scientific method, of employing specialists in the work. Employment of such expert workers could include the making of aerial maps of the entire town, and making the revaluation along the lines favored in many towns and cities throughout the country. Such a contract, it is said, would entail an expense of at least $15,000 on the town and might cost much more, because Killingly is a town of large area. The matter of a general revaluation has received some attention from the chamber of commerce from time to time during the past two years, but it has been discussed more or less informally. Citizens generally have given little attention to the matter, though it is one, under a law of the state, that cannot be deferred beyond the coming year.

Earnings of Danielson's banking institutions for the first six months of 1929 are very satisfactory in every instance. During the half year that will close with the end of business next Saturday night all of the banks will have added substantial amounts to their surplus and profits accounts. Industrially, there has been little change in conditions since the first of the year. Plants that were then operating continue to do so. There is optimism for the second half of the year to be as good, if not better, than the first six months.

From residents on various streets of the borough come expressions of a wish that an additional application of gravel be applied to streets that were oiled during May and which remain sticky. A succession of heavy rains just after the oil was applied, washing away much of the gravel covering, created the condition that now prevails on some streets. Because of this condition considerable continues to be tracked into homes, to stain rugs, carpeting and flooring.

For the 92nd year of such gatherings Baptists from various parts of Windham county will be at East Killingly Wednesday for the annual Ashford Baptist Sunday school convention. There are to be morning and afternoon sessions and a recess at the noon hour for a basket lunch. Various clergymen will have a part in the program of the day, among them Rev. Chester J. Armstrong, pastor of the Danielson Baptist church and also supplying at the Union Baptist church in East Killingly, in which the convention will be held, and Rev. Harding W. Gaylord of the Westfield Congregational church of Danielson.

The Danielson Building and Loan association's semi-annual report will show satisfactory earnings for the first six months of this year. The association continues to have more than a sufficient number of applications for loans to keep its funds constantly engaged and to keep its earnings flowing in in the usual manner.

Eight took part in a club shoot at the traps of the Danielson Rod and Gun club on the old Dyer place on the Wauregan road. In the 50-target event Stephen Coffey was high handicap with 50, Roland Baker and Arthur Gallup tied for second with 48 and Oscar Shaw was third with 47. Dr. F. P. Todd had the net high score of 42. The scores:

	net score	added targets	totals
Stephen Coffey ...	33	18	51
Roland Baker	27	21	48
Arthur Gallup	27	21	48
Oscar Shaw	26	21	47
F. P. Todd	42	6	48
H. E. Griggs	40	3	43
L. S. Ingalls	39	3	42
Guy Baker	33	6	39

In addition to this event several strings for practice shooting were run off. The event was pleasurable for all taking part.

Miss Sylvia Taskinen of Foster Center, R. I., a graduate of Killingly high school in the class of 1929, is one of two Rhode Island delegates to the annual camp of the 4-H clubs being held on the grounds of the department of agriculture at Washington, D. C., this week. Miss Taskinen, who has been a member of the movement since 1926, specializes in health, food and clothing projects. She won trips to Camp Edwards in 1927 and 1928, and also was the winner of a trip to the New England camp at Springfield in the summer of 1927. She has served as president, leader and assistant leader of her club.

Miss Virginia Gates, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Gates of South Killingly, is steadily improving in Hartford and will be able to come home the latter part of this week.

Mrs. Edward Bennett was reported today as very critically ill.

Henry M. Thompson, A. M. Thompson and Miss Henrietta Thompson are on a motor tour that will take them into Canada, thence to Michigan and Wisconsin and later through Virginia and West Virginia.

Secretary M. J. Frink of the Windham County Agricultural society was engaged today in making ready for the publication of the premium list of the annual Brooklyn fair.

Use of firecrackers and other explosives prior to the Fourth is prohibited, the police pointed out today, with a warning that the firing that is already going on must cease.

Beginning Friday a 20-passenger, 3-motored plane is to be put into service on the Boston-New York line over Danielson, at least at times over Danielson. The plane is said to be the largest of its kind in the country.

Sections of trolley track are being removed where the trolley line borders the highway on lower Dyer street in the vicinity of Fall brook. This will be a matter of convenience to residents on the westerly side of the track. The trolley line has not been used for several years.

Philip Burnham did not appear in the Killingly town court, as scheduled this morning to answer to a charge of operating a motor vehicle while he was intoxicated because he was called before the Putnam city court in a continued case on a similar charge and was given six months in jail, it being a second offense. His case in this town will remain pending.

Gerald Kiley of Elizabeth, N. J., is visiting with Mr. and Mrs. Charles Martin.

The first quarterly conference of the Methodist Episcopal church was held this evening with Rev. Myron E. Geister, district superintendent, in attendance. A supper was served preceding the conference.

The case of Russell Ide, to have been heard in the town court this morning, was continued until September.

Charles S. Francis has been a recent visitor with relatives at his old home in Newington.

Abel C. Hopkins of Melrose, Mass., is visiting with friends in this vicinity for a few days.

When Chautauqua guarantors meet with Mrs. F. O. Armington Wednesday evening plans for the annual event in July will be discussed.

Such repairs as may be required to school properties in town will be undertaken within a few weeks and completed before the opening of the next school year in September.

The marriage of Miss Marjorie Belden of Hartford and State Officer Cyrus Chamberlin of the Danielson barracks in Brooklyn on a recent evening is announced.

PUTNAM

LARGE CLASS GRADUATED FROM ST. JOSEPH'S SCHOOL

(Special to The Bulletin)

PUTNAM, June 25—One of the largest classes in the history of the school was presented with certificates of graduation from St. Joseph's parochial school in North Grosvenordale last evening. The exercises were held in the auditorium of St. John the Baptist and the large reception room was filled to its capacity with parents, friends and relatives of the graduates. Rev. John C. Mathieu, pastor of St. Joseph's church delivered the address of graduation. He spoke in both the French and English languages bringing forth an elegant example of eloquency filled with forceful words to the class members, urging them to strive for and complete courses in the higher institutions of learning. Father Mathieu is reputed to be one of the foremost ecclesiastical orators in the Hartford diocese and his address was warmly received by the vast audience.

The graduation programme was excellent and one of the best presented by any class in recent years. The entire student presentation was under the direction and supervision of the Sisters of the Holy Cross. The feature of the lengthy and well executed programme was a play, "At the Gate of Heaven".

The class motto was "Excelsior", and the colors were blue and gold. The class flower was the forget-me-not. The honor students of each class and pupils receiving highest academic honors in each grade were presented with prizes in recognition of their achievement. The awarding of the prizes, which were donated by the parish priests and the various church societies was by Rev. John C. Mathieu, pastor, who also made the presentation of diplomas to the graduates.

The uniform dress of the class members proved to be a pretty scene. The girls were attired in smocks of white, while the boys donned blue suits and white shirts for the occasion. Visiting clergymen were Rev. Antheleme Mollard, M. S., and Rev. J. Demers, M. S., of Danielson; Rev. Fr. Gigou of this city; Rev. J. D. Casey, and Rev. Ernest J. Boiteau, curates at St. Mary's, this city; Rev. Ubald Laurion of North Grosvenordale, acted as hosts. The class picnic was held at Crystal lake in Eastford Monday. The graduates were:

Florence Laporte, Raymond Carignan, Normand Serey, Bella Couture, Georges Martel, Carmen Roch, Victoria Martel, Emilienne Despelteau, Germaine Spenard, Lorina Montigny, Gerard Hamel, Lucille Benjamin, Camille Pelletier, Adrien Berthiaume, Felix Cournoyer.

Philip Burnham of Killingly this morning in city court was found guilty of operating a motor vehicle while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. Judge Geissler imposed a sentence of six months and meted out a fine of $20 and costs of court.

Peter Rasetts, who was in New York city at the time a raid was conducted on his place Monday, upon his return to Putnam this noon time was placed under arrest and arraigned before Judge M. H. Geissler at a special session of city court this afternoon. Repairs on the bridge at Providence street are going through at a rapid pace and at a meeting of the board of selectmen Monday evening it was reported that the span would be reopened to traffic in about ten days. Contractors carrying out the work are engaged in renewing rusted joists on the east end of the bridge that links the span with the highway. When the steel structure is reopened both autoists and pedestrians will find that a new floor will have been laid, since this clause has been included in the terms of the contract.

An error crept into this column one morning last week when it was stated that the late Eden Tatem died during her junior year in Putnam high school. Miss Tatem completed her studies at the local high school and studied abroad. At the time of her death Miss Tatem held a position at the Emerson School of Oratory in Boston. A fund known as the Eden Tatem Memorial was created by her father, the late James B. Tatem, in memory of his daughter and each year at graduation the student ranking highest in English during four years of study at Putnam high school is presented with the award created to perpetuate the name of Miss Tatem. The prize is one of the most coveted honors presented at the high school, it being a set of the works of one of the world's greatest authors.

A short calendar session of superior court for this county will be held on Friday, June 28 in Willimantic and will open at 9 o'clock standard time, according to a calendar list issued today by Curtis Dean, clerk of courts. Judge L. P. Waldo Marvin will preside at the hearing. Several cases bearing local interest are slated to go to trial. While it was not definitely stated this afternoon, it is believed that Wendell Hardy and Jerry Nelson, boy bandits who held up and robbed Donald Cockburn of Melrose, Mass., in Putnam two weeks ago and who were bound over to criminal session of superior court will be arraigned on a bench warrant at Willimantic Friday. After binding the two bandits over to the higher court Judge Geissler, who presided at the city court hearing given them, stated that he felt the state's attorney, Howard C. Bradford, would resort to this method to dispose of the case. Hardy and Nelson are now in the county jail at Brooklyn awaiting trial, where they were taken after their hearing in Putnam.

A prison circular containing finger prints and description of Myrtle Richmond, escaped inmate of the Long Lane farm at Niantic, a reformatory for wayward women, led to her apprehension in Putnam this afternoon. Myrtle was taken into custody by Captain of Police William J. Jarvis. In relating the incident tonight Captain Jarvis stated that while in conference with Lieut. R. V. Urquhart at the state police barracks in Danielson Monday evening, he observed the photograph and description of the wanted woman. The police captain said the resemblance of Miss Richmond's features with those of the girl in the photo he had seen in Danielson at the state police barracks on the previous evening attracted his attentions to her. Capt. Jarvis questioned the girl at the local police station. After a few minutes grilling the young lady broke down and admitted she had escaped from the state institution. State officers from Danielson barracks were in Putnam tonight and returned Miss Richmond to the Niantic farm.

Coach L. F. Noyes, who has resigned his position at Putnam high school as sub-master and coach of athletics, will leave Putnam this week for Lewiston, Me. Coach Noyes declined to state whether or not he will accept a position with another secondary school this fall or retire from his academic instruction work. Coach Noyes' record established at Putnam high school in athletic circles has caused many schools in the western part of the state to seek his services next fall.

AN IMPRESSIVE DEMONSTRATION OF STRENGTH IN RAILS AND UTILITIES

NEW YORK, June 25—(AP)—Call money held firm at 10 per cent today but the stock market, apparently paying little attention to the mid-year credit stringency, indulged in an impressive demonstration of strength which carried the rail and public utility averages to new high levels for the year. A brief flurry of selling swept over the market during the morning carrying many issues down 1 to 5 points but buying support was quickly supplied, most of the losses were recovered, twenty or more industrial and railroad leaders attained new high prices, and a few specialties were whisked up 5 to 25 points.

Trading was only moderately heavy in volume, the day's sales falling just below 3,000,000 shares. Professional operators supplied the bulk of the day's activity, small traders and investors showing little inclination to re-enter the market until the mid-year credit storm has passed.

Meanwhile, wheat declined about a cent a bushel on reports of beneficial rains in Canada, corn closed unchanged to 1 1-2 cents a bushel higher on bearish crop forecasts and cotton advanced about $1 a bale on forecasts of showers in the belt.

Banks called between $25,000,000 and $30,000,000 in loans, on top of the $50,000,000 called yesterday, and for a time the official rate threatened to go higher but sufficient new funds came into the market to take care of the demand. The time money market was dull with rates firm but unchanged.

Reports that Montagu Norman, governor of the Bank of England, was on his way to this country aroused widespread interest in Wall street where it was figured that his mission was to devise some means to check the flow of gold from London to New York. In addition to the recent heavy withdrawals of the yellow metal for shipment to this country, London also is reported to have lost gold to Germany today. With the crop harvesting season close at hand, Wall street is counting on a more lenient federal reserve policy.

One of the encouraging features of today's market from an investors' standpoint was the fact that the principal demand for stocks centered largely in the high grade industrial and railroad issues. American Can, General Electric, Allied Chemical, Allis Chalmers, North American Co., Westinghouse Electric, Union Carbide, New York Central, Atchison, Pennsylvania and Norfolk & Western all moved into new high ground for the year, while U. S. Steel common was marked up more than 5 points in a flurry of buying at the close.

In accordance with general expectations, directors of the Anaconda Copper company voted to continue the $7 annual dividend on the enlarged capitalization. Libby Owens Sheet Glass was split up 4 for 7 and the dividend doubled. Some recession was reported in steel mill output but this was attributed to the hot weather rather than to any appreciable falling off in orders.

A series of excellent May earnings statements provided the background for the advance in the railroad shares. Oils were one of the few important groups which failed to present any outstanding points of strength, due largely to reports of another sharp increase in crude production last week. Wall street expects, however, that excellent second quarter statements will be forthcoming from some of the leading producing and refining companies next month.

Adams Express, which advanced 40 points last week and 35 yesterday, soared 40 points today but lost 15 points of its gain. Auburn Auto continued its sensational climb by jumping 11 1-2 points to another new high at 335 3-4, which contracts with the year's low of 221. Allis Chalmers showed a net gain of 13 points and Allied Chemical 11. General Electric advanced 11 points and lost 2.

Foreign exchange trading was quiet, with price changes nominal. Sterling continued to hover around the "gold import" point.
